DE VALERA EYES UNION OF NORTH AND SOUTH IRISH

States His Policies on Merger.

BY HUGH CURRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, March 16.—Eamon de Valera tonight outlined the policy he intends to follow as president of the Irish Free State.

He discussed the possibility of a merger of northern and southern Ireland, although he said he had no immediate intention of taking action to bring this about. He declared he saw no means immediately to change the partition of the country, which, he admitted, is disastrous, since it means two governors general, one for the Irish Free State and one for Ulster, who, between them, cost more than the President of the United States, and two governments, with their duplication of ministers and officials. The customs barrier, he said, is also costly.

He denied that the trouble between the two sections of Ireland is religious. Instead, he insisted, it was political. The fact is that 150 years ago the republican movement started at Belfast, he said, and the first leaders like Theobald Wolfe Tone, Robert Emmet, John Mitchell, and Thomas Osborne Davis all were Protestants as was Charles Stewart Parnell.

Assails Oath of Allegiance.

De Valera said he proposed to legislate the oath of allegiate to King George out of the constitution as his first act at the next sitting of the dail. The oath, he said, is not obligatory in the treatry [the Anglo-Irish treaty of 1921 creating the free state] and in his view can be disregarded. The oath, he said, is purely a domestic matter, calling for no interference from England. Asked what he would do if the senate held up the bill for removal of the oath, he said that in view of the mandate recently given him by the country, he did not think the senate would be so ill advised.

Regarding the existence of the Irish republican army, de Valera admitted that it is at present technically an illegal body, but he said that at the first meeting of the executive council the operations of the public safety act would be suspended, and later the whole act revoked. This act, legislated under the late Cosgrave régime, set up military courts with extraordinary powers to maintain law and order.

Stands for Protection.

Regarding tariffs and industrial developments, De Valera proposed to give adequate protection to home industries. Concerning imperial preference, he said he was disposed to negotiate with all countries and give reciprocal preference to all who gave Ireland preference.

Regarding the governor general, who is appointed by Great Britain, De Valera ultimately hoped that position would be merged into the office of the presidency of the republic.

The problem of unemployment, De Valera said, will be tackled soon.

The president said he would end the payment of land annuities to Great Britain. He asserted that this money, under the government of Ireland act of 1920, had been given to northern Ireland and the free state. Northern Ireland still holds these annuities, he said. The late Cosgrave government surrendered them to England, very improperly, and he said he would change that. He declared he would institute a claim for a refund of the amount paid to England during the last 10 years, which would amount to about $108,000,000.

SHIP REPORTED ON FIRE AT SEA; SAY CREW SAFE

Norfolk, Va., March 16.—[Special.]—The coast guard cutters Mendota and Carrabassett and steamer Pulaski late tonight were proceeding to the assistance of an unidentified ship reported on fire 50 miles south of Fenwick island, which is about 52 miles south of Delaware breakwater.

The steamer first was sighted at 11 o'clock by the American tanker Sun Oil, which sent a wireless message stating she had sighted a burning ship, but was not standing by because of the presence of several small vessels in the vicinity.

The coast guard stated the burning ship was sinking and the crew had taken to the lifeboats. They could not understand why the name of the vessel was not given by the Sun Oil or why she herself did not send out the call for assistance.

A black powder bomb which tore large holes in the rear of a brick building at 733 Fulton street last night was attributed by the owner of the building to an attempt to defeat him in his efforts to sell milk at 7 cents a quart.

The bomb caused damage of $1,500, according to police. Martin Polakow, 2322 Lincoln Park West, president of the Associated Dairy company, told police that he had recently spent $50,000 on machinery and improvements of the building in order to establish a milk depot which would dispose of milk at 7 cents a quart.

Polakow said he has received numerous telephoned threats in the last week warning him not to open the depot. He declared he would not be frightened and would proceed with his plans. The building in which he is establishing the depot was formerly occupied by The Central Fish company.

DRY LAW BUILT EMPIRE OF CRIME, GERARD CHARGES

New York, March 16.—(AP)—Referring specifically to the Lindbergh kidnaping, James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Germany and treasurer of the Democratic national committee, charged today that prohibition has "built up an invisible empire of crime."

"It is so highly organized," he said in a speech before the Anti-Prohibition Institute, "that when a lovely child is torn from its home, it parents must employ as their emissaries the ambassadors of the underworld."

Gerard said he believed the sentiment of the country was being aroused for action on prohibition, but he concluded:

"If ever we get rid of prohibition, it will be years before our youth learn to drink good wines and beer and lose their taste for bathtub gin."

Tank Explodes While He Bores on It; Mechanic Dies

William McDonald, 45 years old, 2437 West Adams street, was killed late yesterday when an underground gasoline tank exploded in the yards of the E. J. Albrecht Welding company, 2632 West 26th street. McDonald, a mechanic, was boring through the tank from the outside with an acetylene torch when the flame from the torch ignited a quantity of gasoline at the bottom. The blast hurled him several yards away and he died on the way to St. Anthony's hospital.

Jackson, Miss., March 16.—(AP)—The Mississippi legislature ratified the "lame duck" amendment to the United States constitution today and became the third state to take such action.

Jungle Hunter of New Eden May Be Alive

SAO PAULO, Brazil, March 16.—(AP)—The possibility that Col. P. H. Fawcett, the man who disappeared seven years ago into the Brazilian jungles to hunt a Garden of Eden, is still alive was investigated here today by the British consul general, Arthur Abbott.

Abbott's activity was based on the story of Stephan Rattin, a Swiss trapper of long jungle experience, that he saw the colonel on Oct. 18 last year. Rattin said he talked to a white man with a heavy beard, clothed in animal skins, near a mountain range he identified as the Serra Moreha, some 500 miles farther into the jungle from Dead Horse camp, the last stronghold of civilization in Brazil.

Believes Colonel Held by Indians.

The spot was located between the Tapajos and Madeira rivers, which are approximately 300 miles apart, but Rattin said he is willing to back track through the jungle to verify his tale.

The trapper said he believes Col. Fawcett, a British citizen, is being held hostage by Indian tribes.

Rattin said he was asked to communicate with Sir Ralph Spencer Paget, British ambassador to Brazil, and for an unexplained reason Abbott said this is the most convincing part of the jungle man's story. Sir Ralph has been ambassador to Brazil for many years.

Man Wore 4 Rings.

Rattin said he is convinced it was Col. Fawcett he talked to because the man was wearing four rings, a custom of the missing explorer. The man asked him to tell the British ambassador that he is well but unable to get away. He said his son, Jack, and a friend, Raleigh Rimmell, a young Englishman, who were the only two white men to accompany him, are dead.

The consul general was in communication today with the Indian department in the hope that its head could confirm the trapper's story.

Col. Fawcett long held the theory that the Brazilian jungles held the secret of a majestic civilization of white men that was perhaps 10,000 years old.

On previous expeditions he had investigated his theory far enough to advance it to the world and staked his scientific reputation on the idea that this civilization far antedated Egypt and the Euphrates as the cradle of civilization.

He said he hoped to find an ancient seat of this civilization to the south of the watershed of the Amazon, between the Xingu and the Tapajos rivers. The country he hoped to penetrate comprised about 2,000,000 square miles of unexplored territory.

The Fullerton Avenue church has been without a pastor since the recent resignation of the Rev. Charles Tupper Baillie, now pastor of the First Presbyterian church of South Bend, Ind.

HUNT SERVANTS MISSING SINCE LINDY KIDNAPING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, March 16.—Cuban circles were stirred today as army and police forces mobilized a nation-wide hunt for the Lindbergh baby after receipt by Dr. Israel Castellanos, chief of the criminal identification bureau, of an urgent communication from Col. Norman Schwartzkopf, leading the search in New Jersey.

Three thousand national police and 200 detectives joined army units in the search which was concentrated on Havana, Sagua la Grande and Isabela de Sagua, the latter being on the north coast of Santa Clara province.

Police confirmed today the mysterious arrival here March 11 of a fast motorboat, the Julu, a rum runner flagship vessel. After circling off Jaimanitas beach for several hours, it landed a mysterious cargo and remained in Havana harbor until March 13. Clearance papers showed the Julu out from Belize, British Honduras. It is possible the motorboat came from New York or a port near the Jersey coast.

New York, March 16.—[Special.]—Two German servants, who disappeared mysteriously from the New Jersey home of their employers on the day after Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's baby son was kidnaped, were the object of a widespread police search today.

The servants were first brought into the investigation when their former employer, Mrs. C. Leandro Lightfoot of Franklin Park, N. J., told of their precipitate departure and the strange discoveries she made after they left.

It was reported that twelve detectives had been assigned to find the missing servants, but Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of the New Jersey state police, said he did not expect to hear from his investigators for several days.

No Detectives at Home.

Despite the reported activity of the police, Mrs. Lightfoot said she had not seen any of the detectives nor had any one offered to let her inspect the ladder and chisel found near the Hopewell, N. J., home of Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh after the kidnapers fled with the child more than two weeks ago.

A chisel and wood which had been used for packing a mattress were found to be missing from her home, Mrs. Lightfoot has said, after the departure of Paul and Katie, the servants, who, she said, showed considerable agitation when they read of the Lindbergh kidnaping. On the night of the crime, she said, Paul had used the family car supposedly for a fourteen mile jaunt to New Brunswick and back, returning it covered with mud and the speedometer registering a sixty mile trip.

German Hint in Ransom Note.

While Paul and Katie explained their sudden departure by saying they had received a cablegram calling them home to Germany Mrs. Lightfoot said that she had a telephone call a week ago last Monday from a man who said he was her former butler-chauffeur asking if he could have his old job again.

The story of the strange actions of Mrs. Lightfoot's German servants was regarded as especially significant because of the insistent report that the original ransom note left behind by the kidnapers contained a few letters

2 Roads Plan 18 Hour Run to New York

New York, March 16—[Special.]—The New York Central railroad and the Pennsylvania railroad were said today to be considering plans for a general acceleration of train speeds between New York and Chicago which will cut the running time of the two crack trains in this service to 18 hours. The change would be made with the reorganization of schedules when daylight saving time becomes effective on April 24.

No comment on the proposed schedule changes was forthcoming at the offices of either road, but it was learned from interested sources that under the plan the Twentieth Century Limited of the New York Central and the Broadway Limited of the Pennsylvania would run on the 18 hour schedule instead of twenty hours as at present.

Besides these two trains each road now operates from four to five in each direction on the 20 hour basis. These trains would become 21 hour trains and others which now consume more than 21 hours would probably be advanced to or near the 21 hour mark.

Plan Fare Revision.

It is also planned to make a sweeping revision in the passenger rate structure. Passengers between New York and Chicago now pay extra fares proportioned to the time by which the speed of the train exceeds 28 hours. On the new basis the 20th Century and Broadway Limited would be the only extra fare trains, all others operating at the standard mileage basis.

The present extra fare on the two de luxe Chicago trains of each railroad is $9.60. It is understood that the difference between this extra fare and the one to be charged under the eighteen hour schedule would be less than $1.

The project reflects a growing feeling among railroad managements that to retain their supremacy over airplanes and buses the railroads must make their form of travel attractive both as to speed and cost. Those behind the measure believe that the eighteen hour schedule will provide travel between New York and Chicago with practically no loss of business time while the reduction in price for the twenty hour trains is expected to attract a greater volume of traffic.

It was pointed out that, while short-distance passenger travel has been decreasing for a decade, long distance railway travel has been increasing. Hence, it was argued, efforts to improve long distance service is striking out in a logical direction.

More Economic Runs.

From the viewpoint of the managements, there will be a substantial advantage in the reorganization of a twenty-one hour basis from the basis of economy. These trains, besides carrying through New York-Chicago traffic, will also provide fast service between intermediate points, thus saving the operation of other trains now used for this service.

From 1902 until three years ago, both railroads operated only one twenty hour train each between New York and Chicago. In 1928, the number of these trains was increased to about four on each line, the New York Central subsequently enlarging its service to five. The current depression, which greatly reduced passenger traffic, ensued almost immediately. The operation of all these twenty hour trains then became uneconomic.

Both the New York Central and the Pennsylvania railroads have operated their best New York-Chicago trains at better than twenty hours. The best time was in 1908. In 1912, the twenty hour rate was restored. Since that year, automatic train control has been installed on the New York Central line and engine cab signals on the Pennsylvania. Railroad men believe that these and other improvements in operations justify faster time between the two cities.

INCOMES LEVY TOO SMALL TO MEET DEFICIT

House Continues Its Debate on Cost.

German reich trims a billion dollars out of its budget as result of economies forced upon it—story on page 4.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 16.—[Special.]—A larger federal deficit and more borrowing this year and still higher taxes next year, unless government expenditures are radically reduced, are foreshadowed by the figures on the first installment of 1931 income tax revenue received by the treasury today.

OGDEN L. MILLS.

On the basis of incomplete reports from the collection districts, it is estimated that the first quarterly installment of income taxes payable yesterday does not exceed 180 millions of dollars, compared with 385 millions received on March 15 a year ago, 559 millions in 1930, and 601 millions in 1929.

Unless receipts today accompanying returns filed up to midnight last night should increase the amount considerably, the prospect is that not more than 750 millions will be derived altogether this calendar year from taxes on 1931 incomes, compared with $1,368,035,467 on 1930 incomes and $2,332,968,393 on 1929 incomes.

Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills based his financing program on the expectation that income tax revenue for the fiscal year of 1932 would exceed 1 billion 100 millions, compared with 1 billion 860 millions for 1931 fiscal year. In the light of the figures so far received, however, it would appear that income tax revenue this fiscal year, including the installments paid yesterday and on June 15, next, will barely touch 1 billion.

In that event, the deficit for the current fiscal year is likely to be in the neighborhood of 2¼ billions. Even with the proposed sales and excise taxes of the pending tax increase bill becoming effective before the end of the fiscal year, June 30, next, it will be necessary for the treasury to borrow considerably more than the 900 millions of last week in order to meet the deficit.

Figures Are Withheld.

Secretary Mills declined to make public the reports on income tax receipts which have been received so far from collectors, nor would he authorize collectors to make public the receipts in their districts. It was stated at the treasury department that it is not customary to disclose the figures until all districts are heard from. The official daily statement of the treasury tomorrow, however, will contain the income tax receipts of March 15.

In the light of the continued falling off of income tax receipts it will be necessary either to impose more and higher taxes than are proposed in the pending tax bill in order to balance the budget next year or to scale down government expenditures to an extent that has been contemplated by neither party in either house of congress up to date.

The scheme of additional taxation in the bill being debated in the house is based on the calculation that the deficit for the 1933 fiscal year would not exceed 1 billion 241 million dollars exclusive of the sinking fund provisions for debt retirement. But this calculation was based in turn on the expectation of a material improvement in business conditions this year.

Rainey Backs Sales Tax.

Just before the house resumed debate on the tax bill today Representative Henry T. Rainey [Dem., Ill.], majority leader, replied to the condemnation of the sales tax by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor. Mr. Rainey said that the sale tax offers the "best and most just" means of balancing the budget and asserted that if Mr. Green's objections should prevail and the sales tax should be eliminated it would become necessary "to cut salaries of all government employes from the highest to lowest."

"If the sales tax is defeated," Mr. Rainey continued, "I shall be compelled to support a bill imposing the irritable war time taxes on the people and a special excise tax on gasoline, radios, automobiles, conveyances, and transfers of real estate, besides an increase in postage.

"We are going to stay here all summer to get a bill that will balance the budget. I hope Mr. Green agrees that it is absolutely necessary to balance the budget and restore the solvency of the government.

Call It "Emergency" Bill.

"I hope he realizes the manufacturers' sales tax is an emergency measure and that a sales tax has been adopted by every nation of importance in the world except Great Britain and the United States."

In a letter to Chairman Crisp of the ways and means committee today Representative William E. Hull [Rep., Ill.] declared the use of the word "sugar" in exempting that commodity from the proposed sales tax in the revenue bill discriminated against corn sugar, which he said is not construed as "sugar." The Illinois representative inclosed a letter fsom the department of agriculture in which it was stated that cane and beet sugar are sucose while corn sugar is dextrose. It has been found necessary, the department stated, to term sucose sugar and to exclude dextrose from that term.

Representative F. H. La Guardia [Rep., N. Y.], who is leading the western radicals in the fight against the sales tax, inserted in the record today a letter to Secretary of the Treasury Mills taking the treasury head to task for an apparent change of opinion on the sales tax.

Quotes Mills on Tax.

La Guardia quoted Mills as saying before the New York Economic club Dec. 14 that "we weighed the merits of the general sales tax but rejected it. Not only because it bears no relation to ability to pay and is regressive in character but because of the enormous administrative difficulties and the almost inevitable pyramiding of the tax in the course of successive sales."

The New York representative said he preferred to believe this statement of Mills rather than the one last Saturday in which he indorsed the sales tax.

PITCAIRN HAILS WETS' SHOWING IN HOUSE VOTE

Philadelphia, Pa., March 16.—[Special.]—Raymond Pitcairn, organizer and temporary chairman of the Republican Citizens' Committee Against National Prohibition, which is urging wets to withhold contributions to the Republican party until it adopts a wet plank, and who reports that $1,000,000 has been so withheld, today congratulated Representative James M. Beck and his colleagues on the outcome of the vote on the Beck-Linthicum resolution.

"From a Republican standpoint this vote of 227 to 187 is significant, because the strength of the drys was in the south, which will go Democratic in any case, unless the religious issue should again be raised against the Democratic presidential candidate," Mr. Pitcairn asserted.

"In the west 82 members of congress voted favoring the resolution to consider the submission of the 18th amendment to the people, and 95 congressmen voted dry. In the south only 22 out of 139 congressmen voted wet. Again wet Republicans from all sections came within 8 votes of a majority control of their party. Again, the wets polled 38 more than the 150 votes forecast by the drys. In November, according to present indications, the repealists will have the necessary two-thirds majority to submit prohibition to the people, who will vote to repeal prohibition.

"Thereby they will deprive the underworld of its mighty source of revenue, on the one hand, and give to the government a source of income."

REPORT ILLNESS OF KEGEL CASE WOMAN SERIOUS

Mrs. Mary Ryan, who accused Mrs. Marie Cahlin Kegel, wife of former Health Commissioner Arnold H. Kegel, of having poisoned her, was reported in a serious condition from bichloride poisoning yesterday by Dr. William D. McNally.

Several weeks ago when Mrs. Ryan became ill she alleged that Mrs. Kegel put poison in a soda which she was drinking. At the time it was revealed that Mrs. Ryan was listed as a witness for Dr. Kegel in his divorce suit against Mrs. Kegel. Subsequently the grand jury voted an indictment against Mrs. Kegel charging her with an attempt to kill. Later the jury sought to withdraw the indictment, and Chief Justice Fisher quashed it.

A contempt order against Dr. Kegel for being in arrears in alimony was dismissed yesterday by Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude on the statement of Mrs. Kegel's attorney, Leo O'Reilly, that the ex-health commissioner had paid $225 in alimony and solicitor's fees, satisfying the debt. Harry Olson, Dr. Kegel's attorney, told Judge Trude that Mrs. Ryan is dying at the John B. Murphy hospital, and asked a quick hearing of the divorce case. Dr. Kegel alleges his wife tried to poison him.

JAIL FOR AUTO LOOTERS.

Four men, who admitted looting parked automobiles on the near north side, were sentenced to two years in the Bridewell and fined $200 each yesterday by Judge McCarthy. The prisoners are Harold Chapman, Leroy Linn, Manuel Touron and Edward Wanda.

END WASTE, SAVE NATION, PLEA OF COL. McCORMICK

Wasteful public spending and confiscatory taxes have brought the nation to the extraordinary situation where the ownership of property has become a liability instead of an asset, Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, said last night in an address at the annual dinner of the Chicago Better Business bureau in the Hotel Sherman.

"Like the French nation under Louis XIV.," he said, "we are ground down by an unbearable army which is extorting in taxes from the suffering populace 10 billion dollars annually and is spending 3 billion more, so that local treasuries are largely bankrupt and the federal credit is stretched to the breaking point.

Col. McCormick pointed out that although the situation in this country is serious, it is not yet as hopeless as that of Australia, New Zealand, or England.

But only by curtailing the overwhelming outlay of government bodies before the last reserves have been taken, he said, can the United States be prevented from following these other nations into bankruptcy.

Col. McCormick's Address.

"I am happy to be with you tonight. There is much which we have in common," said Col. McCormick in opening his address to the members of the Better Business bureau. "You have taken as your aim the elimination of fraud and other unethical, wasteful charges on your business and the public. You have accomplished many fine things in driving back the racketeer, in policing the precincts of your own lines of trade, and in encouraging legitimate enterprise to enjoy the full benefits of its investment of energy and capital.

"You are to be congratulated for your splendid achievements.

"There is another field to which your energies may well be directed. There is another menace to business, another more serious waste which demands remedy. I call your attention to a vicious evil which strikes at the very existence of your business.

Cause of the Depression.

"Last January I was able to announce confidently that the world-wide depression was due to government extravagance which had impaired the accumulations of the world to the point where they could no longer finance necessary trade and industry.

"Australia and New Zealand had gone bankrupt a year before. They had been living on credit extended to them in their remoteness, like the credit of the Mississippi Bubble. Further advances were out of the question. They repudiated interest on their domestic debt. One province repudiated its entire debt, and the future is desperate.

"England also was known to be living beyond her income. Instead of borrowing from overseas she was using up the wealth accumulated by her thrifty citizens during centuries of prosperity. Her savings were drawn upon in heavier and heavier loads to support the idle and the shiftless. For years her capital had been freely sold on the world market to pay taxes for current expenses. Well informed men foretold, with considerable accuracy, the time when she must meet the end of her resources. It came last summer. After frequent borrowings from America and France, the Bank of England collapsed and was compelled to abandon gold payments.

A Slash for Every One.

"All government jobholders, even the idle, were forced to accept a 10 per cent cut in pay, while the depreciation in the pound reduced all wages, all bank deposits and all English bonds by an additional 25 per cent. Thus the jobholders and the idle who bankrupted England have been cut 35 per cent and there is no indication that British industry can carry the present load.

"Bankruptcy has been obvious in the Chicago area for long. You may remember that THE TRIBUNE was sued for ten million dollars because years ago it pointed out the inevitable end to the road of waste and corruption. The condition would have been equally obvious in other cities and states if their citizens, in their joy at our delinquencies, had been less blind to their own shortcomings.

"It was already plain to those who would see that the federal income tax racket had played itself out and that our government could not longer continue its riotous living by that avenue.

Whole World Affected.

"With so much in sight, we looked farther and found that the depression affected the war winners as well as the war losers: the one winner, the United States, which took no spoils of war, as well as the great spoils takers—Australia, New Zealand, England, Japan, France, and Italy. We found that all continents were affected; the arctic as well as the tropics; monarchies, republics, dictatorships.

"Even the neutrals, who had incurred no war expenses, and were supposedly rich profiteers, were in the toils.

"With every other condition different, there was one common denominator—excessive expenditures by governments since the war.

"I cannot intrude upon your time tonight with too many figures. I will quote a few, and will attach the rest to the printed copy of my speech.

"In 1912 the budget of Sweden was $56,226,400; in 1924, $164,573,000; in 1930, $192,819,336. For the same years we find that the figures for Denmark were: 1913, $29,856,000; 1924, $71,500,000; in 1930, $84,902,000.

Spending Begun Before War.

"In the warring countries, of course, enormous expenditures were unavoidable. Gigantic machines for collecting money, for borrowing money, and for spending money supplemented the factories and the farms. All life adjusted itself to living on its future as represented by the vast war loans.

"It must be said, however, that while the war increased public spending in this country, to the public catastrophe we are now witnessing, a tendency in that direction was discernible long before the pistol shot of Serajevo.

"Our government was established on principles of simplicity and economy. Not until sixty years after the constitution was a new department, that of the interior, formed; that organization so continuously laced with corruption and scandal that some one said its only hours of good reputation were when it was not found out.

"One of those scandals was the famous Ballinger case, which called attention to the United States forestry service.

Case of the Paper Mill.

"Twenty years ago business conditions compelled me to build a paper mill. The paper mill in turn needed forest lands to back it up. Now, thought I, is the time for this citizen and taxpayer to find some benefit from his government. I wrote, I visited Washington, I even made a pilgrimage to the laboratory of New Leningrad [Madison, Wis.], but all to no avail. I was treated politely. Good will was present, but not a particle of useful information could I obtain, or have obtained, from this organization of genteel parasites.

"Recently our paths have crossed again. When not an editor, I am a farmer, as were my forbears. I own a farm which was my grandfather's, and I own others. When the creation of the farm board indicated to me that the farming of grains must become extra hazardous, I turned my farms to fattening cattle. Then, bearing in mind the success of our newspaper-paper mill-forest land combination, I considered acquiring ranch land in the west on which to breed stock for fattening in Illinois.

"I sent an experienced man into the ranch country, just as years before I had sent a cruiser into the timber. His report was that private ranches could not compete with the favored individuals who could graze to destruction forest and soil alike on non-taxpaying land, leased on nominal terms from the United States. Government forests produce no taxes. On the contrary, they cost $28,000,000 annually.

The Germ of Bureaucracy.

"But I anticipate. We passed through the terrible ordeal of the civil war and the scarcely less terrible period of reconstruction and came out with our institutions intact. The army of soldiers and the no less army of civilians taken into public employ in war time were disbanded. But perhaps the germ of bureaucracy had been planted.

"In 1870 a department of justice is created, while in 1872 the postoffice takes on more complex form. In 1883 the constitutional officers of government are no longer considered honest enough to employ their own assistants. The civil service commission is formed, which today, doing no work of any kind, gets away with more than a million and a half dollars a year.

"It is followed in 1887 by the interstate commerce commission, which does not move a pound of freight or a passenger, but costs the astounding sum of ten million dollars a year to maintain. In its forty-five years of life it has raised freight rates beyond the capacity of shippers to pay and has brought the railroads to the edge of bankruptcy.

Agriculture Begins Inroad.

"In 1889 the department of agriculture is organized and begins its devastating inroad upon the treasury. Last year it absorbed two hundred and ninety-seven million dollars of the public wealth.

In 1903 some ingenious spoilsman invents the department of commerce and labor to direct the commerce of the country. One excuse for this enterprise, now a sixty-one million dollar affair, was that it would take over the business work of the state department, which bourgeois occupation was considered a serious impediment to the social aspirations of the senior service in European capitals. Even so, fourteen million dollars a year comes pretty steep to cater to the social ambitions of a galaxy of he-debutantes. Finally, in 1913, some political demagogue produced the department of labor to handle the foreign vote.

By this time the complexion of our government was rapidly changing. In 1913 came the federal reserve board to dominate the banks and bring on the panic of 1929; in 1914 the federal trade commission to harass business.

Another Million Dollar Baby.

"Also in 1915 another million dollar baby, the national advisory commission for aeronautics. In 1916 we find a racket called the employes' compensation commission. In 1916 also the tariff commission came into existence and began spending nearly a million dollars a year to keep manufacturers from knowing from one day to another what the tariff will be. And in 1917 congress celebrated the declaration of war by the creation of the federal board for vocational education.

"In 1927, private enterprise having produced radio as it once produced printing, the government set up a bureau to license broadcasting stations, just as four hundred years ago Henry VIII. licensed printing presses. If this does not seem a serious matter to you, it does to me. It took four hundred years of suffering and martyrdom for my predecessors of the Fourth Estate to wrest its freedom from tyranny, and last year, only by the slender majority of one vote, did the Supreme court of the United States uphold this freedom against a law in the state of Minnesota which sought to reimpose upon newspapers the shackles of the middle ages.

Many Other Operations.

"If I were to go on and tell you of all government operations—operations to put water on land and to take water off land; to tax farmers who own their farms in order to subsidize other farmers to compete with them; to build harbors where there is no shipping and dredge rivers where there is no commerce; to operate power plants for the pampered few at the expense of the many; of fifty-three thousand civilians employed in the army and forty-nine thousand in the navy, and a thousand other Arabian Night activities—I would consume your entire evening.

"If I were to extend this story to the states, the counties, and the cities, the school boards, the commissions, and what-nots, to paved roads and the unpaved roads, the rabbit shepherds, the palatial college buildings which turn school boys into drones before they have ever worked, and to school courses in ballet dancing and lipstick, I would keep you until morning.

"The general result is that we now have on the public pay rolls three million people, and we have allied with them in the form of contractors and other beneficiaries, I cannot say how many million more.

Ground Down by Taxes.

"Like the French nation under Louis XIV., we are ground down by an unbearable army which is extorting in taxes from the suffering populace ten billion dollars annually and is spending three billion more, so that local treasuries are largely bankrupt and the federal credit is stretched to the breaking point. Everywhere people are crying for relief and nowhere are they receiving it.

"How was it that the country successfully demobilized after the much greater civil war and has ruined itself after its small participation in the great war? Is the reason the propaganda?

"The army of wartime propagandists—the Belgium and devastated region press agents, Creel's liars—addressed their experienced pens to justify treasury raids.

"In former times government jobs were government jobs. They paid more money for less work to the less desirable class of our citizenry than working men earned. Everybody recognized that fact, and in this recognition lay our safety. The politicians could get away with so much, but beyond that they could not pass.

"Now came the propagandist with his vague claims of necessary service. The greatest thefts of public funds have been publicly disguised as desirable projects.

"Another factor has been that the public attitude towards wartime profiting has been directed against necessary peacetime industries. There was a natural antipathy towards the men who got rich from war necessities. Progressive taxation was imposed no more to provide revenue than to punish the profiteers. Tax thieves have perpetuated this attitude and have hamstrung essential industries and forced millions of workingmen out of employment on the generalization that private profit, however honestly gained and however indispensable to the common welfare, should be penalized.

"But most important of all, I believe, has been the mistaken belief as to values. From various causes, partly perhaps wartime prices, partly the effect of living on borrowed money, partly the energy created by war enthusiasm, and partly the natural optimism following peace, all values rose, whether they were farm lands, Florida real estate, subdivisions, or loop property. With these apparent increases in values, the payment of taxes did not appear burdensome. It seemed as though taxes could be paid from the annual increment.

Taxes Exceed Earnings.

"One sinister fact was entirely overlooked. Taxes were not being paid out of earnings. Taxes exceeded earnings. The owner at last found himself saddled with property that he could not sell and whose earnings would not cover taxes. The owner dug into the sock. When the sock was empty and credit was exhausted he could no longer pay the taxes.

"The same is true of capital stock. Shares were overvalued and they were overassessed. As long as taxes were being paid out of winnings, payments seemed easy. When the bubble was pricked it was discovered that taxes were out of all proportion to earnings.

"Now that the values of farm lands, city real estate, and everything else have slid back to their pre-boom levels we discover that government has been taking, not a share of the national income but a generous slice of the principal. It has been conducting a pari-mutuel. It has taken alike a piece of what A made and a piece of what B lost.

"This was not done consciously, of course. Nobody meant it to happen that way. In fact, it is only now beginning to dawn on the people that this is what happened.

In the Final Stage.

"Now we have got to the last stage of this evolution. The people have dreamed of wealth and they have spent freely of their capital. The government has expropriated capital rather than income and it has substantially reduced capital by so doing. Now the taxpayer hasn't anything with which to pay taxes.

"I have just read that the owners of the Virginia hotel are tearing it down to save taxes. This is merely another example of what has been going on, not only all over the city where we have seen it, but all over the nation; not only in the cities which have been consciously impoverished by rural legislatures, but in the countries as well. We have reached the extraordinary situation where the ownership of property has become a liability, not an asset.

"Our railroads, which contributed so much to the universal welfare, have been so hamstrung by government interference and limitation of profit that they are no longer self-supporting. Not only weak railroads but the very strongest, namely the Pennsylvania railroad, are accepting from an overextended government financial assistance which they should be in a position to extend to it.

Extravagance Hits Banks.

"Banks have been ruined in consequence of the government's extravagance, and many of these are accepting aid from the treasury they should be able to support. The treasury, in turn, which is making a gesture to aid the industries which its management has wrecked, is itself reduced to excessive borrowings at exorbitant rates of interest and to initiating confiscatory tax bills which no well informed person believes can raise a fraction of the revenue demanded by official rapacity.

"Our situation is serious, desperate, but, unlike that of Australia, of New Zealand, and of England, not yet hopeless. They are hopelessly bankrupt, but we are not—yet. There is still time to retrench the overwhelming outlay of government bodies before our last reserves have been taken and our last accumulations are gone—but not much time.

No Help from Jobholders.

"We can not expect government jobholders to take a farsighted view. If they were farsighted, energetic, and thrifty they would not have gone on the public pay rolls. We can not expect statesmanship from the holders of elective office. These men, in direct contact with the jobholders, are scarcely acquainted with the problems and difficulties of private business. They will be followers, but not leaders.

"We will meet active opposition from those demagogues, whether in office or at the head of various organizations, who have learned the patter of socialistic doctrine and found in its repetitions comfortable and idle livelihoods.

"Our salvation and the salvation of our country depends upon an immediate call to action by the producers of all wealth. There is no time to be lost. I bid you start tonight."

Tell of Bureau's Work.

AUSTRALIA TAKES NEW STEP TO PUT LIEN ON STATE

CANBERRA, Australia, March 16.—(AP)—Parliament tonight concurred in a resolution of the government to attach certain sources of revenue of the state of New South Wales to meet the state's defaulted obligations.

The prime minister estimated that the state will have defaulted in the payment of interest on its overseas and internal debt to the extent of $80,000,000 as of June 1, 1932.

This drastic action was taken under the financial agreements enforcement act, but the state will contest the validity of the commonwealth's legislation. The high court will begin hearings in Melbourne tomorrow.

PASTOR INDICTED FOR MURDER IN DRY RAID KILLING

Palatka, Fla., March 16.—[Special.] The Rev. Earl H. McGaha, dry crusading pastor of the Christian church here, was indicted today by the grand jury on a charge of first degree murder for the fatal shooting of John W. Malone in a liquor raid last Christmas eve.

In voting the murder charge, the Putnam grand jury overruled the recent action of a local court in holding McGaha only for manslaughter. Thus, under the jury's charge, he faces the death penalty. Since his arrest, the Rev. Mr. McGaha has been in jail in lieu of a $5,000 bond.

Pastor Led Raiders.

The slaying of Malone, which the crusading pastor has repeatedly excused as accidental, occurred in Lake Hewitt scrub, several miles from here. Earlier, McGaha led a detail of deputies, Wayne Watkins, G. W. Prater, and Lee Jernigan, to a still. The night before, McGaha, according to his admissions, had spied on it for hours.

Details of the raid had been planned beforehand by the deputies and the clergyman. At a signal from the revolver of Watkins, all were to close in and seize the bootleggers. Malone, it was said later, was known to be there at the time, and with him a Negro.

As prearranged, Deputy Sheriff Watkins fired his revolver. The Rev. Mr. McGaha, and Deputies Jernigan and Prater advanced. At the same moment, two men, one Malone, the other a Negro, burst into view, closely followed by McGaha.

Victim Shot in Back.

Suddenly there was a shot from McGaha's shotgun, and Malone collapsed, struck four times in the back. He died thirty minutes later. McGaha and Jernigan didn't halt, but pursued the Negro, who escaped. McGaha asserted afterward he did not know Malone had been shot.

The crusading pastor was lodged in the county jail the next day. He admitted his shotgun killed Malone, but declared the killing was accidental for the gun was discharged when he stumbled. This plea was given before a coroner's jury Jan. 1, but the jury ordered McGaha held for murder. It was repeated Jan. 8 before Justice J. B. Huff through his attorneys, and the jurist consequently reduced the charge from murder to manslaughter.

Self-Appointed Foe of Sin.

The Rev. Mr. McGaha came to this section several months before the shooting. He immediately set out to carry on a private campaign against what he considered to be vice. He did so, he said, because he deemed it his Christian duty to assist in stamping out vice of all kinds. Much of his activity was in behalf of prohibition enforcement. It is asserted he held no official commission of any kind to carry on enforcement work.

Throughout his imprisonment the crusader has upheld his right to locate stills. Tonight, after his indictment, he added that he believed it to be his duty not only to locate them but also to conduct raiding parties and to testify in court against offenders.

FIND NEW WAY OF DEPICTING AUTO ACCIDENTS

Put on Display

A portable exhibit for use in court rooms in automobile accident or traffic cases was placed on display in Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby's court yesterday. With this device it will be possible to reconstruct the scenes of traffic accidents in which trains automobiles and other vehicles are involved.

The ground plan of the scene is represented by a board three feet square covered with green felt, and mounted on an easel. Self-recoiling lengths of tape may be stretched to removable pegs to represent streets and intersections.

Trains, motorcycles, toy policemen, boulevard signs, traffic lights, railroad crossing gates, and light posts, touring cars, sedans, and other types of automobiles may be represented on the scene.

BRIGHT PLUMAGE BECOMES A MAN, EXPERT OPINES

Hits Prejudice Against Stylish Clothes.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Raymond Twyeffort of New York, chairman of the style committee of the National Association of Merchant Tailors, gave a few pointers on men's styles yesterday upon his arrival at the Congress hotel. The style expert, a gardenia in the buttonhole of his director's suit, the very lates for day wear, conversed at length on men's wear.

"The merchant tailoring business is a philosophy," he said. "We must show men how to get the fullest enjoyment out of life by dressing for every occasion. First of all we must break down the superstition that stylish dress for men is effeminate. This has done more to imprison the true masculine spirit than anything else."

Takes Cue from Nature.

Mr. Twyeffort drew on the birds and beasts for illustration, citing how, in nature, it is the vigorous male animal who has the glossiest coat and the male peacock whose plumes are brightest. This should be more the case in men's wear today, he added.

"The first and most important way by which man can express his ego is in his manner of dress," he continued. "A man in a new suit of clothes and a new hat steps with a firmer gait, he has more confidence in himself and is a more aggressive individual.

"If every man in the United States would go out and buy a new suit of clothes, two or thre new ties, a new hat, and a pair of shoes, it would rid the country of business depression. We can dress the nation into prosperity."

Styles More Formal.

As for the newer styles, Mr. Twyeffort said there is a trend to the starched collar and more formal dress for day wear. The snapdown hat and the soft collar are allowable only for country wear, he said, and should not be tolerated in the business office and the theater.

One of the very newest things in men's styles is the host suit, which is expected to be popular in the homes of the fashionable for wear in the country instead of the tuxedo. This is a colored suit made up in cashmeres in blues, purples, greens, browns, maroons, and mulberry, with a rolling shawl collar with a silk facing of a harmonizing color.

Sack suits are an inch longer than last year and tailcoats are three inches longer to go with the women's longer formal costumes, the style expert explained.

MR. BEHLKE GETS RUDE JOLT; FAITH IN MAN CRASHES

Some time ago Mr. Behlke met one Robert Herman. He fed him occasionally and loaned him money. He even took him to his apartment at 533 Deming place. Mr. Herman liked all this. Particularly he liked the radio set in Mr. Behlke's room. He wanted the same model; nothing else would do. Mr. Behlke appreciated his friend's taste. The radio was a good one.

Last night Mr. Herman tendered Mr. Behlke a check for $20. "Buy me a radio exactly like that in your room," he asked. But Mr. Behlke demurred. "You'd better look over my radio again," he urged, "then you'll be more certain if that's the kind you want. Here's the key to my apartment."

Mr. Herman took the keys. Apparently he took everything else, for when Mr. Behlke returned to his apartment this morning he discovered that his two watches and a $25 tie pin which he had purchased from Mr. Herman only a week ago, were gone. And so was the radio. In addition the $20 check Mr. Herman had given Mr. Behlke was no good.

MOTHER AND SON DIE WHEN TRAIN SMASHES AUTO

Mrs. Bertha Freiwald, 60 years old, 10454 Avenue H, the mother of seven children, and her eldest son, Clarence, 29 years old, were killed yesterday when their coupé was demolished by a Pennsylvania suburban two car train.

The accident occurred at a grade crossing near 105th street and Avenue E, less than one block from a similar crossing at 106th street and Calumet avenue, where Jacob Freiwald, husband and father of the victims, has been a watchman for six years.

The crossing is unguarded, but young Freiberg, who was driving, was familiar with the tracks, which are in full view for several blocks each way, the police said.

These two deaths and two others yesterday in Cook county raised the 1932 toll to 225. The other victims:

Edward G. Ahern, 61 years old, 1535 East Marquette road, a mechanic. Died in the Illinois Central hospital of injuries suffered yesterday when the knuckle broke on the steering wheel of the automobile in which he was riding. The car hit a tree on the University of Chicago campus in front of 1447 East Fifty-ninth street.

Richard J. Haley, 53 years old, 2720 Warren boulevard. Fatally injured when he walked into the side of an automobile at Washtenaw avenue and Madison street.

LAKE FOREST REJECTS OFFER TO WIDEN ROADS

The city council of Lake Forest, at a special meeting last Sunday, rejected the offer of the state highway department to widen Sheridan road through Lake Forest, it was learned yesterday. An offer of the state to widen McKinley road and another short road in Lake Forest was also rejected.

The state had proposed to widen Sheridan road from 18 to 30 feet and McKinley road from 18 to 27 feet. Opposition to this proposal was expressed by many members of the council, including Mayor A. B. Farwell, Benjamin F. Affleck, and Attorney Joseph B. Fleming. Widening of the roads would bring too much traffic into Lake Forest, destroying the exclusive quality of the suburb and ruining the beauty of the winding, tree lined roads, it was argued.

As a result of the rejection the state will probably not widen or improve Waukegan road through Fort Sheridan, an improvement which has been sought by many motorists. The highway department, in a letter to the Lake Forest council, warned that a rejection of the Sheridan road widening project would mean a discontinuance of plans to improve Waukegan road.

With these words William A. Haven, vice president of Arthur G. McKee & Co., Cleveland, O., engineering firm, today summed up his final report to the soviet government on his departure for the United States after completing a contract for the construction of the great Asiatic steel capital which is called the Gary of Russia.

"The blowing in recently of blast furnace No. 1 signalized what probably is the most important accomplishment in the metallurgical field of the soviet industrialization program," Mr. Haven's report said.

"Other divisions of the Magnetogorsk project have been operating for months, but the production of pig iron is conclusive evidence that the planning and construction work of the last two years has been properly and successfully performed."

WASHINGTON COP USES POLICE CAR TO DELIVER BOOZE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 16.—[Special.]—Two Washington policemen were under arrest today, one of them charged with staging a series of taxi holdups and the other with delivering liquor in a police radio car.

Private Luther E. Cline was placed under arrest last night after William T. Griffin, a taxi driver, had identified him as the man who, some hours earlier, had demanded his money at the point of a gun and then threatened to take him for a ride because he had none.

A short time after Griffin had reported the holdup to police last night, headquarters was informed that two men, armed with guns, had been seen to enter a taxi in the northeast section. A radio car was dispatched to the location and Cline, with his brother, Silas Cline, were found in the cab. Both were armed.

Cline has been a member of the force for five years, but was on sick leave last night. He is said to answer the description of the bandit who has held up a number of other cab drivers in the last several weeks.

Patrolman Claude P. Cool was taken into custody last night by members of the vice squad as he was about to deliver two half gallon jars of liquor to an O street residence. He had arrived at the house in a police radio car.

TAG DAY GIVEN O. K. WITHOUT COUNCIL ACTION

Commissioner of Police Allman yesterday issued a permit to the Ladies auxiliary of the Sisters of the Resurrection to tag about Polish churches on Sunday after representations had been made to him that the city council finance committee had approved the tag day, which is not authorized by the city tag day ordinance.

The finance committee approved the tag day at its meeting last Tuesday, but its action is not final under council rules. Before the tag day is authorized the city council must approve the action of its finance committee. The next council meeting will be held March 23, by which time the tag day will have been held.

Members of the finance committee recognized at their meeting that the tag day would be held without the entire council having an opportunity to act upon it. Members of the council who are not on the committee yesterday expressed surprise at the "usurpation" of the council's powers by the "house of lords."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NICE, France, March 16.—King Gustav of Sweden, who heretofore has refused to recognize the marriage of his grandson, Prince Lennart, to Karin Nissvandt, a commoner, not only has had a softening of heart, but is prepared to act as peacemaker between the prince and other members of the royal household who objected to the wedding.

The first step toward forgiveness occurred today when King Gustav visited the most exclusive jewelers in Nice and bought an expensive gift for the bride. The couple is expected in Nice on Easter Monday, when the reconciliation will be completed upon presentation of the gift.

BRITTEN FATHERS MEASURE TO PULL JONES LAW FANGS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 16.—[Special.]—Representative Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.], slipped another cockleburr under the house dry saddle today with the introduction of a bill calling for repeal of the drastic punitive provisions of the so-called Jones five and ten law.

REP. FRED A. BRITTEN. [Assoc. Press Photo.]

The bill is aimed principally at protecting casual dry law violators from the same punishment as habitual commercial violators. It would substitute a fine not to exceed $500 and a six months' jail term for the $10,000 fine and five year term possible under the Jones law, in cases where the amount of liquor involved is less than one gallon and where the offender is proved to be not habitually engaged in violation of the dry law.

"My bill," said Mr. Britten, "strikes from the Jones law the section which would viciously fine and jail a pocket flask offender in the same manner as it would affect a notorious bootlegger.

"It will prevent heavy fines and sentences by intolerant or bigoted judges for such minor offenses as drinking in public, carrying a flask, home brewing, or distillation in quantities less than one gallon and will prevent the heavy convictions for transporting less than a gallon of liquor in one's automobile."

VANISHING DRY AGENT HAMPERS U. S. LIQUOR CASE

Five Defendants Get Jail Terms.

The unexplained absence of a dry agent injected a touch of mystery yesterday into a prohibition case in which he was relied upon as the chief government witness, and in which Harry Rubenstein, owner of the Breakfast club at 661 North Clark street, was sentenced to one year in jail and fined $500 for illegal possession of liquor.

William Green is the dry agent in question. Last May he made several purchases of liquor at the club and a raid followed in which four barrels of beer, two pints of gin, three guns and three blackjacks were seized. Rubenstein and four other men, John McGovern Jr., William Russell, James McGovern and Albert Pierattini were arrested.

Four Others Sentenced.

These four, arraigned yesterday with Rubenstein before Federal Judge John P. Barnes, received sentences ranging from two to ten months. It was revealed that, but for Agent Green's absence, Rubenstein might have had a much heavier penalty for selling liquor.

According to Assistant District Attorney Walter E. Wiles, Green's presence was necessary to prove that Rubenstein made sales.

Agent Is Given Leave.

Rubeinstein's case came up last week, but at that time Green was absent, Wiles said. At prohibition headquarters it was reported that Green was out of town on a leave of absence of ten days. Last Thursday this leave was extended for fifty days at Green's request. Investigation indicated that the agent's last official activity centered near Sturgeon Bay, Wis.

Reports suggested that Green had become involved in "trouble" over his Wisconsin activities. Prohibition Administrator Malachi L. Harney refused yesterday to comment on the Wisconsin matter.

MERCURY WILL DECLINE TODAY, FORECASTER SAYS

After a few hours of comparative warmth yesterday, the temperature reaching 53 degrees at 3 p. m., Chicago today will experience a return of colder weather. Clouds early in the day will give way to sunshine and a fair day, Forecaster C. A. Donnel said. He predicted increasing cloudiness for tomorrow.

The cause of the impending cold is a high pressure area in the Mackenzie river basin in northern Canada. A similar high caused the cold wave earlier in the month. This time, however, the condition is expected to dissipate without threatening the city with extreme cold again, Mr. Donnel said.

Havana, Cuba, had a chilly spell yesterday, the mercury dropping to 50 degrees at 8 a. m.

MT. ETNA SHOWS ALARMING SIGNS OF AN ERUPTION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, March 16.—With intense explosive activity in both the central crater and in lateral craters in the valley of de Bove, Mount Etna is showing an alarming eruptive tendency, according to a report today by Prof. Gaetano Ponte, director of Mount Etna observatory.

Intermittent belches of smoke and cinders from the central crater have forced discontinuance of a skiing competition which was being held on Mount Etna's snow covered higher slopes. Smaller craters farther down from the cone also are affording an imposing spectacle.

Mount Etna, near the middle eastern coast of Sicily near the "toe" of Italy, broke into disastrous eruptions in 1923 and 1928. At those times a number of towns were buried, many people were killed and property damage ran in to millions of dollars. Occasionally since 1923 there have been signs of volcanic activity. Mount Etna is historic as a volcanic destroyer.

ARREST 100 IN GAMING RAIDS.

Police of the gambling squad, led by Capt. Martin Mullen, raided three alleged gambling houses yesterday and arrested nearly 100 men. The establishments and the men booked as keepers were: 4745 North Kedzie avenue, George Regan; 6761 Stony Island avenue, Dick Richards, and 4019 North Cicero avenue, Thomas Kelsey.

white teeth.. sparkling in firm gums

Don't forget the FIRM gums if you want to keep those teeth

It certainly is pleasant to show the friends and neighbors a display of white teeth—when you talk and smile and laugh.

But—if you want to keep your teeth, watch out for your gums.

Everyone has heard about pyorrhea. But people are often inclined to regard it as a distant danger—something that may happen to others but not likely to touch themselves. The infection begins at the gum line and eats its way downward to the tooth sockets. The disease may be under way for several years before it takes a single tooth, but half the adult teeth lost are due to pyorrhea.

Take these two precautions now against "lost teeth." First, be sure not to forget the address of your dentist. Visit him twice a year, anyway. He is a real friend in need. Second, pick out a toothpaste that does more than polish your teeth. Forhan's Toothpaste is a thoroughly good cleanser—none better. But it takes care of the gums too, and that is mighty important, because you cannot have healthy teeth in unhealthy gums. Dr. R. J. Forhan worked 26 years as a pyorrhea specialist, and his exclusive formula cannot be obtained by the public except in Forhan's Toothpaste. Get ahead of pyorrhea. Prevention is the only way. Take it seriously and you will not be sorry. Start today with Forhan's. All druggists.

REVEAL GROWTH OF BUREAUCRACY IN CITY OFFICES

12 Years of Job Increases Shown by Survey.

A statistical picture of the growth of bureaucracy in the city hall was made available to the council finance committee yesterday as city officials speeded up preparations for the making of the 1932 city budget.

John A. Richert, head of the finance committee's staff, prepared the statistics. They consist of a list of all jobs paid for from the corporate fund, as set up in the city budgets for the last twelve years, from 1920 to 1931, inclusive.

They show how department and bureau heads, by seeking an additional job here and there at each annual budget session, ran up the number of corporate fund jobs from 14,229 in 1920 to 18,261 in 1931.

Pay roll expenditures increased at an even greater rate during the twelve year period, according to the records. In 1920 pay roll expenditures from the corporate fund were given as $24,955,064, and in addition there was a $5,000,000 unclassified item, the major portion of which went for salaries.

In 1931, even after Mayor Cermak had instituted an economy campaign involving wholesale dismissals and pay cuts in the last eight months of the year, pay roll expenditures were $44,423,012. Even if the entire $5,000,000 unclassified item of 1920 were conceded to have gone for salaries, the 1931 pay roll expenditures showed a 48 per cent increase.

Pay Rolls Cut by Mayor.

Mayor Cermak has cut down the number of city jobs both by his refusal to fill vacancies as they occur, and by the abolition of positions, in which the council has concurred. There are now 265 vacancies in the police department, 92 in the fire department, and 460 in other civil service jobs, exclusive of laborers. More than 125 jobs have been abolished.

The number of corporate fund employés varies from day to day, but is probably less than 17,300 at present, as compared with the all time high of 19,280 set up by the former city administration in its 1929 budget.

Even the present figure, however, exceeds the 1920 total by 21 per cent. In addition the city has thousands of other workers on the pay rolls of the water and vehicle tax funds, public library, tuberculosis sanitarium, and other small funds.

Court Pay Rolls Increased.

The increase in jobs in some individual departments has been much greater. The Municipal court, whose judges fix the number of their employés independently of the council, has been particularly active in increasing its pay rolls, the records show.

The court had 412 employés in all its departments in the 1920 budget, and this number had risen to 772, an increase of 87 per cent, in the 1931 budget. The clerk of the court got 377 employés in 1931, double the 189 employés in that office in 1920. In the same period the pay rollers in the office of the court bailiff rose from 166 to 319, an increase of 92 per cent, and those in the chief justice's office from 26 to 39, a boost of 50 per cent.

In the 1920-1931 period the city clerk's employés rose from 28 to 83, and increase of 196 per cent. The license bureau, created in 1921 with 64 employés, had 188 in 1929 and 94 in 1931.

High Police Salaries Grow.

The police department personnel has increased from 5,016 in 1921 to a present strength of 6,439. This is an increase of 28 per cent, and the city's population has gained by almost the same percentage. But the number of police officers has shown a much greater increase. There were 27 captains in 1921 and 54, just twice as many, in 1931. The lieutenants' roster rose 73 per cent, from 83 to 144.

A similar increase of high salaried positions took place in the fire department. Although the total personnel increased only 17 per cent, the number of division marshals was increased from 5 to 15 and the number of battalion chiefs, who correspond in rank to police captains, from 33 to 57.

The statistics compiled by Mr. Richert reveal in the office of the building commissioner an example of the tendency of bureaucracy to cling to its employés after the condition for which the jobs were created has passed. This department's employés rose from 70 in 1920 to 140 in 1928 and 1929, when the building boom was at its height in the city. In the 1931 budget, with building practically at a standstill, the office got 125 jobs, an increase of 79 per cent over 1920. Employés in the department of electricity increased 70 per cent, from 420 to 721, during the twelve year period.

Health department employés numbered 716 in 1920. Even after 91 jobs were abolished in the department last summer, the 1931 total was 912, a 27 per cent increase over the 1920 figure.

The board of local improvements showed an increase of 35 per cent, from 258 to 349 employés. The sewer department had a 40 per cent increase. The department of public works had 2,550 jobs in 1920 and 2,876 in 1931. In 1928 the former city administration had 3,650 payrollers in this department.

Orders Report on Liabilities.

As another preliminary step to the 1932 budget making, Mayor Cermak yesterday ordered Controller Szymczak to prepare a report of all unpaid liabilities of the city, as well as the anticipated revenue from taxes for 1928, 1929, and 1930.

"When we get the report it is my prediction that we won't have fifty cents to spend this year where we had a dollar last year," Mayor Cermak said. "The debts of the city from last year are the first to be paid this year. That is mandatory. We can stall and bunk one another all we want, but in the long run the deficit from last year must be taken care of first.

HOLDUP GANG IS ROUTED.

Five bandits, armed with revolvers and shotguns, were routed when they tried to rob a Yellow Cab garage at 4950 Flournoy street early yesterday by Joseph Mozura, 1815 South 58th avenue, Cicero, the general manager, who fired nine shots at them.

Germany Cuts Government Costs Billion in Three Years

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 16.—Under the heavy pressure of the economic crisis the annual cost of governmental activities in Germany has been reduced by nearly $1,000,000,000 out of a total cost of nearly $3,000,000,000, and all in the last three disastrous years since the good times bubble broke and forced official budgeteers to end the crescendo of extravagant bureaucratic expenditures.

This revelation by Hermann R. Dietrich, minister of finance, has been made in conjunction with other figures which, experts maintain, show how, under compulsion of necessity, free and easy government bureaus can be cut.

Cut 12 Per Cent in Year.

During the course of this budget year just ending [1931-'32] the paring process was applied several successive times, so the final expenditures turned out to be approximately $250,000,000 less than the original "minimum" allotments. That is to say, the budget dwindled from $2,190,000,000 to $1,945,000,000—a dwindling of nearly 12 per cent in the course of a year, or 1 per cent per month.

For the current budget year the chief expenses of the federal government was divided as follows: To disabled veterans of the war, to widows, orphans of soldiers killed in service, etc., $384,000,000; to doles for the unemployed millions, $384,000,000; to service [capital and interest payments] on debts, $214,000,000; for external war obligations [reparations], $142,800,000.

These costs, about $1,250,000,000, represent by far the greatest part of the funds which the government believes itself able to extract from the shrinking economical structure of the nation. All other expenses of government, including officials' salaries and armaments, come from the remaining $428,400,000, and these expenses have been cut to pre-war totals.

Challenge Hitlerites.

Minister Dietrich flung in the very teeth of his critics, especially Hitlerites who have been loudest in telling what they would have done, the challenge to propose a better or more economical apportioning of the government's chief expenditures.

Hitlerites replied they would not have cut the allowances for jobless support so ruthlessly as did the Bruening government. Dietrich replied warmly that if the government were not obliged through the economic crisis to spend $785,400,000 annually on doles and welfare in keeping the many millions of jobless and their families alive the fiscal problem could quickly be solved.

Taxes Go in 4 Divisions.

First, the revenue is cut into four approximately equal parts: One-fourth goes for social burdens arising from the war, such as the disabled, widows, and orphans, and from the inflation, such as the destitute aged.

The second fourth is broken up into a million bits and constitutes the weekly doles for the unemployed.

The third fourth is spent on reparations and obligations growing out of the heavy public debt.

The last fourth goes for government expenses.

Framing the next German budget is going to be an exceedingly difficult task, according to financiers and fiscalists, for tax returns have been steadily dropping. The reductions in expenditures during the last year have been attempts to tone expenditures down to the dwindling income.

MRS. M'PHERSON RALLYING AFTER TRANSFUSION

Los Angeles, Cal., March 16.—[Special.]—The Rev. Mrs. Aimee McPherson Hutton, underwent a blood transfusion at Montesano sanitarium, Glendale, this morning and this afternoon was pronounced as resting comfortably. The transfusion was hurriedly ordered last night after a consultation of physicians, and was necessitated, according to the doctors' statement, by the evangelist's rundown condition resulting from overwork.

Drs. C. MacKenzie Jones and J. W. Howe performed the operation. They said Mrs. Hutton would remain in the sanitarium for five days or a week. Dr. Jones said that in addition to the blood transfusion, Mrs. Hutton was given an adrenalized solution to insure she received full benefit of the new blood.

The pint of blood pumped into Mrs. Hutton's veins was taken from Lester J. Haye, an assistant Y. M. C. A. secretary and physical instructor. The evangelist collapsed last Sunday after preaching two sermons.

SARGENT REPLIES TO CRITICISM OF ECONOMY PLANS

All Classes to Be Helped, Says Chairman.

Fred W. Sargent, president of the North Western railroad, elaborated yesterday upon the purpose of the newly formed committee to reduce the cost of government, which he heads.

FRED W. SARGENT. [Matzens Photo.]

"The sole purpose of the committee," said Mr. Sargent, "is to help reduce the costs of government and at the same time maintain the government on an honest, efficient and economical basis. The efforts of the committee will be directed as much to the relief of the small home owner and the laboring man as to any other class of people."

Replies to Labor Critics.

Referring to the criticisms of the committee by factions in the Federation of Labor, Mr. Sargent said:

"Our efforts will be as much in the interest of labor as of business. With the credit of our local governments destroyed and with constantly mounting taxes that consume the profits of business and individuals, there is little hope of a business revival which will increase employment and distribute income to employés generally in all lines of endeavor.

"From evidence disclosed last summer before the governor's tax conference, it is clear that enormous savings can be made in the cost of government in Cook county if the proper efforts are put forth. We have many public officers who are honest, efficient and sincere public servants and who are placing the welfare of the people above their own political future. Unfortunately this same statement cannot apply to all those charged with the responsibility of spending the taxpayers' money. There still exist gross extravagance and discouraging incompetency in many places.

"Only One Thing to Do."

"There is but one thing to do, and that is to reduce expenditures, even though such expenditures involve severe sacrifices. Salaries and wages have been cut in all private industries from 10 to 20 per cent. Why shouldn't they be reduced in public service as well?"

Mr. Sargent said his committee would seek the aid and coöperation of all organizations interested in good government at a reasonable cost.

401 PAY ROLLERS FIRED BY JACOBS TO BE PAID TODAY

The 401 employés of the assessors' office dismissed by Assessor J. L. Jacobs on March 10 will receive today their salaries from Dec. 1. The pay rollers of the former assessing administration will receive $313,516.

M. J. O'CONNOR.

The pay checks, made out by Assistant County Controller Michael O'Connor, have been subjected to the 15 per cent salary cut of the 1932 retrenchment budget. Of the total, $281,278 is for salaries, $13,039 for overtime, and $19,198 for motor maintenance for deputy assessors.

The total is in excess of the $291,000 alloted by the county board for the period from Dec. 1 to March 10. Assessor Jacobs said the excess of $22,516 will be met from funds voted for the remainder of the year.

Collects More 1930 Taxes.

The county treasurer yesterday collected $38,880 on 1930 personal property taxes, bringing the total paid on personalty for 1930 to $10,685,384, and $439,539 on real estate taxes, bringing the realty total to $4,031,154. The grand total of taxes collected for 1930 is $14,716,538.

Assessor Jacobs conferred with Gov. Emmerson yesterday. He reported he would be able to determine how his office would operate and when 1932 assessments would be completed after he had analyzed the work of the former administration. Jacobs was consulted on the apointment of one of the two members of the newly created board of appeals to be made by the governor. The other member will be named by President Emmett Whealan of the county board.

The thirty county town assessors were notified by Assessor Jacobs to meet in the county building on Saturday morning. They are to be instructed as to their duties and powers under the new legislation. The country town assessors are now considered deputy assessors and are subject to dismissal by Jacobs with other employés of the office.

Prepare Poll Officials Checks.

The county controller's office prepare checks for the 17,500 election judges and clerks, who worked at the registration. The workers should be paid Saturday. There is no money to meet the $319,000 pay roll, Assistant Controller O'Connor said, but the checks have been drawn on the possibility that the county treasurer may find funds.

An appeal from the order of Superior Judge Charles A. Williams directing the board of review to assess fifteen billions of dollars worth of personal property not now taxed was filed in the Supreme court.

ITALY URGES ALL INDUSTRIES TO UNITE IN TRUSTS

New Law Makes Control by State Greater.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, March 16.—Legal provision for compulsory establishment of trusts among all Italian industrial and commercial establishments was made today when the council of ministers adopted a law, drafted and submitted to it three weeks ago by the central corporative committee of the Fascist economic system.

Promulgation of the law will carry a step farther the tendency to amalgamate Italian production and distribution under state control and to limit competition. In the future if a majority of establishments in a given industry are interested, they may form a trust which all are then compelled to join. Afterward no newcomers may enter the field and no member of the trust may enlarge his establishment without the approval of the government and of the trust management.

Principle Already in Effect.

Previous to the passage of the present law this principle was already established on some other lines in Italy, as for instance, no one could open up a new retail shop without government consent.

Other conditions for the forming of compulsory trusts laid down in the law are essentially:

1. Corporate authorities must approve trusts from the viewpoint of national economy.
2. The state shall limit and supervise the functioning of trusts so formed.
3. The government shall have authority to revise or modify the rules of existing trusts.

Marble Trust in Difficulty.

So far the establishment of trusts has only been applied to the metallurgical and Carrara marble quarrying industries. The metallurgical trust is of recent and temporary duration and it appears that voluntary amalgamation of marble quarrying at Carrara has not proceeded smoothly, for the council of ministers today also conceded another six months' exemption from certain taxation levies in order to help the marble industry along.

St. Charles Contractor Kills Himself with Gun

Hans Jensen, 47 years old, well known building and paving contractor of St. Charles, shot and killed himself late Tuesday night. He had been grieving, friends said, because of the death in recent months of his eldest son, Willis.

CANAL DISTRICT RECOVERS $95,000 IN COURT FIGHT

The initial step in a test case to determine the financial liability of the sanitary district for the removal and replacement of private property or equipment which obstructs sewer construction was taken yesterday when Superior Judge Walter P. Steffen ruled that the costs for such work must be borne by the property owners.

The case, which was brought by the district against the Commonwealth Edison company, resulted in the recovery of $95,000 by the district, but the court ruling may open the way for the recovery of more than $1,000,000 already expended by the sanitary district in similar cases.

The case was begun in 1925 when the sanitary district encountered conduits of the electrical company while constructing the north shore intercepting sewer.

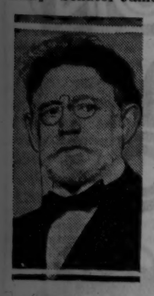
MAURICE L. ROTHSCHILD

MINNEAPOLIS — State at Jackson CHICAGO — ST. PAUL

LEWIS PROPOSES ABOLISHMENT OF DEPT. OF INTERIOR

Would Wipe Out Commerce Commission, Too.

Washington, D. C., March 16.—[Special.]—Senator James Hamilton Lewis, Chicago Democrat, in the senate today urged the abolition of the department of the interior and the consolidation or elimination of more than half a dozen bureaus and commissions, chief among which was the interstate commerce commission. Such activities of the department of the interior as were necessary, he said, could be consolidated with the department of agriculture.



SENATOR J. H. LEWIS.

In making the recommendations Mr. Lewis said he was going to practice what he had been preaching: the courage to come out and say that such and such a federal bureau ought to be abolished, rather than to beat around the bush of general governmental economies with pretty words that would never help balance the budget.

Would Halve Operating Cost.

He made these specific recommendations, he said, for two reasons. First, because they would just about halve the present operating expenses of the government. Second, they would answer his critics who recently charged that he was afraid to make specific suggestions, lest they "disturb those who, from the Wilson administration, are still holding jobs." He had previously charged the administration with a similar fear about its own jobholders who have a vote in the coming presidential election.

Senator Lewis' most drastic recommendation was that the interior department, no longer needed, he maintained, for the disposition of public lands, be consolidated with the agriculture department under the name of land department with a resultant removing from the pay roll of 15,000 employés and a saving of $15,000,000 a year.

Second, he urged the abolishment of the interstate commerce commission, "unfitted for both the needs and demands of commerce and the welfare of the general government." From 1922 to 1932, he pointed out, the commission expenses had exceeded $65,000,000.

Another 10 Million Saved.

Third, the shipping board he would transfer to the department of commerce, with an annual saving of $10,000,000.

Fourth, he advocated the abolishment of the bureau of Indian affairs, the geological survey, and the bureau of mines, as separate agencies, and their incorporation in the department of agriculture. Here, too, he would place the national park service.

His fifth recommendation was that the department of education, the federal institutions, and charitable hospitals be eliminated and that part of their duties which was retained be transferred to the department of commerce.

Would Eliminate Trade Board.

And his sixth suggestion was that the federal trade commission, "which has cost the government only lately more than ten millions of dollars and carrying more than 10,000 employés," should be treated as an agency that "no longer serves the usefulness but increases the expenditures through investigations which conclude no result of relief to the citizen."

He would abolish the commission, transferring its necessary prerogatives to the federal courts.

"I am proposing," Senator Lewis concluded, "that which would reduce expenses by one-half and leave the basis for further reductions to others."

IRELAND TO HOLD SOLEMN RITES FOR ST. PATRICK

DUBLIN, March 16.—(AP)—Irish Catholics will celebrate with solemn ceremonies tomorrow the 1,500th anniversary of the landing of St. Patrick on Erin's shores.

At Saul, County Down, on the mountain of Slieve Willin, 400 feet above the shore where in 432 A. D. the Emerald island's patron saint landed and commenced his missionary work, sod will be broken for a giant statue of St. Patrick and an altar in his honor.

The statue will rise high above the surrounding country and will be conspicuous for many miles, both by land and sea. Below it, but high upon the eminence, will be built a high altar at which mass can be celebrated in the presence of a great open air congregation.

The age-old custom of "drowning the shamrock" will be carried out in Irish homes only, public houses being closed this year as for many years past on St. Patrick's day.

Plane Takes Injured Veteran to Hospital

Roy Morgan, a world war veteran, who suffered a crushed spine and five broken ribs in an automobile accident three weeks ago, was taken in an airplane from Galesburg to the Hines Memorial hospital near Maywood yesterday. Physicians will determine whether an operation is necessary. Morgan was reported to be resting easily last night.

CHICAGO READY FOR ST. PATRICK DAY FESTIVITIES

Balls and Banquets on Program Tonight.

Chicago's Irish population was yesterday laying in a supply of green neckties and shamrocks and preparing for St. Patrick balls and banquets this evening.

The city hall will take a holiday with the exception of the offices of the city clerk and city collector. Mayor Cermak pointed out that many persons seeking to take out vehicle taxes or miscellaneous licenses should not be inconvenienced by closed offices.

Exhibit at Field Museum.

Those interested in Irish antiquities are invited to the Field museum, where reproductions of four shrines of St. Patrick and other pieces will be on exhibit. The exhibits are exact reproductions of the original shrines in Ireland and are elaborate examples of ancient Irish art in gold and silver, set with precious gems. There is a large collection of bells, ancient harps, artistic pins, buckles, gold ring money, horns, caskets, and other objects of art previous to the twelfth century.

The Garfield park conservatory will show living shamrocks that grow on the banks of the River Shannon. The display will include several plants that are substitutes as well as a group of plants raised from seed of the plants grown in Ireland.

More than 50,000 real shamrocks from Ireland, and a piece of the "ould sod" direct from the Emerald isle, have arrived in Chicago for the St. Patrick's day celebration tonight of the United Celtic-American societies at White City. There will be motion pictures showing Ireland of today and the places where the Eucharistic congress will be held in June.

Secretary Hurley to Speak.

Patrick J. Hurley, secretary of war, and United States Senator Otis F. Glenn are to speak at the banquet of the Irish Fellowship club in the ballroom of the Palmer house tonight. Joseph P. Savage, president of the club, will be toastmaster.

The Ancient Order of Hibernians in Chicago, founded here by Bishop Quarter in 1845, will hold its annual celebration in the Great Northern hotel tonight. There will be dancing and cards, and number of Irish and Irish-American entertainers will be present.

The sixth annual supper of the Harps, an Irish organization, will be given tonight at the Congress hotel. The affair is being directed by Edward H. Murphy and Thomas F. Dooley.

De Valera Victory Ball.

At the First Regiment armory, 16th street and Michigan avenue, a victory ball will be held honoring the elevation of Eamon de Valera to the presidency of Ireland. The American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic is sponsoring the event.

The chief religious celebration of the day will be at St. Patrick's church, Adams and Des Plaines streets, at 10:30 a. m., when high mass will be celebrated. The Very Rev. Francis V. Corcoran, president of De Paul university, will preach. The full vested choir of the church, joined by fifty altar boys wearing the gold embroidered green velvet cassocks worn only on St. Patrick's day, will give music under the direction of Dr. J. Lewis Browne.

At 2 p. m. today Eamon de Valera, new president of the Irish Free State, will deliver an address over station W-G-N. It will be brought by short wave over the Atlantic ocean by the Columbia Broadcasting system.

CONFIRM WILKERSON AND K. O. GANGS, PLEA OF RANDOLPH, LOESCH

Washington, D. C., March 16.—[Special.]—Confirm Chicago's judge, James H. Wilkerson as Circuit court judge and "free the judiciary of intimidation by gangsters," Frank J. Loesch, president of the Chicago crime commission, and Robert Isham Randolph, chairman of the Secret Six, today urged the senate, in a resolution to Senator Borah [Rep., Idaho], chairman of the judiciary submittee considering the nomination.

FRANK LOESCH.

Citing his "courageous action" in sending to prison Al Capone, Terry Druggan, Frankie Lake, and other "nationally known public enemies" the resolution contended that the American public feels that gangland, under cover, is opposing his confirmation.

"If organized criminals attempt to influence the senate," the resolution read, "in the confirmation of the appointment of an able and fearless judge, then no judge is free from intimidation and the federal bench is on notice that influence, not justice, is the chief consideration in the administration of law."

Later, on the floor of the senate, Senator Borah declared that there was no undue delay in passing on the nomination and pointed out that the committee had had to wait for witnesses on both sides. Right now, he said, the committee was waiting for the Chicago Bar association to get some final facts.

Senator Glenn [Rep., Ill.] declared that there had been no discriminating delay against Judge Wilkerson.

Bank Clerk Rings Alarm Bells; Foils Two Robbers

The peals of a burglar alarm yesterday frustrated the attempt of two bandits to hold up the Papanek-Kovac State bank, 886 Milwaukee avenue. The robbers, armed with a sawed-off shotgun and a revolver, entered the bank about 2 p. m. and ordered Sam Papanek, one of the directors, and four employés to throw up their hands. They obeyed, but one of the employés stepped on the alarm, which rings a bell on the front of the building and another in the Racine avenue police station, a few blocks away. The robbers fled without loot shortly before policemen reached the bank.

Once Upon a Time There Were Two Irishmen

"What are yez doing, Pat?" asks Mike. And Pat answers: "There's a hole in me sock and I'm turning it wrong side out, so's the darned hole won't show."

Maybe it was the sprig of shamrock we're wearing today in honor of March 17th that made us think of this old Irish story.

In our business we've been just as careful not to deceive ourselves as we have been not to deceive the public. Over and over again, we turn our business inside out, not to cover up the holes and flaws, but to reveal them if they're there. We know we're not perfect and that's why we keep striving.

We're in business to make easily available to the American public the kinds of food it wants at prices it can afford to pay. We appreciate any constructive criticism from our customers that will help us in our effort to realize this aim.

LIBERALS LASH DRYS WHO VOTED 'NO' IN CONGRESS

Charge Anti-Saloon Group Rules Yates.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Liberal candidates for congress redoubled their activities against congressional drys yesterday in the aftermath of the vote on the Beck-Linthicum resolution at Washington. Richard Yates, congressman at large, who was one of the seven Republicans from Illinois who voted against the resolution, was made a target by liberal opponents. Edward J. Hargrave, head of a secret service agency, who ran two years ago and is a candidate again in the April 12 primaries, declared that the anti-prohibition battle has now become a struggle for decent government.

"Prohibition, with social and governmental disturbances in its wake," said Hargrave, "is the greatest problem facing America today. Monday's vote in congress showed the awakening of consciousness among drys themselves to the destructive effects of prohibition on morals, law obedience, personal rights, liberty and good government.

Bowed to Drys.

"When he voted with the Anti-Saloon league bloc in congress Monday, Richard Yates voted against the public policy of Illinois as determined through popular referendum. He bowed to the dictatorship of the professional drys and ignored the expressed wishes of the people he was elected to represent."

At Lincoln Turner hall, Julius Klein, who ran third in Cook county for congressman-at-large in the primaries two years ago, and is again running, said:

"The roll call showed Richard Yates voted with the drys, against the expressed wishes of the people of Illinois whom he should represent. If dry candidates like Yates are nominated, the Republican party in Illinois is doomed, for no man is bigger than the will of the majority."

The 13 Republican candidates for congressman at large, two nominations to be made, include Stephen A. Day of Evanston, dripping wet; George E. Foss, former congressman from the 10th district, and State Senator Epler C. Mills of Virginia. Among them are several who are unknowns in politics. The Crusaders, militant anti-prohibition organization, is seeking to learn the views of all on the liquor question.

Michaelson Assailed.

Raymond J. Peacock, a liberal candidate in the 7th district Republican primaries against M. A. [Leaky Trunk] Michaelson, former congressman who voted for the Jones 5 and 10 law and is now on the wet side, ripped into his opponent, saying "his logic is as leaky as his trunk."

"How a man can vote for the Jones 5 and 10 law and then claim to be a wet is an insult to the intelligence of the voters," said Peacock. "The Jones law is the dryest of the dry laws. As an amendment to the Volstead act it appropriated almost $3,000,000 to strengthen prohibition enforcement. And worse, it increased the penalties to violators beyond all reason or proportion.

"A vote for this law was a vote of cruelty. By overlooking this vote and now declaring himself a wet, Michaelson shows his logic is like his trunk, leaky."

Five other Republican candidates are in the 7th. Meyer Fink, who is out with a truck broadcasting his own phonograph speeches assailing dry voting, wet drinking congressmen, and Jacob Bass, Horace H. Brock, Charles L. Wiley, the Legionnaire who went to the defense of his janitor who was arrested for making a little home brew for a Legion party, and John F. Donarski, a Legionnaire, who is personally dry but is against prohibition and for modification.

Hot Legislative Fight.

A hot legislative fight is in progress in the Seventh senatorial district, which girdles Chicago and embraces most of the country towns. William McGee James [Rep.] of Wilmette has been brought out for the legislature by 300 north shore residents who asked him to run. The New Trier township committee is backing him. Mr. James, who is 31, served overseas and has been on the faculty of the Chicago Kent College of Law for seven years. He is for fair taxation, reduction of governmental expenditures, reapportionment, the short ballot, and on prohibition he takes a liberal stand. He says that while personally dry he takes the stand that inasmuch as the district voted wet two to one two years ago its representatives are under a moral obligation to vote for repeal of the Illinois search and seizure act as a mandate of the people.

The district is the home of Mrs. Anna Wilmarth Ickes of Winnetka, one of the five Cook county members of the house who voted against the repeal of the search and seizure act last winter. She is ending her second term with a record that is marked by the Legislative Voters' league as "excellent."

The other Republican member, Frank E. Foster, lives in Harvey at the other end of the county. Ten other Republican candidates are entered, among them Joseph E. Okraj of Calumet City, protégé of John Jarnowski, former county commissioner, and it already looks like a hot battle.

Connelly vs. Metzger.

The fight over Republican committeemen from the 8th became rather feverish last night. Michael J. Connelly, indorsed by the Deneen group, is running against Andrew C. Metzger, former county commissioner and now state grain inspector in place of George Hitzman. Connelly has the active support of District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson, State's Attorney John A. Swanson, Judge William E. Helander, and Harry Olson, former chief justice of the Municipal court. Mr. Connelly, who has lived in the ward 42 years, was president of the Park Manor Improvement association and was founder and president of the South Side Federation of Improvement Associations.

Connelly was chief clerk of the municipal court, 2d district, for 12 years. Others who filed for committeeman were Daniel P. King and Joseph E. MacLoane. At a meeting at Connelly headquarters last night speakers were Harry Hoff, Jacob Allen, Elmer Walsh, and Judge Helander.

Judge Horner's Prohibition Stand Cheered in Quincy

Quincy, Ill., March 16.—[Special.]—Adams county Democrats turned out to welcome Judge Henry Horner, Democratic candidate for governor, and his party here tonight. The Horner caravan, completing the tenth day of its campaign swing through the state, arrived here shortly after 6 o'clock this evening, having stopped en route for meetings at Winchester and Pittsfield, where Judge Horner and his fellow candidates made addresses.

But it was in this city that the Horner sentiment was especially conspicuous. News of Horner's uncompromising stand on the prohibition issue in his speeches all over the state, in wet and dry territory alike, had preceded him here, and this city showed its approval of his outspoken attitude in no uncertain manner.

Met by Escort.

The Horner party was met at the outskirts of the city by an automobile escort headed by Democratic County Chairman A. A. Hutmacher and former Mayor Frank Jasper, and escorted to the Lincoln-Douglas hotel, where the lobby was crowded with prominent Democrats waiting to greet Judge Horner and the other candidates in the party. After dinner Judge Horner spoke to an audience in the courthouse, which showed its approval of the candidate and his policies by frequent and prolonged bursts of applause.

Horner won the crowd at the outset by his announcement that, regardless of the "discreet silence" of some of his opponents on the prohibition question in dry localities, he refused to pussyfoot on the liquor question anywhere.

"While my position on prohibition may not agree with the views held by some of the audiences I have addressed through some thirty counties downstate," he said, "I deem it unfair to those who disagree with me to remain silent on this question. All of the voters are entitled to know the views of all the candidates on every question that affects the welfare and happiness of the people of the state, and anything less than complete frankness on my part would seem to me to be playing false with the citizens while seeking their support. In every county in my present tour of southern Illinois, be it politically wet or politically dry, I have stated my position clearly, regardless of any possible effect on my candidacy.

For State Control.

"I am opposed to federal prohibition as the greatest enemy of true temperance and I am for a return to the states of their constitutional powers to regulate the habits, manners and customs of their citizens as those citizens shall direct."

Horner attacked the attempts of his primary opponents to create antagonism between Cook county and the downstate sections as a means of making political capital.

"Too long," he said, "have the people of this state been beguiled into a false view of their responsibilities by demagogic appeals to sectional prejudices in an attempt to divide the democracy of Illinois."

"The time has arrived when every section of our great commonwealth must be welded into a fellowship of citizens on a basis of fairness to all and injustice to none."

The Horner party was escorted into Winchester this noon by an auto parade composed of 50 Spanish-American war veterans headed by former Mayor Frank Jasper. The veterans continued to accompany the party into Quincy after the stop here.

Campbell at Galesburg.

Galesburg, Ill., March 16.—Declaring that "it is really Tony Cermak who is running for governor and not Judge Horner," Bruce Campbell of East St. Louis devoted the greater part of an hour's address here this afternoon to attacking what he called the attempt by the Chicago mayor to dictate Democratic state nominees. "Cermak didn't want to quit being mayor now, so he delegated Horner to run for governor," Campbell said. He referred sarcastically to explanations of the Chicago slate makers regarding their candidates and said he owes no one any allegiance.

Appealing to the downstate voters to stand together in his support, Campbell declared that "we have them divided; there are seven of them up there, and now is the time to show them that downstate is a part of Illinois."

100,000 VOTE GAIN CLAIMED BY DEMOCRATS

Tuesday's registration, in which 231,704 names were added to the rolls, two-thirds of which are expected to be struck off by revision Saturday, was acclaimed by the Democrats yesterday as favoring their party. Mayor Cermak and other chiefs addressed a luncheon meeting at the Sherman hotel, attended by 500. Patrick A. Nash, county chairman, analyzing the figures, said:

"We gained 100,000 votes for the Democratic candidates. Revision will about wipe out Tuesday's additional registration, but of the 232,000 names put on the books 175,000 are Democrats or Republicans who will vote in the Democratic primary, their legal disqualifications having disappeared."

A. L. Williams, Igoe candidate for committeeman in the 2nd ward, charged last night that a large number of floaters had registered Tuesday, who will be wiped off the books Saturday.

CONGRESS WILL BE WET IN YEAR, SENATOR SAYS

Paterson, N. J., March 16.—(AP)—Senator W. Warren Barbour [Rep., N. J.] tonight predicted that congress will be "wet within a year."

Speaking before the Passaic Republican county committee, he called the recent house vote on prohibition a "marvelous achievement," adding, "It is certain the people of the United States are becoming sick and tired of this obnoxious law."

Referring to taxes that would follow repeal of the 18th amendment, he said: "I cannot see how any one can be so blind as not to see that prohibition is standing defiantly in the way of the times when we can balance our budgets by a change."

FALL FATAL TO EVANSTON MAN.

William McFarlane, 82 years old, 707 Reba place, Evanston, died yesterday in the St. Francis hospital of injuries suffered on March 9 when he fell on an icy sidewalk.

IGOE DEFEATED FOR AUDITOR OF PARK COMMISSION

EDW. J. KELLY. [Smith Photo.]

Michael L. Igoe, independent Democratic candidate for governor and a south park commissioner, was defeated for re-election as auditor of the park board yesterday. Commissioner Philip S. Graver, a Republican, was chosen in his stead The board consists of three Democrats and two Republicans. Graver's election was the result of the support of Edward J. Kelly and Benjamin F. Lindheimer, Democrats. Igoe's name was placed in nomination by John Bain, indicted head of the defunct bank chain, the other Republican commissioner.

Other officers chosen were elected unanimously, Mr. Kelly being renamed president; Mr. Lindheimer, vice president; George Donoghue, superintendent, and George E. Gorman, attorney. Frank Newhall is the new treasurer and Fred C. Franke the controller.

Milton E. Connolly, the board secretary, was not reëlected, the commission postponing action on his post for thirty days. Connelly was sponsored by Igoe and is one of the latter's supporters in his race for the nomination for governor.

Mr. Igoe withdrew from the race for auditor after it became apparent, it was said, that Mr. Graver would have the support of the other Democrats.

To take off fat easily, SAFELY and HARMLESSLY—take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—cut down on pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes—it is the safe way to lose unsightly fat, and one bottle that lasts 4 weeks costs but a trifle. Get it at any drugstore in America. If this first bottle fails to convince you this is the safest way to lose fat—money back.

But be sure to get Kruschen Salts—imitations are numerous and you must safeguard your health.

Kidney Acidity

Thousands of men and women past 40, and many far younger, often feel run-down and years older than they are by neglecting to use the right medicines for such conditions as Getting Up Nights, Backache, Leg Pains, Nervousness, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Sore Joints, Circles Under Eyes, Headaches, Burning, Smarting and Bladder Weakness, caused by functional Kidney inactivity and excess Acidity.

To combat these conditions you really need two different kinds of medicine, because you need two results in fighting these troubles. First, you need a medicine to act as a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys, to help them in their function of filtering and purifying the blood, thus reducing acidity. Second, you need another medicine to soothe and heal irritation and give nature a chance.

These two special kinds of medicine, known as Cystex, now may be had from your druggist under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. They are in tasteless tablet form, easy to take, and pleasant to young or old, yet work so fast they start circulating through the system in 11 minutes. Sufferers say they begin to feel marked improvement in 24 hours.

Your own druggist—the man you know is reliable—can tell you that these are established facts, and that Cystex (pronounced Siss-tex) is a splendid medicine, containing purest ingredients, which have proved a blessing to many of his customers.

This much is certain: If Cystex makes you feel years younger and stronger by combating these conditions, the small cost of 75c is a trifle, but if not completely satisfied, merely return the empty package and get your money back. Why suffer from delay and neglect? The Guarantee protects you. Get Cystex from your druggist today.

in German script and the word "gut" in place of good.

When Mrs. Lightfoot first reported the disappearance of her servants immediately after the kidnaping she said that she had seen her butler on the night of the crime in conversation with the driver of an automobile bearing New York license tags outside her home.

It was not until much later after newspapers had appeared with detailed accounts of the investigation she discovered that the wood and chisel were missing from her place, which is 28 miles from Hopewell.

While the German servant angle was creating lively interest, another story was also engaging police attention. This had to do with a third nurse maid, Miss Annette Copin, who attended the Lindbergh baby for a three months period.

The police did not admit Miss Copin's part in the household until the girl's mother made the revelation.

These activities, centering about the New Jersey district, lent support to a statement credited to "a family friend" that Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh had not established contact of any kind with the kidnapers of their son.

The Jersey police admitted last night that the story told by Charles Oliver, Welfare Island prisoner, about a jail-born plot to steal the Lindbergh baby appeared to be of little real value. Mrs. Catherine Danusek, taken into custody on Oliver's story, was released, but Gleason was still held.

Other clews faded as quickly. Stanley G. Crandall, paroled convict, convicted of kidnaping a child in 1923, was definitely cleared of all suspicion.

Accused of writing two letters to Col. Lindbergh demanding $50,000 ransom, Oscar Searchrist, 33, was arrested in Bristol, Pa., and held without bail.

Baby Suspect Held in Iowa.

Creston, Ia., March 16.—(AP)—Local authorities tonight wired to New Jersey a description of a baby said to resemble Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., found late today at a local hotel with a woman who gave her name as Mrs. Florence Bayn of Arizona.

OHIO ABDUCTOR GETS LIFE TERM WITHOUT PAROLE

DOWELL HARGRAVES.

Warren, O., March 16.—[Special.]—Dowell Hargraves, 31, Youngstown gangster, will spend the rest of his life in the Ohio penitentiary without hope of parole, unless an appeal to a higher court succeeds, for kidnaping James De Jute Jr., 11 year old son of a well to do Niles contractor, two weeks ago.

Hargraves was found guilty of abducting the boy for ransom today by Judge Lynn B. Griffith, who ignored a plea for mercy and called kidnaping "the most cruel and heartless" crime.

Refuses to Betray Companions.

There had been considerable speculation as to the outcome of the trial since no one had positively identified Hargraves as the actual kidnaper. This morning he was led before Judge Griffith, who said:

"It is understood that you have refused to name those who were associated with you in the crime. Do you now want to state the names of these persons or say anything else why sentence should not be pronounced."

Hargraves raised his head and said: "No sir." Judge Griffith then pronounced sentence. Hargraves' face twitched as the decision was read, but he made no comment.

Judge Griffith held that intent to extort was shown. To the question, "You don't deny it was for ransom?" Hargraves asked Agent T. R. McConnell, "What are these things usually done for?" His statement that his buddy left Friday night to go to Youngstown to get in touch with De Jute Sr., and a further statement that no agreement had been made about a split were cited by the judge.

The court declared the defendant, by not taking the witness stand and testifying in his own behalf, thus failed to deny or explain testimony against him and that the testimony therefore must be taken as the truth.

Judge Assails Kidnaping.

"Kidnaping is an offense that is becoming all too prevalent in its occurrence throughout the land in recent months," Judge Griffith said. "Kidnaping is one of the most cruel and heartless crimes in the calendar. It strikes a blow at the tenderest and most sacred affections of the human heart and is usually resorted to for revenge or extortion.

"In ancient Jewish and civil law the crime was punishable by death and in common law by fine, imprisonment, and the pillory. The punishment when meted out should be exemplary. The court does not find in this case any reason for mercy and mercy is therefore withheld."

SANITARY RACE FANS CROWE AND DENEEN RIVALRY

Both Republican Bosses Enter Tickets.

The long standing political rivalry between former Senator Deneen and former State's Attorney Crowe is being emphasized daily, as the primary date draws closer, in the fight for three seats on the board of the sanitary district whose incumbents are up for reelection.

The Republican slates hold the interest because the trustees whose terms expire—J. L. Friedman, John J. Touhy, and Ross A. Woodhull—are Democrats and have received the organization's support in their fight for renomination, which is considered tantamount to victory. The real fight thus comes in the rival Republican camps.

Ex-Alderman in Race.

The Deneen candidates are Allan Healy, son of the former state's attorney, John J. Healy; former Alderman Guy Guernsey, and Paul Willis, retired south side business man. The Crowe-Harding combine is backing two real estate men, A. W. Komarek of Riverside and Henry Nowak of the south side, and Paul W. Rothenburg, former deputy coroner and at present a west park division superintendent.

Mr. Healy, an Evanston resident, is counting heavily on north side support and is campaigning every night. He was born 29 years ago today. Now associated with his father's law firm, Deneen, Healy & Lee, he was for two years an assistant to United States Attorney Johnson. He took part in important federal prosecutions, including those which sent former Alderman Titus A. Haffa and Virgil Litzinger to Leavenworth. His speeches reflect the demand for new party blood and for a young Republican movement already given impetus downstate.

Healy a Gridiron Star.

A graduate of Williams college and Harvard Law school, Mr. Healy has a college football record which includes the captaincy of the Williams team. He is a licensed airplane pilot.

Both Mr. Guernsey and Mr. Willis are emphasizing the necessity of careful supervision in the next six years of the $150,000,000 which the sanitary district must spend for sewage treatment plants. Part of Mr. Healy's appeal is that his generation will have to pay the bonds for these improvements, and therefore must guard against waste and graft.

Of the Crowe-Harding selections, Mr. Komarek until recently was connected with the real estate department of the sanitary district. Mr. Nowak lives at 3223 Emerald avenue in the 11th ward, and Mr. Rothenberg, a deputy under former Coroner Oscar Wolff, holds his west park job by virtue of appointment from the Emmerson state administration.

Warming up to the job of replying to attacks by Judge Michael Feinberg, State's Attorney Swanson issued a statement yesterday on his prosecutions of culpable officials of defunct banks.

"Interested in Action."

"I know that the people of Cook county are interested in action, not words," he said. "When I am through with dishonest bankers the public will be satisfied with the results. Already through my prosecutions bankers' row in Joliet has new residents.

"Eight crooked bankers have already been found guilty of criminal acts, four are now in prison, two are fugitives from justice. The others are awaiting either trial or sentence. More than $1,000,000 has been recovered for depositors. More millions are in process of collection.

"Certain of my opponents have in a general way attacked bankers and bond and mortgage houses on the unfair assumption that they were all guilty of some criminality. It is not fair to blaspheme or attack a man who is a victim of circumstances over which he alone has no control. My actions against bankers have been upon legal grounds."

WATERLOO RELICS ON SALE BY DUKE OF WELLINGTON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 16.—The duke of Wellington is selling the historic "peninsula tiara," other jewels valued at £1,500,000 [about $5,445,000 at current exchange], and relics of the Napoleonic wars to raise funds.

The French government is negotiating privately for Napoleon's effects, including some weapons and camp furniture left on the battle field of Waterloo. These articles are now stored in the Waterloo gallery of Apsley house, Wellington's home in London. The relics are valued at £250,000 [about $907,500]. The tiara was presented to the original duke of Wellington by Spain and Portugal for their delivery from Napoleon.

The present duke of Wellington is the fourth of the line, being a brother of the third duke and a grandson of the original hero of Waterloo. The fourth duke is a son of Maj. Gen. Charles Wellesley, and before his succession was Arthur Charles Wellesley.

POLITICAL SIGNS FLOUTING LAW ON POLES IN LOOP

Inquiry Is Started by Allman.

Hundreds of political posters glued to trolley line poles and traffic light posts in the loop in open violation of the law, attracted the attention yesterday of Police Commissioner Allman, who said he would take steps to have the signs removed.

Whether the persons responsible for the posting of the signs will be prosecuted, the commissioner would not reveal until he had completed an investigation. A city ordinance provides a fine of $10 to $200 for each offense against the law prohibiting the posting of such notices.

Many on Randolph Street.

In Randolph street, from Wabash avenue to Wells street, not a post could be found yesterday that was not plentifully adorned with posters extolling the virtues of certain candidates.

The posters were also noted on all other streets in the loop, although most of them were concentrated in the northern section. In Jackson boulevard, a number of signs had been posted but these have been removed.

Many Political Unknowns.

There were a number of posters carrying notice of the candidacy of Harry F. Hamlin for Municipal court judge. Most of the others carried the names of candidates whose names are not well known in politics, including Paul E. Arnold, Republican candidate for secretary of state; James R. O'Leary, Democratic candidate for clerk of the Supreme court, and M. Duke Kaufman, Democratic candidate for judge of the Municipal court.

The ordinance concerning posting bills reads in part that "it shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to post, stick . . . any notice, placard, bill, poster . . . to any lamp post, electric light, telephone or trolley line post."

Petition for a Rehearing Filed for Leo Brothers

A petition for a rehearing in the case of Leo Brothers, who was convicted and sentenced to fourteen years in the penitentiary for the murder of Alfred Lingle, was filed yesterday in the State Supreme court. The reviewing court at the last term affirmed the conviction, returned by a jury in Judge Joseph Sabath's criminal court.

Brothers was taken to the penitentiary last week after Warden David Moneypenny received the mandate from the Supreme court.

PRIMARY BALLOT CONTRACT CUTS COST 83 PER CENT

County Judge E. K. Jarecki awarded the contract for printing the ballots for the April 12 primary yesterday to the Chicago Printers, Inc., lowest of eight bidders. The estimate was $5.50 per thousand, which is about one-sixth the cost of the ballots in 1928, according to John Rusch, chief clerk of the election board. He said the cost four years ago was $34.85 per thousand, although the ballots were smaller than for 1932. This year's price represents approximately an 83 per cent cut in the cost. The cash cost of the 3,680,000 official and specimen ballots is figured at $20,240. The ballots will be 12 by 34 inches, as compared with 1928 when they were 12 by 25 inches.

BE READY FOR BIG 'EVENTS,' JAPAN ARMY IS WARNED

Trouble Expected Soon, Commander Says.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

SHANGHAI, March 17. — [Thursday.] — Gen Yoshinori Shirakawa, commander in chief of the Japanese expeditionary force in China, in a farewell message yesterday to two divisions of his troops who will soon sail for home, said:

"The conditions at home and abroad are increasing in difficulty daily and the responsibility which the imperial troops face in these circumstances is mounting gradually. Under these conditions, upon returning home you must train yourselves sufficiently to be ready to rally to the call immediately when things happen."

Tells of Jap "Sacrifices."

Gen. Shirakawa's spokesman also gave out a statement asserting that the Japanese throughout the entire conflict with the Chinese had attempted to protect the international settlement of Shanghai from the shock of the hostilities and insisting that the entire Japanese army was landed at Woosung and other places outside of the settlement.

Thousands of residents here witnessed the disembarkation of the major part of the Japanese army at wharves within the settlement. The Japanese spokesman ended with this sentence:

"The Japanese army hopes its sacrificial efforts to save the settlement from gunfire is appreciated by all."

Claim Chinese Fire on Planes.

Japanese observation planes which flew over the Chinese lines yesterday reported that the Chinese had fired machine guns at them, but did not say whether the fire was returned.

The Japanese today announced their intention to fly a balloon over "certain centers" soon and notified the Chinese that this was not intended as a hostile action, but was designed merely for observation of Chinese movements.

Japs Hold Sham War.

SHANGHAI, March 16. — (AP) — Japan's victorious army fought part of the battle of Shanghai all over again today, but this time it was a sham action.

The troops that drove the Chinese out of Miaohungchen with artillery shells, airplane bombs, and rifle bullets routed an imaginary enemy for the benefit of Japanese military authorities and a few foreign observers. The rattle of machine guns aroused Chinese in the vicinity, but they soon learned that it did not mean a resumption of hostilities.

Jap Political Crisis Grows.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

TOKIO, March 16. — Frustration today by a strong section of the Seiyukai [government] party of plans for the reconstruction of the cabinet by appointment of Kisaburo Suzuki, minister of justice, as home minister today proved another symptom of the political disunity which is causing a widespread belief in Japan that unless a strong government can restore the prestige of the parliamentary system Japan is on the brink of a military Fascist régime.

In order to hold in check the strife within the Seiyukai party, Premier Inukai himself assumed temporarily the post from which Tokuguro Nakahashi resigned yesterday.

Constitution Breaks Down.

Japan has come to realize that something approaching a constitutional breakdown has occurred. First, the army utilized its privileged position to take the Manchurian policy under its wing. Then political intrigue, with financial motives in the background, overthrew the cabinet while the diet was not sitting and the government majority was theoretically intact. Next, the navy took the initiative in Shanghai with unexpected consequences.

The net result of the army-navy diplomacy is that Japan is completely isolated for the first time in modern history. Patriotism has prevented the utterance of a word revealing disapproval of these impetuous proceedings, but many influential Japanese have been profoundly disquieted by the rush of events.

Change Name of Changchun.

CHANGCHUN, Manchuria, March 16.—(AP)—The name of Changchun, capital of the new Manchurian federated state, is to be changed to "Sinking," which means "new capital," the government of Dictator Henry Pu-Yi decided today.

The new régime, it was understood, has decided to appoint several foreigners to official positions, regardless of race, and it was expected these would be mostly Japanese and White Russians, although Americans and Europeans would also be eligible.

Moscow Delays Recognition.

MOSCOW, March 16.—(AP)—Reports from Tokio that the soviet government was about to extend recognition to the new government of Manchuria were authoritatively denied today. It was asserted that this government's Manchurian policy has not been formulated. The complications which surround the situation in Manchuria make it likely that formal steps toward recognition will be taken slowly.

Pile Sufferers

Can You Answer These Questions?

Do you know why external remedies do not give quick and permanent relief?

Why cutting does not remove the cause?

Do you know the cause of Piles is internal?

That there is congestion of blood in the lower bowel—the veins flabby, the parts almost dead?

Do you know that there is a harmless internal remedy for piles discovered by Dr. Leonhardt and known as HEM-ROID that is guaranteed?

HEM-ROID banishes piles by removing the cause. It stimulates the circulation in the lower bowel—drives out the thick impure blood, heals and restores the affected parts.

Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID has an almost unbelievable record of success right in this city. So why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation when—Walgreen's invite every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID with guarantee of money-back if it does not end their Piles no matter how stubborn the case.

GERMANY FINDS FLAWS IN FRENCH DANUBIAN PLAN

Reich Insists Scheme Is Too Limited.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 16.—Germany's dissatisfaction with the efforts of the French government to form an economic union of southeastern European nations is expressed today in a note to Premier Andre Tardieu of France.

ANDRE TARDIEU.
[P. Thompson Photo]

The German reply stressed the point that the Danubian countries can only be helped by facilitating the sale of their products. In Germany's opinion that can be most rapidly accomplished by a preferential purchase of these products, whereas the French plan for economic support of the Danubian countries would take a half year to materialize.

Need Bigger Sales Area.

"The German government considers the best solution to be the creation of an economic area large enough to insure the sale of surplus agricultural products of the southeastern European agricultural countries," the note said. "This goal cannot be reached through a combination of the Danubian countries such as France proposes. Such a limitation also would threaten a serious contraction of Germany's labor market."

The German communication made it clear that Germany considers that Bulgaria should be included in the plan.

Italians Keep Up Resistance.

GENEVA, March 16. — Premier Andre Tardieu's conversations with Señor de Micuelis, Mussolini's envoy here, today ran against continued Italian opposition to his plan for a customs readjustment to revivify the Danubian states.

He explained that the plan, on which he said Great Britain and France have agreed, would be entirely economic and nonpolitical.

Tardieu suggested that the Danubian countries meet in a five power conference without the big powers. Italy, however, desires participation of the big powers. The Danubian countries would then work out a customs round robin based on preferential tariffs, according to the French plan, and then would put in order their finances and administrations. Help would possibly be forthcoming, Tardieu said, in the form of an international loan under the auspices of the league of nations.

DISARM PARLEY ADMITS FUTILITY; TAKES VACATION

Envoys Promise "Action" After April 11.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, March 16.—Delegates to the international disarmament conference, adjourning to all intents, today admitted their futility in the last six weeks, but loudly pledged themselves to buck up after the Easter recess.

So they extended the recess only a modest week over the two that had been planned. They will disband technically on Saturday and will return on April 11 instead of April 2.

Those who wanted to extend their relief until May were in a difficult position, fearing to speak out today. The French did protest the loudest.

Tardieu Makes Election Speech.

Andre Tardieu, French premier, making apparently his first speech in the French electoral campaign, said that France has been right on the job all the while but that some change of method is necessary. He energetically declared that the conference must absolutely go faster the next time.

Moreover, the commissions will have to quit playing tennis with projects, he said. He referred to the agility with which the general and air commissions have tossed to each other the French plan for internationalization because nobody, including the French, wanted a showdown.

Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson, American delegate, told the delegates they would have to work night and day on basic principles when they come back. He made a concrete proposal that the general and political commissions sit without interruption from April 11 until they have made enough decisions to enable the technical commissions to function.

See Little Hope for Action.

All the delegates thought Ambassador Gibson's plan for holding them to their pledges was a great step. Nevertheless, it is difficult to see what, save oratory, can be accomplished until after the French elections.

The marquess of Londonderry allbied by saying that a great conference's decisions could not be taken immediately. A Spaniard alibied that you sometimes have to go slow to go fast, while Paul Hymans, Belgian foreign minister, observed that public opinion would understand that up to now the conference had been deciding upon methods.

Maxim Litvinov, Russian foreign commissar, did not want any vacation. Arthur Henderson, president of the conference, said that the interruption for the meeting of the league assembly to handle the Chinese-Japanese war was to blame, but that the conference has done good work anyway.

Couple Using Children to Beg Get Year in Jail

Floyd Knapp, 28 years old, and his wife, Cora, 23 years old, who used their five small children for begging in the loop, were sentenced to a year in the House of Correction and fined $100 by Judge Joseph A. Graber yesterday. Judge Graber said the parents were shiftless and utterly unfit to care for the children. While the Knapps serve out their jail term, the children will be cared for by the county. Judge Graber was told that Mrs. Knapp carried her 6 month old baby, while the others, who are from 3 to 9 years old, begged from passers-by. It was estimated that the family took in about $40 a day.

Wife Sues for a Divorce from Dr. Thomas A. Baird

Dr. Thomas A. Baird, 211 East Chestnut street, a gold coast physician, was sued for divorce yesterday in the Superior court by his wife, Mrs. Edna A. Baird of Cleveland. The bill asked an injunction to restrain the physician from selling the household furniture or concealing his property. Mrs. Baird charged cruelty, citing several alleged acts which occurred shortly before their separation last Jan. 12. She alleged that her husband's income exceeded $12,000 annually.

MOVIE CASHIER ROBBED.

2 FOUND SLAIN ON ROOF; BOUND AND STRANGLED

Murders Are Charged to Gangsters.

New York, March 16.—[Special.]—The bodies of two men who had been strangled by heavy clotheslines were found today on the roof of a six story tenement house in Thompson street. They were identified through fingerprints as Gerard Vernotico, 28 years old, and Antonio Lonzo, 33.

Vernotico, the police said, had a record dating back to 1917, when he was charged with vagrancy. He was discharged in a burglary case in 1920 and was released on a grand larceny charge last April. An assault and robbery case was pending against him. Lonzo, who also was known as Lonza, was arrested with Vernotico in the grand larceny case, it appeared.

Physicians said the two men had been dead several hours and probably had been stunned by blows on the head before the ropes were applied.

Follow Trail of Blood.

A trail of blood led officials to the third floor of the adjoining building in a two room apartment in which the shades had been pulled down. They said they found more bloodstains, a burlap bag, a quantity of burned paper in the sink, and a short iron crowbar.

It was believed that after the men had been lured to the apartment on the pretext of settling some deal, probably in a petty racket, they had been beaten, slain and carried to the adjoining roof.

A witness whose name the police would not reveal was said to have heard sounds of a scuffle in the third floor apartment early in the morning.

Woman, Daughter Slain.

Up in Yonkers, Mrs. Margaret Nunes and her daughter, Marie, 14, were found strangled. The woman's husband, Alexander, was arrested. He admitted the double murder, according to the police. A short time ago Mrs. Nunes caused her husband's arrest on the charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated. Nunes gave no explanation of the motive for the murders.

VOTE WET IN POLL IN HOME CITIES OF HOOVER, HENRY FORD

New York, March 16.—[Special.]—The dry opinions of President Hoover and Henry Ford don't count for much in their respective home towns, according to returns in the current prohibition poll by the Literary Digest. Figures released today show Palo Alto, Cal., voted 445 to 275 in favor of repeal, while Dearborn, Mich., polled wet by more than five to one. Of the ten cities reported only Conway, Ark., voted dry. The figures:

City—	Dry.	Wet.
Palo Alto, Cal.	275	445

Ends Life in Leap Out of Loop Hotel Window

Leaping from the twelfth floor of the Great Northern hotel, Matthew G. Bates, 75 years old, 9222 South Bishop street, was killed yesterday afternoon. His body struck a skylight in a courtway. According to information gathered by the coroner, Bates had been despondent over his inability to find work because of his advanced age. A son was summoned to take charge of the body. Bates, until recently, had been employed for many years in the Washington Shirt company store in the basement of the hotel and was known to many of the employés and residents of the hotel.

Historic Vienna Hotel Goes Into Receivership

VIENNA, March 16.—(AP)—The historic Sacher hotel and restaurant, once a center of the life of the aristocracy of Austria and Hungary and familiar to thousands of tourists, today filed a petition for receivership. World depression, poverty of the restaurant's former wealthy patrons, and the death two years ago of Mme. Sacher were given as reasons.

CLEMENTI JAILED PENDING RULING IN THEFT CASE

Judge Orders Two Defendants Seized.

Patsy Clementi, alleged "42" gang hoodlum who has asserted that he can "fix any rap," and his co-defendant on charges of stealing an automobile, George Price, were arrested yesterday afternoon on the order of Judge John Prystalski in the Criminal court. They were seized at the conclusion of their bench trial on the automobile charge before Judge Prystalski.

PATSY CLEMENTI.

"I want to be sure they will be in court on Friday when I give my decision," said Judge Prystalski. "Of course, I don't want this action misunderstood. I haven't decided the case yet."

The bonds of Clementi and Price were raised from $5,000 to $10,000 each and the men, looking sourly upon the court, were led to the county jail.

Hunt Wife of Theft Victim.

The last day of the trial was spent mainly in a search for Mrs. Olive Follett, 6529 Kenwood avenue, wife of Roy Follett, whose car was stolen. Follett, the complaining witness, announced on Tuesday that he did not want to prosecute the men or see them go to prison.

Mrs. Follett had been given by her husband the automobile to use on the day it was stolen, Jan. 13. Follett had said that he did not know anything about the theft, and the prosecution needed Mrs. Follett's testimony to complete its case.

Attorney George Crane, who represented Clementi, had refused to stipulate Mrs. Follett's testimony. At 3 p. m. yesterday, after state's attorneys' detectives reported that they could not find her, Mrs. Follett walked into the courtroom.

Woman Not Put on Stand.

Then Attorney Crane announced that he would stipulate her story, and Mrs. Follett was not put on the stand.

Price and Clementi both took the stand in the afternoon. "I don't know a thing about it," said Price. "I just happened to be on the south side in another car when a policeman arrested me." Clementi told the court that he had never been convicted of a crime, although he had been arrested on charges which arose because he was the brother of the notorious Louis Clementi.

Louis Clementi also appeared in court yesterday. A charge of carrying concealed weapons against him was continued to March 30 by Judge Jay E. Schiller in the South State street court.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

A Washington dispatch published Tuesday stated that Representative J. Earl Major [Dem., Ill.], who voted Monday for the state liquor control amendment, had voted for the Volstead act in 1919. This was an error. It was Representative Samuel C. Major [Dem., Mo.] who voted for the Volstead act. Mr. Major of Illinois was not in congress in 1919.

SEEKS DIVORCE OVER TOO MUCH BIBLE READING

Evansville, Ind., March 16.—[Special.]—Complaining that her husband, Simon Richter, is "the Bible-readingest man" she ever saw and that he "grabs the Bible every morning before breakfast" and reads it while she goes out selling magazines to make a living, Mary Richter is asking for a divorce.

He has another habit, she complains, and that is chewing gum to excess.

Besides all of which he is jealous and once when she brought home a pair of silk stockings won as a prize for selling the most magazines, he refused to believe it and insisted some man gave them to her and started a "hum bug," she testified.

Her husband is contesting the divorce suit.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfaction in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

Sunk!

Planning . . . hoping ...and then—the thing she dreaded

Nature won't postpone her process to accommodate social engagements! Two weeks ago she was sure she could go. Then—just an hour before the party—it had started. That excruciating pain which is now avoidable.

• • •

Expected. Dreaded. Those muscular pains reckoned by the calendar. You can't always tell to the day and hour when they'll begin. But you can count on their relief seven minutes after taking Midol

The periodic process is natural, but the painful part is not. Midol is non-narcotic; it never interferes with the process, but it does banish the pain. These tablets take effect in five to seven minutes. Better yet, the woman who takes them beforehand will experience no pain at all. Midol relieves headaches, neuralgia, neuritis, too. Always to be had at any drugstore.

RICH WITH FLAVOR... because it's rushed to your grocer fresh from the roasting ovens

AT LAST—the coffee you've dreamed of!

A coffee that's superbly blended to begin with—and reaches you absolutely fresh, at the very peak of its flavor.

For 66 years, Chase & Sanborn have been perfecting their blend of coffee, selecting it from the choicest coffee beans in the world.

But no matter how fine a coffee is—it must be fresh. Only while fresh does coffee keep its full flavor.

FOR COFFEE IS PERISHABLE. The delicate oils that carry the flavor and aroma turn rancid if coffee is allowed to get stale. Rancid oil in stale coffee spoils the flavor—and even causes sleeplessness, headaches, indigestion.

So to guarantee you freshness—to make sure that you get this superb coffee at the very peak of its flavor—Chase & Sanborn now deliver their coffee like a fresh food. Swift motor trucks rush it straight from the roasting ovens to the grocers

So that you may get it always fresh, Chase & Sanborn's is rushed to your grocer by swift "fresh-food" delivery.

Every can is plainly stamped with an expiration date. No can remains on any grocer's shelf after its date has expired. It is simply impossible for you to buy a stale can of this delicious coffee. The date is your protection.

ENJOY THE MATCHLESS FLAVOR of coffee that's superb to begin with—and comes to you actually fresh from the roasting ovens.

CUT RAILROADS' SHACKLES, PLEA OF I. C. C. CHIEF

A program for the solution of the nation's railway problem was outlined yesterday by Claude R. Porter, chairman of the interstate commerce commission, to railroad executives and representatives who are attending the 33d annual convention of the American Railway Engineering association at the Palmer house.

In their present crisis, Mr. Porter said, the railroads are faced with two fundamental facts. First, like all industries, they have suffered huge losses in revenues due to economic conditions. Second, in addition to fighting the depression, they are now confronted with four vigorously competitive forms of transportation; in fact they are confronted with "a revolution in transportation."

Outlines New Factors.

Mr. Porter outlined the new transportation factors as follows:

1. Airplanes, which are now the most spectacular, but the least formidable, although none can forecast what may be developed in the next five years.

2. Waterways. He told of the huge loss in revenue to the roads as a result of the Panama canal and of the tonnage carried on the great lakes. He mentioned the construction of waterways which the roads must assist, although they are their rivals, through the granting of joint rates to inland points.

3. Pipe lines. Mr. Porter touched on the growth of this form of transportation, which not only has resulted in direct loss of railway business but has brought an indirect loss, as, for instance, in the substitution of natural gas for coal the hauling of which is the chief source of revenue for the railroads.

4. Trucks and buses. The most formidable competition comes from motor vehicles using the highways, Mr. Porter explained, the reason for diversion of service from the roads being greater flexibility of operation and cheaper rates in motor transport.

Remedies Are Suggested.

"Any one has the right to choose the form of transportation best suited to his needs," Mr. Porter continued. "However, sooner or later the depression will end and business will increase, but the roads will still face competition."

Mr. Porter then offered his suggestions to meet this, which are as follows:

1. Economy. He asserted that the roads must do their utmost to get economy in operation and maintenance. He pointed to the passenger service, which has suffered huge losses, and suggested that the roads offer real bargains to passengers, both in rates and service, which would win them from other forms of transportation.

2. Consolidation. Mr. Porter said: "If the present depression is demonstrating one thing it is that a reorganization of our railroads into a limited number of systems, with a sound capital structure, would enable them better to withstand future depressions, and it would enable the resulting services to serve the country more efficiently."

Would Widen Roads' Powers.

3. Mr. Porter recommended that the transportation companies be empowered to deal in all forms of transportation—air, pipe lines, waterways, and trucks and buses, with joint rates and through rates established in connection with any one or all of the units involved.

4. Regulation to prevent all forms of discrimination and to guarantee equality of treatment for all was urged by the speaker.

5. Construction and abandonment. Mr. Porter said that the interstate commerce commission should adopt a more stringent policy with regard to new construction, so that no road could enter a territory already adequately served, and he suggested that the commission be more lenient with regard to abandonment of tracks. "The roads should not be compelled to continue at a substantial loss the operation of branch lines which have become real burdens to the main lines," he added.

Urges Repeal of Clause.

6. The recapture clause, which limits the profits of well managed roads. Mr. Porter urged the repeal of this clause in the railroad act, holding that it constituted "a financial cloud hanging over the roads in the way of hundreds of millions of dollars," and that it seriously impaired their credits. He said repeal of the clause would enable executives of ability to get just rewards for their roads, and that it would end the premium on incompetence and waste. It would enable roads in good times to put by reserves for rainy days, he asserted.

AGED MAN ENDS STOMACH PAIN

"I used ACIDINE and found it to do all you claim," says M. A. Funk of Riverton, N. J. "I am 60 years of age and had been bothered with acid, fermentation and gas in stomach. I had tried everything without results. ACIDINE relieved me at once."

Mr. Del Lacrosse of New York says, "I had suffered for several weeks from gas and sour stomach. Took almost everything. Then I tried ACIDINE. It has ended my gas and sour stomach. Now feel fine and have a sweet stomach all the time. I always keep ACIDINE in my medicine chest and advise any one with stomach trouble to try it."

ROSZIKA DOLLY, IRVING NETCHER MARRY IN EAST

New York, March 16.—[Special.]—Irving Netcher of Chicago and Roszika Dolly of the famous Dolly sisters dancing team, were married at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel this afternoon. The ceremony was performed by Mayor James J. Walker.

The pair arrived here from Europe on board the steamship Olympic this morning. They went direct from the pier to the municipal building and took out their license, intending to be married by the mayor at the city hall. It turned out, however, that the mayor had another engagement at that time and the ceremony was put off until later and transferred to the hotel.

Mr. Netcher, who was divorced in Chicago in 1930 from Constance Reed, gave his age as 30.

Miss Dolly told the license clerk that she was born in Budapest, Hungary, and that she is 34. She has been married twice before, both matches having ended in the divorce court.

The dancer's last divorce was obtained here from Sir Mortimer Davis, wealthy Canadian tobacco magnate. Her first husband was Jean Schwartz, song writer. She divorced him in 1921. Her marriage to young Davis took place in 1927, although it was kept secret for some month. Later, it was reported that the young millionaire's father had cut him off as a result of the marriage.

Prohibition Agent John Huntley's "sweet tooth" yesterday brought about the jailing of Otto Fiebing, owner of a delicatessen store at 4386 Elston avenue, and his clerk, John Oser. Agent Huntley asked the price of an assortment of Easter egg candy and was surprised when told "three for a quarter." He hesitated and the storekeeper winked and suggested that he try one. Agent Huntley did, and immediately dug down in his pocket for the price of a dozen.

"Those eggs," he told Commissioner Walker yesterday, "were candy on the outside, but there's enough liquor on the inside of half a dozen of them to start an ordinary drinker on a real spree.

"Twenty boxes were found in the store. Fiebing and his clerk were released in bonds of $1,000 each, and a hearing on the case delayed until March 23.

FOUR HELD AS SUSPECTS.

James De Stefano, Mike Meccina, Archie Capozy and Dominick Marzano, alleged members of the 42 gang, who were arrested Tuesday night, were held by police yesterday as suspects in the burglary of loop stores recently.

ROOSEVELT LEAD OVER MURRAY IN DAKOTA CLIMBS

Fargo, N. D., March 16.—[Special.]—With Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York winner of North Dakota's preference in the presidential contest of Tuesday, the most amazing feature of the balloting is the fact that the Democratic vote exceeded all previous totals by nine or ten times.

GOV. ROOSEVELT.

North Dakota politicians were scratching their heads tonight, wondering what it was all about, when less than one-fourth of the precincts in the state had accounted for a Democratic vote 10,000 in excess of any previous total vote that had been cast in any Democratic presidential preference primary.

As the Democratic poll rose precinct by precinct, and had reached the total of 53,091, when 1,350 precincts out of 2,235 in the state had been accounted for, the politicians found themselves in a quandary. In no previous presidential preference primary in North Dakota has the state enrolled more than approximately 13,000 votes. In this election it is apparent that the Democrats have polled not less than 75,000 votes and probably more than 80,000 electors.

Roosevelt Polls 33,660.

In the 1,350 precincts, Gov. Roosevelt received 33,660 votes and Gov. William H. Murray of Oklahoma 19,431.

Within the state it was not so much the fact that Gov. Roosevelt had beaten Gov. Murray by a wide margin that concerned the politicians, as the fact that the Democratic total had been enormously increased that caused them to ponder future developments. They still could not understand why Democrats had enlisted the sympathy of such a large proportion of the whole number of electors.

So far as the standing of this state in the national convention is concerned the vote as between Murray and Roosevelt was not binding. The delegates, elected in a separate ballot, may determine their own course and it was accepted as almost certain that regardless of the fact that Roosevelt has the great lead for the preference, the delegation itself will be divided.

Delegates Virtually Free.

North Dakota's peculiar oath binding the delegates "to interpret" the wishes of their party is so loose as to permit the individual delegate to make his own decision as to what he regards as being the "wishes of the members of his party," in the national convention.

Joseph I. France of Maryland was preferred by Republican voters over "General" Jacob Coxey as their candidate for president, but the returns available indicate that less than one-third of the voters who called for a Republican ballot had made any choice as between the two presidential candidates on the ballot. President Hoover already has a ticket of delegates in the field.

Nye Not Surprised.

Washington, D. C., March 16.—[Special.]—Senator Gerald P. Nye, Republican of North Datoka, characterized the increased Democratic vote in the primary as an expression of displeasure over the failure of the Republican administration to forward any program toward the restoration of agriculture.

"There is a very definite feeling that the result in North Dakota should not be at all surprising," Senator Nye said. "Clearly, thousands of Republican voters in the state went to the Democratic primary because they thought it was their best chance to voice their growing displeasure with the administration."

VATICAN CITY, March 16.—(AP)—Vatican City has a population of 994, according to a census just completed. Of these, 711 are citizens and the rest temporary residents. The largest national group are Italians, numbering 568, and second, Swiss, with 100.

441,000 POUNDS OF DYNAMITE SET OFF IN MICHIGAN

Manistique, Mich., March 16.—(AP)—Shooting of 441,000 pounds of dynamite eight miles from here late today made a big noise, but gave rather a poor imitation of a natural earthquake.

The biggest commercial blast on record was set off at 4:02 p. m. eastern standard time at a quarry of the Inland Lime and Stone company. It was heard at least ten miles away, and caused an earth shock for a mile and a half. In Manistique, however, the "quake" was barely perceptible.

The blast was carefully timed, being set off at a radio signal from the navy observatory at Annapolis. The entire 441,000 pounds, divided into some 5,000 charges, went off at once. Seven miles of fuse were used.

INDIA PEASANTS SUFFER 50% LOSS BY PRICE DECLINE

1930-'31 Index Far Below Norm of 1914.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 16.—The plight of India's 350 million people, owing to world economic conditions, is graphically exposed in the statement issued by the trade commissioner for the country. The fall in prices has struck telling blows in all branches of Indian production.

Since 1915 there had only been one year in which the price of commodities fell below 1914 levels until last year. That was in 1917, but prices then never reached the low averages of 1931. Taking figures of July, 1914, as 100, the commissioner's report shows an average of between 137 and 167 between 1919 and 1922. In 1923 prices fell suddenly to 114, but after that there was a consistent rise and the key average remained above 125 until the end of 1929. In 1930 the average fell quickly to 100, and then skidded to 78 in 1931.

Export Values Decline.

Hides and skins slumped to 67, jute to 49, raw cotton to 83, beans, peas, and the like to 89, and tea to 86, oil seeds went to 82. The difference of price levels between 1929 and 1931 amounted to an average of 45 per cent in just two years.

In the case of oil seeds, in which a great deal of export trade was done, the price fell from 155 to 82, a decline of almost 47 per cent. Only six years ago oil seed prices were moving between 180 and 205 on the index chart.

In last August, September, and October prices fell even below the average for the entire year, sometimes as far beneath as 15 per cent. It was then that political agitation had reached its height. Cereals, which form the bulk of India's raw produce had fallen to the index price figure of 75; beans, peas and similar vegetables 81, raw cotton 71, and hides and skins to 31, a phenominal fall reducing the annual earnings of the peasants by at least 45 to 50 per cent. This at a time when they had to pay the first installment of their annual taxes and rentals.

Japan Displaces Britain.

The following tables show the vast change in the position of the import trade in cotton goods which has been brought about since 1914. Japan has made tremendous strides during this period, gradually displacing Britain. The figures for cloth in the tables below are in units of 1,000 yards.

United Kingdom	1,315,097	143,297
Japan	2,559	218,319
U. S. A.	10,405	535
Total	1,328,961	362,151

At the same time there has been a considerable increase in the output of the Indian milling industry, to the loss of British, Japanese, and American mill owners. The Indian production figures are as follows:

Production—	Pre-war average.	1930-31.
Gray and bleached	854,146	2,003,490
Colored	251,353	557,643

Gold Flow Diminished.

From 1923 until the middle of 1931 India imported gold worth about £180,000,000 [normally about $900,000,000]. From June, 1931, to the end of the year India exported about £27,500,000 [$137,500,000 normally] worth of gold. One remarkable feature of the trade figures is the sudden change in the transfer of funds which has taken place since 1929. From 1923 onwards money flowed into India at the rate of about £21,000,000 [$105,000,000] annually due to the favorable trade balance. In 1930 this figure shrunk to £4,125,000 [$20,625,000], while in 1931 it reached only £2,000,000 [$10,000,000], this despite the fact that during November and December funds amounting to approximately £18,000,000 [$90,000,000] were transferred to India, a sum almost equivalent to the amount of gold exported from India during that time.

India's trade enjoyed substantial favorable balances during both 1930 and 1931. The conclusion drawn from the figures is that foreign investors in India, 98 per cent of whom are British, had been withdrawing their funds from the time that Gandhi's noncoöperation campaign gained headway. They continue to do so now.

Recent Withdrawals Heavy.

Taking into account withdrawals of an official nature, over £100,000,000 [$500,000,000] has been taken out of India during the last two years in cash. Besides this amount there must be taken into account loans of over £30,000,000 [$150,000,000] raised by the government of India during 1930 and 1931 which were used in India itself. This is a sort of invisible import of capital into India and as this has to be considered when the total transfer of funds is compiled, the real figure amounts to something over £130,000,000 [$650,000,000, figures above are for the gold pound, normally about $5].

QUICKEST WAY TO KNOCK COLDS

Feel Like A New Person Almost Before You Know It

If you want quick relief from cold, go back to first principles and use something you know does the business—don't start "trying" a lot of fancy ideas or remedies.

Get Hill's Cascara Quinine. A scientific formula made to do ONE THING WELL: to knock a cold in a jiffy, not to cure a hundred different things.

Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all. Soon those mean, aching pains in the head and body begin to go; the cold breaks up; poisons leave your system and you feel like a new person.

If it doesn't do that, your money back. Get a box now for a few cents. Way it works will surprise you.

LLOYD GEORGE ASSAILS BRITISH "SHAM" RULERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 16.—David Lloyd George, veteran Liberal leader, returned to the political arena today. He was in characteristic fighting form and gave every evidence of a complete recovery from his long illness. His return was featured by a smashing attack on the national government. He flayed his political opponents and former colleagues now in the MacDonald cabinet alike.

One critic described him as "behaving like a 'bad man' of the wild west celebrating his first day out of the hospital by grabbing his gun and shooting up the whole town."

The speech was delivered to the Junior Liberal club, his first political speech since his illness and operation last summer.

Calls Government a Sham.

Of Prime Minister MacDonald he said:

"There is no man who can do nothing better and do it with a flourish."

Of Sir Herbert Samuel, home secretary, he said:

"He has joined the pickpockets."

He taunted Sir John Simon, foreign secretary; Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade, and other Liberal ministers with stinging criticism. He denied that the financial crisis last year involved any real danger to the British pound and declared that the cause of free trade was lost at the election because the Liberal leaders lost their heads.

"Led by Decoy Sheep."

The Liberal party was led by a decoy sheep into a lethal cage with the result that the party now has lost its punch and pride, he said.

"It is said about meat packing institutions in America that they can everything except the squeal," he said. "The squeal — one, two, or three squeals — may have escaped, but is the Liberal party to be canned in a protectionist tin in the future in accordance with the traditions of a Chicago pork factory?"

Clarksburg, W. Va., March 16.—[Special.]—Harry F. Powers' fight for life neared the end today as Judge W. E. Baker of the federal court denied a petition for a writ of habeas corpus this afternoon.

In a verbal decision which, together with the reading of a petition submitted by J. E. Law, attorney for Powers, occupied thirty minutes, Judge Baker said there was no precedent for such action being taken by a federal magistrate.

Powers is under sentence from the Harrison County Criminal court for the slaying of Mrs. Dorothy Lemke. Both the Harrison County Circuit court and the state Supreme Court of Appeals have denied review of the Powers case.

HARRY M'KELVEY, OWNER OF NIGHT CLUBS, ENDS LIFE

Harry D. McKelvy, 45 years old, for many years an owner and proprietor of night clubs on the north side, last evening shot and killed himself in an alley at the rear of 1250 Stone street. McKelvey's last venture was Mack's club, 12 East Pearson street, now known as the Club Nocturne.

McKelvey returned last Saturday from Florida, where he had suffered a sunstroke, according to his widow, who resides at 7703 East End avenue with their two children. He had been ill, she said, and threatened to commit suicide Tuesday night. McKelvey had also been despondent since he was forced to sell his night club three months ago, she said.

McKelvey was a Canadian war veteran.

SHIFT 30 U. S. PRISONERS FOR TRIAL.

Evansville, Ind., March 16.—[Special.]—Thirty federal prisoners were transferred from the Vanderburgh county jail to Indianapolis by bus today for trial. Twenty-two are charged with liquor law violations; three with robbing a mail truck at Boonville, one with auto theft and four with violating the narcotic act.

32 DARTMOOR FELONS GO ON TRIAL FOR RIOT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 16.—Thirty-two alleged ringleaders of the prison riot at Dartmoor on Jan. 24, when that famous institution was wrecked, went before five magistrates today for a hearing in Prince Town [Devon] town hall, which usually serves as a movie theater. The 32 men were charged with riotous destruction of a public building.

Two trucks, covered with canvas, transported the accused from the prison to the court. Six armed guards squeezed into the driver's cabin, six sat inside each truck with the prisoners, and six more walked on either side of the truck. The caravan was headed by a police car and motorcycle policemen rode between each truck.

Courtroom Heavily Guarded.

A special entrance was built in the town hall to admit the prisoners under a heavy guard of special police drawn up in a farmyard at the rear of the building, where a wooden palisade was erected. Nearby roads were guarded by special details of police, who halted and investigated all vehicles.

England has rarely seen such a spectacle. An iron grill with bars eight feet high was built around the dock in the courtroom. The convicts sat in groups of three on short wooden benches. They did their best to contribute to the show. They cheered ironically when they arrived. One scuffled with the guards, trying to pull aside the tarpaulin to get a glimpse of the open country.

Interrupt Court with Laughter.

The recital of Counsel G. R. Paling, representing the director of public prosecutions, was constantly interrupted with laughter of the accused, one of whom sported a bright pansy in the buttonhole of his civilian suit, which all were allowed to wear at the trial.

According to Paling's statement, two convicts were wounded by guards after they had climbed to the roof of the building. He was interrupted by a prisoner, who yelled that it was an "unjustified attempt to murder."

The prosecutor read a detailed account of what was the alleged part each man played in the uprising. A number of guards will be called for corroboration before the hearing is completed.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

A FIGHTING COMMITTEE.

A committee of men of proved competence in business and the professions has been organized in Chicago to bring about a reduction in the expenditures of the local governments. It may be taken for granted that all of the members of the committee are agreed that taxes in the community are needlessly and impossibly burdensome. It will be the committee's purpose to discover where governmental costs can be reduced without impairing the essential services of the government to the people.

The chairman of the committee is Mr. Fred Sargent. He has expressed the hope that the tax spending officials will coöperate. The committee is going ahead on the assumption that the office holders wish to play ball and is preparing to offer its expert advice on the amounts which each government may reasonably expect to receive and spend. If office holders continue to display the pig-headedness shown, for example, by a majority of the school board, other means, Mr. Sargent intimates, will have to be adopted. What those other means may be the committee has not yet determined, but it is not to be doubted that influential and resourceful men can, if they will, devise and apply pressures to force a sense of responsibility upon the tax eaters.

A good many public officials, notably Mayor Cermak, have of late shown a commendable willingness to restrain the politician's impulse to spend as much as he can, regardless of consequences. It is to be hoped that others will see the light. Some, in all probability, will not, and the members of the committee will have to take off their coats and invite the recalcitrants to step outside.

If any of the gentlemen who have accepted the invitation to join the committee are of the opinion that membership is purely an honorary matter, they had better resign now, before the trouble starts. They are taking on a job of large proportions, enlisting in a fight in which their opponents are going to employ all the arts of hitting below the belt learned in long years of alley politics.

A glance at the list of men who have volunteered suggests that most of them know well what they are getting into. They would much prefer to confine their attention to their own affairs, but recognize that government in Chicago has reached such a pass that every one's welfare, except that of the racketeers, is imperiled.

Chicago has been fortunate in the possession of solid men, willing to devote their time to the public interest. Such men rescued Chicago from the gray wolves in the days when the Municipal Voters' league was being organized. Such men, today, are rallying around Mr. Sargent. The organization of the committee is evidence of the determination of Chicago to avoid bankruptcy and anarchy; it is evidence, also, of the confidence of the substantial men in the community that democracy can be made to work. Democracy will fail, of course, when the ablest men in the community regard politics as something which does not concern them. The Sargent committee, marking as it does the end of a régime of indifference to public affairs, and offering, as it does, a leadership behind which the constructive elements in the community can rally, offers a new and substantial hope of a better day in Chicago.

THE WRECKERS GET AN OLD HOTEL.

The announcement that the Virginia hotel is to come down and the space is to be used for automobile parking was of some sentimental concern for people who are not so sure that they cannot remember a more interesting city than the one they now see. They're probably mistaken and in their time the more interesting city was thirty years still further in the past, a process of harking back which finally lands in the Garden of Eden, concerning the attractiveness of which there may or may not be an argument.

In any case in the city which is only a memory a structure sound in wind and limb would not have been torn down to be shet of a tax burden and to make way for automobile parking, for two simple reasons: There weren't any automobiles and taxes were not intended to destroy buildings. The idea of confiscatory taxation has grown with the idea that government is responsible for a citizen's use of his spare time.

Allowing for the fact that many things appear more desirable when they are lost—a thought which may not apply to the Volstead act—it will nevertheless appear to some older Chicagoans that there were more amenities as well as fewer taxes when the Virginia was at its best than now when it is condemned as a useless incumbrance on a parking space. When a vacant lot is a sign of progress and a policeman is evidence of individual character there is something to be said for a time when hitching posts were in use and needled beer, gang peddled, was not.

THE APPROACHING END OF VOLSTEAD.

It is altogether probable that the November elections will give the opposition to national prohibition a majority in the house of representatives. The test of Monday showed 187 votes for the opposition, and, although a few of these votes might not be dependable if the question were changed, it is apparent that the anti-prohibitionists are in a position where a gain of a score or more seats will take control from the supporters of Volstead and give it to their opponents. Such a gain is well within the probabilities of the congressional elections this fall.

In such case the opposition will have power to do any one or all of several things. It can vote for the repeal of the Volstead act or for the modification of it, for the repeal of the Jones five and ten act and for the legalizing of beer as a nonintoxicating beverage. The senate, changing more slowly than the house, may hold out longer, but a house majority will be able to attack the prohibition appropriations and demand as a concession for a grant of money the modification of the act to be enforced. Furthermore, when the house votes a majority against national prohibition the senate will begin to trim to the election returns.

Majorities, lacking two-thirds, lack the power to deal with the 18th amendment as it should be dealt with, but nevertheless are not without privilege. They can deal with the issue in many ways short of the submission of the repeal of the amendment. The vote on the question of taking the repeal resolution away from the committee which had pigeonholed it showed that many of the dry states are breaking up. Virginia, where the state legislature has voted the virtual repeal of the state prohibition law, gave three votes against prohibition, Alabama one, Iowa one, Indiana five, Michigan nine, South Carolina one, Nebraska one.

There was little or no party division, but there was one of the countryside against the metropolitan areas, the rural districts against the cities. Here the discrimination against the metropolitan areas in representation counted for something. In Illinois, for instance, the Chicago area is entitled to at least four more votes than it has and they would have been added to the seventeen against Volstead. Other states show a similar discrimination against city representation.

Prohibition control has been one of rule regardless of method, but the control has the elements of its ruin in it. Political hypocrisy, administrative subserviency and legislative submissiveness cannot save it.

THE PRIMITIVE SAVAGERY OF THE TRULY GOOD.

The Michigan state prison commissioners have decreed that prohibition offenders hereafter shall be sent to the prison where the more hardened criminals are kept. Judges are asked to make this a policy in sentencing the offenders. Reasons of economy are urged for the concentration of sumptuary law violators with the tougher citizens who have been tripped up by criminal prosecution. Economy may be taken as another name for the satisfaction of a curious appetite for revenge which seems to affect the minds of the truly good when prohibition bent. Michigan has as many good natured people as any other state—and it is going against Volstead as rapidly as any other penitent in the Union—but its officialdom has been poisoned by as dark a zealotry as the country has known.

[Illinois State Register.]

Lovers of good music everywhere, and particularly throughout this section, will be genuinely concerned at the announcement that the Chicago Symphony orchestra may pass out of existence with the close of the present season. The deficit on this season's operations is said to total more than $82,000, and investments in the orchestra's endowment fund are said to have depreciated steadily of late. In the face of such losses and with no apparent opportunity to reduce the budget, the Orchestra association has no alternative but to suspend operations indefinitely.

The Chicago Symphony orchestra, it may be remembered, was founded by the late lamented Theodore Thomas, whose achievements in building up this great organization from 1891 to the time of his death in 1909 have entitled him to everlasting fame in the world of music. Its artistic destinies have since been most capably carried on by the gifted Frederick Stock and at the present time it is ranked among the finest organizations of its kind in the United States and in the world at large.

Like most symphony orchestras, it has weathered many a storm by virtue of the strenuous and indefatigable efforts of its officers and board of directors. The experience of Mr. Thomas and his supporters in the early period was a real epic of heroic devotion to a great cause. With the building of Orchestra hall as a permanent home for the symphony organization and the establishment of what seemed at the time an endowment fund ample for all purposes, the skies cleared and a new era of accomplishment was inaugurated.

In the last decade labor troubles have furnished the chief obstacles. Only five years ago the orchestra was threatened seriously by new demands in the wage scale, but happily that matter was adjusted and the orchestra went ahead. In time past aid has always been forthcoming from public spirited citizens and groups appreciative of the work of this magnificent orchestra and it is difficult to conceive that Chicago, even under the present conditions, will permit the project to be abandoned.

No wage dispute enters into the present situation—merely the reflection of the steady inroads which the depression has made upon artistic and cultural enterprises. The deficit is larger than usual, and because of the depreciation of the endowment funds that deficit cannot be met as it has heretofore.

With the proper spirit of coöperation existing between the musicians' union and the Orchestra association in this emergency and with the aid of special contributions from wealthy patrons and the musical public, none doubts that the Chicago orchestra could be saved—to go on to even greater destinies in its field, to perpetuate its proud traditions with even greater distinction in the coming years. That Chicago will meet this challenge with its characteristic spirit of "I will" is a consummation most devoutly to be wished.

THE TALL STORY CLASS.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

WHEN PAYING TAXES WAS A PLEASURE.

And it was our splendid middle class, the bulwark of our nation, that voted in the 18th amendment, which deprived the government of the immense money it obtained from the excise tax. Which necessitated the laying on of the income tax, the heaviest part of which falls upon the aforesaid great middle class. And now, do you hear that peculiar noise as you tune in on the radio? Static, say you. Nay, nay, 'tis the great middle class kicking like bay steers at paying the income tax. But what would you? The government has to have money in order to keep going. If the great middle class would rather pay an income tax than to let those that drink likker pay the excise tax, well, of course, then we should continue the income tax by all means. But we must say there was less outcry from those who paid the excise tax in the old days than there is now from those who are paying the income tax. When you pay the income tax you have to march down to the office and, after the sad news is figured out, you lay down the cold, hard cash or give a check, which is the same thing. But when one paid the excise tax in the forgotten yesterdays he did it by simply buying a cocktail or a slug of whisky. The taxpayer then encountered no collector; he didn't have to figure his salary and his exemptions. He just breezed in and told Charley, the handsome barkeep, to shake up a Martini. And some of the fifteen cents he paid for the cocktail went to the government as excise tax. Ah, that was a pleasant, happy way to pay taxes! It was, in fact, practically painless. But paying the income tax nowadays—OUCH! OUCH!—Stob, stob, said the elebant's child, you are hurtig be!

HOW SURPRISED those congressmen who voted dry the other day will be to find out that things have changed out in the country while they've been sitting around Washington. And what a lot of explaining they'll have to do. And about all they can say is, "I didn't know. I didn't know." And to tell the truth they probably didn't. Living down in Washington is like living down in the bottom of a coal mine. Congressmen today are just business agents for their districts and try to follow the orders of their bosses back home. But while they're in Washington the bosses change their minds, but the congressman never realizes it until he gets back home. And then—oh, the pity of it! The pity of it!

SOFT WATER AND LEAD POISONING.

A FARMER living in Vermont received his water supply from a spring. The water was carried into his home through a lead pipe. Water has passed through this lead pipe for forty years, supplying the household with a safe and satisfactory supply. Last spring the farmer decided that this old pipe had served its time and, possibly, was leaking in places. He replaced it with a new and longer lead pipe.

Soon after this was done the family complained of some difference in the taste of the water. The farmer was very busy cutting hay and may not have acted promptly. The weather was hot and the work made conditions worse; the farmer drank an enormous amount of water. When the work lightened a bit he sent a sample of the water to the state health department and the report came back: "Water heavily charged with lead. Not suitable for drinking purposes."

The use of the water was stopped, but the farmer had already begun to have symptoms of lead poisoning. Since other members of the family had used less water they had fewer symptoms. There is no difficulty in reconstructing what had happened. This water, like many New England supplies, was exceptionally soft—soft enough for a woman to wash her hair with it. It was a very economical water to wash with.

Perhaps forty years ago it was not quite so soft, and gradually some scale had been deposited on the old pipe. This scale protected the metal of the pipe against the soft water and caused the supply to be free from lead. Doubtless, when the farmer removed the pipe, he saw this scale, but thought it a menace rather than a protection. When the very soft water came into the very new pipes it commenced dissolving lead—a way that soft water has with new lead pipes. The family developed lead poisoning before they were aware of danger.

What can the farmer do? Shall he abandon his water supply? Not necessarily. If he will add a very little lime to the water at the spring the metal of the pipe will not go into solution. Presently the new pipe will be lined with scale, whereupon he can discontinue the use of lime in the water.

The next question is as to the farmer and his family. Can they get the lead out of their systems? The answer is yes. Doubtless some lead is now deposited in their bones. The problem is to cause this to go back into solution in the blood, and then to be carried to the organs of excretion and removed. This is to be done so carefully as to prevent setting up new symptoms of lead poisoning. It can be done.

PAIN IN THE BACK.

A. B. writes: I am 35 years old. During the early spring each year since 1927 I suffer from backache, but this year—or rather last year—I began to suffer in October. At times there is a sharp, shooting pain, and other times a dull ache and weakness. The pain is located about three inches left of the spinal column, and about the same distance from the bend of the hip joint. Sometimes I feel a twinge in leg, midway between body and knee. I feel in a state of collapse if compelled to stand long—even five minutes—in one place.

REPLY:

CAUSES OF HIVES.

A reader writes: Can you tell me the cause and how to treat hives?

REPLY:

There is a long list of causes of hives. Among them are certain foods, say forty. Exposure to animals and objects is also a cause. There are others. The best method of prevention is to find the cause and avoid it.

To relieve an attack, take a laxative. Apply something soothing locally.

CAUSES OF BUNIONS.

M. F. writes:

1. What is the cause of bunions?

1. Wearing shoes that do not fit. Narrowness is the most important fault, though shortness and tightness contribute.
2. Wear broad, full shoes. Mild cases may be cured by wearing proper shoes and using pads to keep the toes straight. More severe cases require operation.

PIMPLES AND GREASE GLANDS.

REPLY:

Among the effective methods are: Washing thoroughly with soap and hot water, steaming the face, shaving, scraping the face, Turkish baths. Of course, the grease glands are secreting constantly.

CHINA-JAPAN WAR, 1894

Washington, D. C., Oct. 8.—The crisis of the Japan-China war is looked for within the next ten days or two weeks by those interested and best informed. The legations of the two countries are expecting daily to hear that the decisive battle has been fought. This is based on the fact that the Japanese have been gradually closing in around Peking and the invading army is compelled by force of circumstances to strike its blow at once or not at all. The intense cold which comes on about the middle of October makes this imperative for the troops of Japan are wholly unprepared for the coming rigorous weather about Peking. The Chinese look upon this as one of their defenses.

LONDON, Oct. 8.—A Shanghai dispatch says that Shong, the Taotai of Tientsin, whose disgrace and flight have been reported, had bought from Germany 300,000 discarded rifles for which he paid the government two taels each and charged the government nine taels. He also bought a large quantity of cartridges which were found to be utterly useless. Li Hung Chang is said to have slapped Shong's face when he learned of the cheat.

YOKOHAMA, Oct. 9.—The Japanese have captured Chefoo.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 9.—A second Japanese army is reported to have crossed the Yalu river and to be advancing upon Mukden, which it is believed will soon fall, as the Chinese are reported to be in a condition of demoralization. The Chinese have blockaded the mouth of the river Min leading up to Foo Choo and vessels bound for that port must now discharge their cargoes at Sharp Peak.

28 YEARS AGO TODAY

TOKIO.—An official telegram from Seoul states that a Russian cavalry force of 1,500 men made a dash between Wiju and Pingyang, and 200 of them got as far as the Seisenko river, where they fired upon the Japanese on the opposite bank.

PARIS.—The Temps correspondent at St. Petersburg asserts that a Russian army corps is descending from Vladivostok toward Corea. He adds that Port Arthur has a garrison of 30,000 men and is provisioned for a year.

LONDON.—The Shanghai correspondent of the Daily Express sends an account of the last bombardment of Port Arthur by the Japanese. It reveals that the Japanese fire was marvelously accurate and did terrific damage. One Japanese shell wiped out a party of 25 civilians who were out to witness the battle. The most elevated fort at the entrance to the harbor was most seriously damaged. There was one tremendous explosion which civilians attributed to the blowing up of the magazine. During the bombardment the Russians did not return the fire. It is rumored their ammunition is running low.

CHICAGO.—Removal of real estate signboards from all property on sale throughout the city to improve the appearance of every neighborhood is advocated in a communication to be sent to real estate dealers by the Chicago Woman's club.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—It was reported that Mexican snipers had fired on Gen. Pershing's forces in Mexico and that seven American troopers had been wounded. The war department would not confirm the report, but the news of the wounding also came through press channels from Columbus, N. M., by the way of El Paso.

EL PASO, Tex.—The Seventh and Tenth cavalry, said to be advancing into Mexico by forced marches from Culberson's ranch near Hachita, N. M., were nearing the Villa territory in the Casas Grandes region tonight, according to the most reliable information which could be obtained. The troops are reported to be marching with a minimum of equipment and led by Mormon scouts from the Mormon colonies at Colonia Dublan and Colonia Morales. The main column under Gen. John J. Pershing is reported to have penetrated forty miles below the border into Mexico. The weather conditions are ideal for a rapid march. It is reported that Villa's bandit gang has divided and that he intends to take refuge in the heart of the Sierra Madres with only three or four trusted companions. Col. Slocum of the Thirteenth cavalry is reported to have offered $50,000 reward for Gen. Villa's head.

LONDON.—Repulse at the hands of the French again has been the net result of the German infantry attack launched with huge effectives after a heavy bombardment against French positions at Le Mort Homme [Dead Man's Hill] northwest of Verdun. The Germans who attacked in masses were driven eastward toward the Boise des Corbeaux, where the French guns inflicted heavy casualties on them. The attack on Le Mort Homme constituted the only infantry maneuver along the entire French front, but from Belgium to the Vosges artillery on both sides has been active.

BERLIN.—Desperate attacks on the Austrian lines along the Isonzo are being continued by the Italians in their determined offensive in that region, according to the Austrian headquarters' statement received here from Vienna.

FROM PROF. MAC CLINTOCK.

Sarasota, Fla., March 10.—As an old Chicagoan and in the name of a score of Chicago people whom I have talked with, I ask leave to protest against the part of an article touching on this city, in last Sunday's TRIBUNE, by Cousin Eve.

Winter Park was her goal and this she handles even too handsomely. She does justice to the Bok tower. But this fine "Town of Homes" she musses up badly. She mixes up her approach to the city and her journey away from it through the Everglades. Evidently she came here to call on the Palmers, who are not here this winter. But her "stricken Sarasota, ghostly boom town, with its poor empty skyscrapers," is ridiculous and libelous. Sarasota was "stricken" as were all Florida towns by the boom collapse. And there is one "skyscraper" bank building of ten stories which has never been occupied. But the city is full of life and has more than her share of northern visitors this year. But what I chiefly wish to emphasize is the failure even to mention Sarasota's greatest tourist sight—the Ringling Art museum. Here is a monument to beauty and philanthropy which more than rivals the Bok tower. Here are more notable paintings from classical European brushes than at any other city in America, and the largest private collection of such paintings in the world. To drive by such a building and treasure house, never having heard of it, is not to be endured by a correspondent of the World's Greatest Newspaper. There are now on the average of 1,500 visitors a day, yet the museum has not yet been formally opened.

W. D. MACCLINTOCK,
Professor Emeritus of English, University of Chicago.

VENTILATING THE BUSES.

Chicago, March 14.—The statement by bus line officials to Dr. Bundesen "that in the future they will be continually on the alert to maintain satisfactory air conditions in the buses" should be explained further. Since the driver is the only representative of the motor coach company on the bus, and since he is at the lower forward end of the vehicle, my infantile mind is unable to figure out how the coach company can keep on the alert for air conditions on the upper deck. Possibly some one familiar with transportation problems can explain how they are to keep continuously on the alert in such matters. T. G. P.

BULLPENS FOR MORONS.

Chicago, March 13.—So the mayor proposes to erect bullpens where 20,000 morons may divest themselves of their clothes and indulge to their hearts' content in conventions of nudity—all at the expense of the taxpayer.

I believe in Germany and some other foreign countries there are a few such degenerate cults, and every once in a while an attempt is made in this country to carry on such debauchery, but thank God, in this country at least such things are quickly stamped out by our watchful police force.

There are limits to everything; the limit in this instance is morals. Chicago is proud of her morality, and any one who attempts to lower the standard will quickly find out his mistake.

HOUSEWIFE.

SCHOOL LIGHTS.

Chicago, March 12.—In answer to Hyde Parker's letter of March 9, regarding lights burning in the Ray school at 9:15 p. m., I wish to state that it is necessary for the janitors to work nights to do the work required by the board of education. Washing woodwork, furniture, etc., and scrubbing floors cannot be done while classes are in session.

This washing is done after school is dismissed and the entire building must be swept and dusted at night. The janitors' hours are, 1 man, 8 a. m. to 12 noon, 1:30 p. m. to 5:30 p. m; 2 men, 1:45 to 10:15 p. m. By this arrangement the day man helps night men on washing and scrubbing until 5:30 p. m.

I have been by this school many times at night and found lights in corridors, on stairs and in the two rooms being cleaned. Surely, Hyde Parker would not expect janitors to grope their way from room to room in dark halls. It is possible that the hall lights shining into rooms gives the illusion of 24 rooms lighted at one time.

May I suggest that there is a well advertised and more effective way for Hyde Parker to aid the teachers in receiving their long overdue salaries?

J. H. RAPP, engineer, Ray school.

A LOT OF TRAFFIC LIGHTS.

Chicago, March 11.—In these days when money for necessities is so difficult to get, the cost and waste of our overlapping local governments is well illustrated to those living in the vicinity of Hyde Park boulevard and Cottage Grove avenue.

At the point where Hyde Park boulevard, Drexel square, Cottage Grove, and the entrance of Washington park meet, the traffic has for some time been adequately controlled by seven stop-and-go lights. Within the past couple of weeks the passersby have been astonished to see three more four-way stop-and-go signal posts being erected at this point by the south park commission, making a total of ten lights within 300 feet. Utterly ridiculous, and without any reasonable excuse.

Each of these three new lights cost the public from $1,500 to $3,000 to be installed. C. D. MOORE.

TAXES.

Chicago, March 14.—When I received my tax bill a few days ago and found it had been increased from $9.60 for the year 1929 to $144.51 for the year 1930 I came to the conclusion that there must be gold, oil or some other mineral contained in this property of which I have no knowledge. This 30 foot vacant lot, which is located in the neighborhood of 59th street and Komensky avenue, was assessed on a $156 valuation in 1929 and on $2,144 in 1930, while as a matter of fact I will be pleased to find a buyer at $450. THE UTILITIES' SHARE.

Chicago, March 14.—Financial interests of greater reputation than erudition seem to conclude from the statements of utility companies that because their earnings have remained stable it is a good omen—a sign of prosperity and encouragement. The contrary is the case; it shows merely that the utility companies, because of their artificial and favored positions as monopolies, are carving out and serving unto themselves a greater share of the American pie of annual income. GAS CO. OFFICIAL QUIZZED ON PIPE LINE CONTRACT

Relationship of Concerns Shown at Hearing.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph F. Grossman endeavored yesterday to draw from an official of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company an admission that the $75,000,000 pipe line bringing natural gas here from Texas is a speculative venture for whose losses the gas consumers of the Chicago area may have to pay should the venture prove unsuccessful.

The official is Frank L. Griffith, assistant secretary-treasurer of the gas company. He was questioned by Mr. Grossman at a hearing before the Illinois commerce commission on the company's application for new rates based on the mixture of natural and manufactured gas now in use here. Assistant Commerce Commissioner Robert H. Farrell conducted the hearing.

Shows Company Relations.

Laying the foundation for his question as to who will assume the speculative risks in the operation of the pipe line, Mr. Grossman brought out that the Chicago District Pipe Line company had contracted to purchase an annual maximum load of 130,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas from the Natural Gas Pipe Line Company of America at a rate of $8,500,000 a year for fifteen years, beginning in 1935.

The Chicago District company is a wholly owned subsidiary of three Insull utilities in this district, the Peoples Gas company, the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, and the Western United Gas and Electric company. The Natural Gas Pipe Line company, which brings the gas from the Texas panhandle to Joliet, is owned jointly by the Insull interests, Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, Phillips Petroleum company and two others, with the Insulls holding the largest single interest of 26 per cent.

Quizzes Company Official.

"By the terms of this contract the Chicago District company is compelled to pay the Natural Gas Pipe Line company $8,500,000 a year, whether they purchase 130,000,000 cubic feet of gas, a lesser amount, or none at all?" Mr. Grossman demanded. The witness, Mr. Griffith, assented.

Q.—And that $8,500,000 annual payment is sufficient to enable the natural gas line to pay all its fixed charges and operating expenses yearly, at the same time earning a fair profit and amortizing 75 per cent of its investment in fifteen years? A.—I would call it depreciation, not amortization. Otherwise you are correct.

Mr. Grossman demanded whether in the opinion of the witness the pipe line was or was not a speculative interest. The Insull attorney, Francis L. Daily, objected that the opinion of the witness was not pertinent to the case.

Farrell Quotes Company Head.

Assistant Commissioner Farrell settled the question by remarking that an earlier witness, George F. Mitchell, president of the Peoples Gas, had characterized the pipe line as "a noble experiment." Mr. Grossman continued the questioning.

Q.—If the Natural Gas Pipe Line is assured an income sufficient to meet all expenses, show a profit, and retire its capital investment, then the District Pipe Line is carrying the entire risk? A.—I should judge so.

Q.—Which means that the risk, if any, is to be passed on through the operating utilities to the public? A.—I think the best answer to that is that the Peoples Gas company has no contracts compelling any consumer to buy our gas unless he wishes to.

Q.—Certainly not, but if the Peoples Gas company incurs losses through the operation of the pipe line company, then those losses may be made up by increasing the rate to the consumer? A.—Possibly so, if such losses occur.

Probes Maximum Load Estimate.

Here Mr. Grossman began digging into the method whereby the district pipe line company had arrived at a maximum load estimate of 130,000,000 cubic feet. Mr. Griffith said that estimates reaching more than four or five years ahead were "mere guesswork."

"As a matter of fact the figure of 130,000,000 cubic feet was fixed upon principally because a purchase of that amount would provide the pipe line company the necessary income to meet expenses, earn a profit and retire its investment, wasn't it?" Mr. Grossman asked.

"I was pretty close to that situation," the witness responded. "I think I can say that it is not so. The figure was reached through a process of bargaining. The district pipe line company got the lowest possible figure at which the natural gas pipe line company would bring its product here."

OPPOSE PAYMENT TO DEPOSITORS OF WAUKEGAN BANK

Telegrams protesting against a payment to depositors by the closed Waukegan National bank were sent yesterday to J. W. Poole, federal controller of currency at Washington. Several large depositors in the bank have appealed to Mr. Poole to make a payment, it was revealed. Such action would be a blow to the plan to organize the Citizens Bank and Trust company to take over assets of both the Waukegan State and Waukegan National banks, it was said.

Frank Marsh, president of the Waukegan State Bank Depositors' association; State's Attorney A. V. Smith, the Rotary, Lions and Kiwanis clubs, the Waukegan Chamber of Commerce, and the Manufacturers' association were among those who wired Poole, asking him not to issue a payment.

Plans for establishment of the new bank and issuance of a 35 per cent payment to all depositors of both banks will be completed shortly, Mr. Poole was informed.

EX-SECRETARY IN COMA IN BANK QUIZ MYSTERY

Judge Refuses to Reveal Her Letter to Him.

Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg sat on the bench yesterday awaiting the appearance of Miss Harriet Shosky, former secretary to the late Frank Lackowski, who was president of the closed Second Northwestern State bank. She was scheduled to add to her previous testimony concerning alleged irregularities in the conduct of the bank's business.

Instead, the judge was informed that the witness was near death at her home from the effects of a sleeping portion she had taken the night before.

The sudden news of Miss Shosky's critical illness added new drama to the investigation of the bank. On the night of March 1 Lackowski ended his life in the Lincoln Park lagoon. Earlier that day he had been called into Judge Feinberg's court to face Miss Shosky's accusations that he had forced her to sign notes for $55,000 to cover a loss of the bank for which she was not responsible.

Mystery Letter to Judge.

A further mystery was added to the case by Judge Feinberg's revelation, yesterday, that he had received a letter from Miss Shosky. He refused to disclose its contents after a question had been put to him by Attorney Edgar Cook, representing Miss Shosky's mother.

"It would be unfair to say what Miss Shosky wrote," said the judge. "I don't wish to comment on it. It concerns a matter pending before me in court."

When Attorney Cook first informed the court of the secretary's illness, Judge Feinberg sent his personal physician, Dr. S. R. Pietrowicz, former head of the state hospital at Dunning, to her home to examine her. The doctor reported that she was in a "deadly stupor," and ordered that she be taken to a hospital. She was removed to St. Elizabeth's hospital.

Miss Shosky was still unconscious last night, although her condition was reported to be slightly improved.

Her Testimony Contradicted.

Miss Shosky, who is a divorcée and lives at 5235 Wrightwood avenue, had been contradicted in several portions of her testimony concerning the affairs of the closed bank. She explained her signature on notes to the bank by saying that President Lackowski had "framed" her because for five years she had resisted his advances.

Since Lackowski ended his life in the Lincoln park lagoon, his widow has been seeking to clear his name. Judge Feinberg uncovered many alleged instances of irregular banking and wrongful diversion of the bank's funds. He had directed Miss Shosky to appear before him on Tuesday. On that day Attorney Cook said she was at home caring for her mother, who has influenza. Yesterday Attorney Cook said Miss Shosky's father notified him he couldn't awaken her.

"I was informed by members of her family that her 7 year old daughter saw her take something from her pocketbook at 7 o'clock last night and put it in her mouth," Dr. Pietrowicz reported. "Immediately afterwards she became ill. I can't tell whether or not she took poison."

HOAN IS WINNER IN MILWAUKEE PRIMARY RACE

Milwaukee, Wis., March 16.—(AP)—After having Daniel W. Hoan, Socialist, in the mayor's chair for 16 years, Milwaukee has decided to give him another opportunity at reelection.

The mayor polled a majority of more than 10,000 votes over four competitors in yesterday's mayoralty primary, receiving more than twice as many votes as his nearest rival, Ald. Joseph P. Carney, nonpartisan. Mayor Hoan and Carney will contest for the mayorship in the election April 5.

Stirred by an intensive campaign waged by Hoan, Carney, and Philip C. Westfahl supporters, the Milwaukee electorate cast approximately 130,000 ballots. This was the largest vote ever cast in a municipal primary here.

The complete unofficial vote was: Hoan, 75,178; Carney, N. P., 37,536; Westfahl, N. P., 23,576; Otto R. Werkmeister, N. P., 2,858; Fred Bassett-Blair, communist, 1,757.

The Woman Hater

BY MAY EDGINTON

SYNOPSIS.

Faire Chapelle is the stepdaughter of Ma Chapelle, who owns Flaxen's casino, a cafe of ill repute, near the waterfront of Port Bai. Faire and Aya, Ma's daughter by her first husband of dubious color, have been trained to assist in Flaxen's. The Chapelles are looked upon as outcasts by respectable island residents, and Faire feels their attitude keenly, because her father was of unimpeachable antecedents. He had brought her as a little girl into these unsavory surroundings and left her there at his death. She has kept aloof from all that Flaxen's represents.

Sir Phillip Persian is governor and commander-in-chief of the Tama islands; Bai and St. Rosario. His young secretary and ward, Robert Grand, is involved in an affair with Mira Worcester, a faded beauty. Her husband has become suspicious. Malise Bookes, aid de camp of the governor, to avert a scandal, asks Faire, as a favor to the governor, to clear Mira by proving it was she who'd been meeting young Grand secretly, threatening to close Flaxen's and have the Chapelles deported unless she consents. Sir Phillip is furious with Bookes when he learns that Faire has been forced to accept Mira's guilt. He sends for Faire to try to make amends. He arranges to have her return to her father's people in England. In Jamaica Faire meets Mira Worcester, who is also returning to England.

INSTALLMENT XVI.

THE WORLD OF HER DREAMS.

"How d'you do?" said Faire.

Mira thought, "How dare she say 'how d'you do' to me?"

But there the girl stood, calm, uncaring, and she forced herself to a smiling question:

"Till I sail the day after tomorrow."

The merchant had his eyes on the girl's lissom figure in the old suit, on her clean cut face tanned golden, and her smoky eyes. He rose, as the American rose, and he inquired urbanely:

"Lady Mira, won't your friend take luncheon with us?"

The girl replied for herself, smiling: "Thank you so much. But I have ordered mine."

After the fractional silence full of expectancy, Mira did what was required of her. She made the introductions coldly.

"You and Lady Mira will be sailing together?" the American yacht owner asked Faire.

"It seems as if we may be."

Mira seethed.

"Are you going to England?" she asked swiftly.

"Yes, I'm going home.

"Hardly," said Faire Chapelle. "I've lived there with my stepmother and stepsister for some years, but now I am going home to my father's people."

"'Your father's people?'" Mira echoed questioningly. The irony of her tone added: "Had you a father, and had he 'people'?"

But the American woman, very kind and generous—and disliking Mira—cut in:

"Won't that be lovely and exciting for you?"

Faire Chapelle answered direct to the American woman, with a low, cool laugh: "I'm going to a sister I haven't seen for ten years. Lady Rosewood."

There was a general murmur.

"How lovely! We go to London such a lot. Archer, don't we seem to know Lady Rosewood's name?"

"Why, surely . . ."

Then in Faire Chapelle's breast there beat up heavenly ecstasies of pride and rapture.

Mira sat very still, lorgnette down. Hands clenched on her knees under the table, she said:

"Really! Is—is Sheba Rosewood your sister?"

But she was thinking: "How awful! How damnable! What shall I do if—if—the girl tells her?"

Faire answered, with again the cool laugh:

"Sheba—yes. She has a beauty salon now, you know."

"Sheba!" the American woman exclaimed. "Why, we know. My dear, your sister's got the most marvelous salons in London and Paris. Now, isn't that wonderful that you should just drop upon us here!"

"O, my God!" Mira thought.

"It's too bad that I should interrupt your lunch like this," Faire said. "Forgive me! Good-by."

But the other man—the Jamaican—came after her to her table.

"Miss Chapelle, I know Lady Mira would be awfully pleased if you would come with us to the club and dance this afternoon. Five o'clock?"

She demurred: "Have you room in your party?"

"Please come."

Faire sat for a long while over her luncheon in that pleasant place, lingering on till Mira Worcester had—rather early—left her friends, and gone, not looking right or left, into the hotel; until the Americans rose too and, beaming on her a friendly, "Au 'voir," moved away, and she found the Kingston merchant again before her.

"Five o'clock, Miss Chapelle?"

"Five o'clock," she nodded.

He smiled his pleasure and let her see the admiration in his eyes, and saluted genially and went away. Once more in her room alone Faire Chapelle lay down to rest, and slept a little and smiled in her light sleep because that man had said that Lady Mira would be "awfully pleased." She felt hard and bitter towards Mira, fierce with the fierceness of pain that would take much assuaging.

Again she put on the organdie gown that she had worn when Persian had first touched her hand, the exotic little Palm Beach frock, and the hat that matched it. At 5 o'clock she was with the others, driving in a big car, sitting beside her host, who was at the wheel, towards the Liguanea club, on the plain beyond the town.

Of the rest of that day Faire only knew that she had plunged straight into the world of her dreams. To be an honored guest in one of the best country clubs in the West Indies, to be admired with respect, to be placed instantly, unreservedly, on an equality with the other women there, to 'belong,' to feel herself with social rights beyond dispute; thus, happily, to watch the polo and the tennis; to be served instead of to serve—the simple progression of all this was a miracle long withheld and at last performed.

They stayed on for dinner and danced late.

There was one contradiction to this, and that might have flawed the entire rapture of the occasion. But it did not, because it was the look in Mira's eyes when they stood near each other before the mirrors in the dressing room, when they had to speak, to smile, to be coolly unaware of undercurrents. It was a look of frustration and hate, but it was how she would have had Mira Worcester look at her. For forgiveness—if it would ever be—was not yet.

Mira had banked—for this evening—on silence. It had occurred to her to try to find occasion to murmur to the American woman: "You noticed, I'm afraid, that I was not very pleased to see this girl. She really is outside the pale. No one knew her in Port Bai—except the men, of course . . . She got into most frightful trouble. . . . I don't understand how she comes to be here at all."

But Mira judged, on the whole, that these words, trembling at the brink of her lips all the evening, would be unwise. They would be premature and unpopular. They were dangerous.

Mira tired. It was not only that she had no more the resiliency of real youth, but her emotions, always at hysteria peak, wore her down. She could not dance all the evening as this girl could, so effortlessly, light as the wind. As Mira craved for youth again, she longed to spoil the youth of Faire Chapelle.

For she thought also of little Grand, whom she had adored, though in terror she had given up all idea of a love life with him as soon as she envisioned losing the future Worcester money. She thought of the bungalow evening he had spent with Faire Chapelle and suffered jealousy. Although the girl had perforce let herself be used for the woman's ends, yet the primitive animal in the woman longed actually to lay hands upon her, to tear her and spoil her.

So, to the end of the evening and the drive back to the Myrtle Bank. Mira must listen, seeming indifferent, to plans being laid for tomorrow, for the feting of Faire Chapelle, and to the enthusiastic arrangements made by her own American friends to meet this girl again in London. She had to see all this and by her presence sponsor it.

But at the end there were she and Faire by themselves walking into the hotel.

Mira invited, low and tense:

"Do come into my room a moment, Miss Chapelle."

A new Mira, like a tigress, her weariness gone. But a new Faire Chapelle also, a tigress, and never yet wearied.

"What are you doing here?" said Mira in a clipped voice.

"What I told you. I am going home."

"Is that true?"

Faire made no other reply than a smile in which there was all contempt.

"What could you possibly have that I could possibly want?"

"You want me to introduce you to people, to seem to be your friend. I know your kind! You want to make use of me."

A tide of real color surged under the doll like makeup on Mira's face.

"You are crude, aren't you?"

"What was it like at Flaxen's then?" jeered Mira, beside herself, and then ashamed of herself.

The Chauffeur.....Douglas Dumbrille

Good Morning!

WHY—CERTAINLY! The "weaker" sex is the wiser! BEING weaker they'd NEED to be wiser, wouldn't they? Just the old law of compensation.

This drama at the United Artists' was fashioned from an old Clyde Fitch play. It has nothing much to offer as to originality of plot, but is blessed with four players who are well liked by movie fans. You know them—Claudette Colbert, Lilyan Tashman, Melvyn Douglas, and William Boyd. The others in the cast—with the exception of Robert Rischer who, as Friz, a waiter, does a brief bit brilliantly—are more or less negligible quantities—meaning that they perform their duties as well but no better than could many others.

Direction is spotty. The courtroom scenes were poorly handled, I thought. Staging, costumes and sound are pleasing.

The narrative's to-do is about the framing of an honest and successful young district attorney by gangsters whose nefarious activities he threatens. The girl who loves him comes to his rescue. For the good of his cause she "drinks and she bets and she smokes cigarets and sometimes it really seems she forgets that she's his, all his——"

Only, you see, she DOESN'T forget.

Lilyan Tashman, wearing at one time and another, most of her entire wardrobe, I would say, looks stunning and is convincing as the chief villain's dubious ray of sunshine. Mr. Douglas in keen and unskeert as the casus belli. Mr. Boyd looks and acts a limb of Satan.

"The Wiser Sex" would never inspire any newspaper to get out an extra, but I reckon you'll like it all right.

Produced by Universal.
Directed by James Whale.
Presented at the State-Lake theater.

THE CAST.

Dr. Myron Brown.....Lew Ayres
Ruth Robbins.....Mae Clarke
Betty Merrick.....Una Merkel
Albert Hartman.....John Halliday
Clarence Howe.....Andy Devine
Dr. Wilcox.....Oscar Apfel
Nurse Lovett.....Ethel Griffies
Mrs. Gillman.....Helen Jerome Eddy
Mr. Gillman.....Bert Roach
Ambulance driver.....Monty Montague
Mr. Rosy.....Lorin Raker
Mrs. Rosy.....Cecil Cunningham
Mr. Thomas.....Arthur Hoyt
Mrs. Thomas.....Blanche Payson

The great "Arrowsmith" started it. And now come galloping the also rans. "The Impatient Maiden," one of the first of these, will, I'm afraid, result in impatient audiences. It is an immaturely combined goulash with a hospital base, crudely seasoned with so-called comedy.

A young hospital interne, Dr. Brown, and the secretary of a divorce lawyer, are the principal characters, and the picture's "punch" comes when the former, who, we assume has passed his "state board" and secured his medical license, performs the first operation of his impending career upon his beloved who is stricken with appendicitis in the wee sma' hours when no other surgeon is immediately available.

Noble self-sacrifice on the part of said young woman, who refuses to wed Dr. Brown for fear as how she will hamper him;

Falsetto wise cracks and considerable low comedy rendered by a male nurse who accompanies Dr. Brown on his ambulance calls, and becomes affianced to Betty. Exceedingly unfunny, this Andy Devine.

Both Lew Ayres and Mae Clarke, who, as you know, from the former's work in "All Quiet On the Western Front" and the latter's performance in "Waterloo Bridge," are here pitiably miscast. John Halliday struggles valiantly but to no great effect with his stupid part as the divorce lawyer. Una Merkel is more happily equipped as the talkative "Alabamy," but neither she nor anybody else connected with the film has been able to make it other than a mediocre movie whose only claim to glory lies in some arresting camera work.

(And James Whale, who made "Journey's End" and "Waterloo Bridge," directed the production! Well, of course he DID have sort of a sow's ear to work with . . .)

See you soon!

Nervous Parent Can Wreck Life of a Youngster

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"My little girl loves her daddy better than she does me. When she is hurt she runs to him to be comforted and says, 'Dear daddy, dear daddy.' Why is that? What can I do about it? I am terribly nervous and when she does things I slap her and scream at her."

When you and I read a statement like that we can see at a glance why daddy is the more loved, and because we are on the outside looking in we can wonder a little that the mother herself can't see it, even though she actually writes the explanation. We who have worked out pretty well the management of our children can rather glibly say, "Well, of course the trouble is plain and the remedy simple. Stop slapping and screaming at the little girl and be as loving and understanding as her father is."

But all this is more easily said than done. There are, unfortunately for the babies and children in this world, many women, nervous to start with, many women who are made more nervous by children, and many women who, even though they are mothers, are not especially suited for the job. A woman who slaps and screams at her children is not necessarily afflicted with all three of these handicaps, but any one of them is enough to interfere with her success with her child's behavior and with the child's loving her. A combination of the three must have a devastating effect on a woman. But what is worse, can almost ruin a child's life and eventually alienate her completely from her mother.

What to do? The answer is not easy but will be attempted tomorrow and the day following.

How to Escape FLU and Grippe

1 Avoid as far as possible the places where germs are most likely to be spread; overcrowded cars and public meeting places; stuffy, poorly ventilated rooms.

2 Be careful of close contact with others and beware of all coughers and sneezers; breathe through the nose, get fresh air but avoid drafts or chilling.

3 Get lots of rest. Drink plenty of water. Keep the bowels open. Take extra precaution to keep in good physical condition, so your system will have normal resistance against germs.

4 Try, particularly to avoid catching colds. Colds lower your resistance to disease germs. At the first sign of any cold, take Bayer Aspirin and remain indoors if possible until your cold is gone. Gargle with Bayer Aspirin dissolved in water at the first touch of sore throat, as this relieves the soreness and usually reduces the inflammation.

5 If you have any reason to suspect even a touch of flu, call your doctor at once.

Modern Life Pales Paradox of Chesterton

But 'All Is Grist' Offers Pleasant Evening.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"All Is Grist," by G. K. Chesterton [Dodd Mead]. Published tomorrow.

G. K. CHESTERTON has been, ever since I was a young girl making my first dives into the swimming pool of contemporary "intelligence," almost like the miraculous pitcher, so far as his outpouring of essays has gone. In those days it was considered very daring to like him. He was whispered about as the most brilliantly clever writer of the day, with all of those amusing twists of paradox that he indulged in ceaselessly.

G. K. CHESTERTON. [Moffett Studio.]

Since then life itself has become such a paradox that Mr. Chesterton's antics with words have seemed a little pale. There still flow from his pen essays on every conceivable subject in a miraculously undammed fluidity. They still have paradox as their filip. But they seem, somehow, after all of these years occasionally a trifle pallid.

The latest collection is called "All Is Grist," and in the volume everything under the sun is "essayed" from "The Prudery of Slang" to "The Nudists," from "Dante and Beatrice" to "Mr. Shaw's Puritanism." Each essay is five or six pages long, done with the light touch, and the reader can have a calm, pleasant, mildly amusing evening darting among them.

Finds Intellect Not Improved.

In "On the Intellect of Yesterday" Mr. Chesterton says "I think there would be a case for maintaining this: that the world has improved ir everything EXCEPT intellect. In artistic sensibilities, and even in social sympathies [at least of a certain kind] I think there has been a quickening and a response. I think it probable that the number of people who can rapidly get used to a foreign fashion or style of ornament, who can guess what an eccentric artist is driving at, who can feel the emotions evoked by unusual music, is larger than it was in mid-Victorian times. But these things do not appeal to the intellect. They make signals to the sentimental part of human nature, and the code of those signals is learned more quickly than it would once have been. But when it comes to anything like a strain on the intellect as suc', I think that most modern people are much stupider than those in the age of my father, and probably very much stupider than those in the age of my grandfather. I have reasons for my belief, but it illustrates my point that the modern reader would hardly listen to a long process of reasoning. . . ."

Mr. Chesterton's paradoxes of words have given way to his paradoxes of ideas—not that his ideas in the early essays weren't as paradoxical as they are now, but then Mr. Chesterton used the trick of apparent contradiction in words as well as in ideas.

Discovering Canada.

In an essay, "On Travel's Surprises," he says in discussing the impression that a traveler has of Canada when he sees it first from a boat entering the St. Lawrence, "He feels, as the first explorer must have felt, that it is really a world set apart; that he had never guessed the earth contained anything so vast, yet so concealed."

That paragraph reminded me of an afternoon I spent with Willa Cather a few months before the publication of "Shadows on the Rock," when she had just finished the manuscript of the book. She was describing the effect which Canada had on her and how she was suddenly aware that she must write a book about Quebec. It was when she was going up the St. Lawrence that the book became clear to her. "I felt as the first explorers must have felt," she said. I never forgot that phrase, for, when I read "Shadows on the Rock" it had so much of that first wonder and beauty and terror and strength about it that Miss Cather actually WAS a first explorer.

She had been going to Canada for a few weeks in the summer for many years before she wrote "Shadows on the Rock," and she had always felt that she must some day write something about Canada, but the vision of what she really wanted to do came to her with that reincarnation of the first explorers' vision.

Mr. Chesterton says: "I suddenly saw Canada. I had visited it before; but I had never seen it before."

Mrs. Abraham Lincoln
By W. A. EVANS

"About no other mistress of the White House, except Mrs. Andrew Jackson, have there been so many vicious and vituperative tales as about Mary Todd Lincoln. . . . It has remained, however, for Dr. W. A. Evans to sift the fact from the fiction. . . . (in this) popular but scholarly treatise . . ." The author is well-known as editor of the "How to Keep Well" column of this paper. One might well conclude from his portrait that Abraham Lincoln became president due almost as much to Mrs. Lincoln's efforts as to his own. Illustrated. A few numbered copies still available on all rag paper at $7.50.

Want to shake a few pounds off the hips? And off the waist at the same time?

There's a woman, I hear, who is getting quite a handsome sum per instruction who tells her clients she cannot do a thing for them until they become line conscious. They must think, act and believe in that line from under arm down to knee sides. Think it slimmer, she tells them. And the first reaction of clients is to straighten up, throw the head up, walk a bit dress modelish, and presto, there is a better line already!

You practice that now—with my compliments. But if there is fat there, don't you believe you're going to think it off. Get out the old tape measure and check up on the hip girth. Set the tape measure at a mark a couple of inches under the grand total you measure now. And watch what happens!

I'm going to give you one swell exercise to work on that padded hip of yours. You can do it as many times a day as you want; the oftener, the better. But do go a bit easily at first—just so you won't get sore and discouraged and throw up the hip reducing business right away.

Lie flat on the floor on your back. Keep the head and shoulders as close to the floor as you can throughout the hip rolling movement I'll now describe. The trick is to make the hips do the rolling—not the upper part of the body. From your prone position, then, raise your right leg, swing it over the left and up until it is at right angles with the body. Then give it a good stretch and back to place it goes.

You'll note that the waist got a pull that won't do it any harm, either. Then, with the other leg swing over to the right side, stretching this leg for good measure.

String Quartet Gives Program of Two Numbers

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Alexander Sebald's string quartet, an organization which plays with limpid fire, gave the sixth of its series of chamber music recitals at Kimball hall last night. Only two compositions appeared on the program, but these, because of their length, were enough to make up an evening's entertainment.

The first was the Beethoven quartet in E flat, otherwise known by its publication number of opus 127. Coming toward the end of Beethoven's career, it showed him in his mightiest though not in the most cryptic of his writings. Mr. Sebald's quartet played it in that mood, openly, persuasively, with complete understanding, and yet with no effort to put it into the category that only the precious few of the master minds might comprehend.

The second part of the program was given to the Mozart Quintet in A, in which there was invoked the services of an uncommonly talented clarinetist, Sam Fain.

A feature of the young people's program by the Chicago Symphony orchestra yesterday afternoon at Orchestra hall was the solo appearance of Alice Baran, pianist, a recent winner in a contest promoted by the Society of American Musicians. She appeared in what is in the light of the present generation an incredibly naïve composition, Weber's "Concert Piece," but played it not only correctly but with stirring fervor. The Chopin Etude in G flat followed as an encore. Dr. J. Lewis Browne appeared as guest conductor in two of his own compositions, and Mr. Stock conducted Dvorak's "Carnival" Overture, Debussy's "Festivals," and an abbreviated version of the last movement of Tschaikowsky's Fifth Symphony.

A cablegram from Italy tells of the unmistakable triumph of Rosa Raisa in the name part of "Norma" at the Royal theater in Rome, also of the equal success of her husband, Giacomo Rimini, in the baritone rôle of "Fedora" at the San Carlo in Naples.

Theater Guild and Shuberts Seek Alliance

Joint Board May Handle Subscription Tours.

The Theater Guild and the Shubert Theatrical company are now making arrangements for an alliance, affiliation or combination of their subscription drama groups for next season. This will affect the Guild's touring productions and the circuit of organized audiences formed by the Shuberts three years ago with the Dramatic League of Chicago as its main link.

Dispatches from New York state that conferences between the two firms have been in progress for several months, but the details of the plan have not yet been worked out. It is likely that a board of directors will be appointed to select plays for the subscription tours from the New York productions of both managements.

This alliance, according to Rialto gossip, will be the first step in a blending of the "road" interests of the Shuberts and the Erlanger company, bitter rivals and competitors in theatrical management for many years. The latter firm has been handling the bookings of the Theater Guild's touring companies.

Thus it appears that the future of the Dramatic League of Chicago is not "problematical," as stated in THE TRIBUNE day before yesterday, but that the organization, now ending its third season, will continue to function. An announcement from its director gives assurance on this point, and adds:

"The league's first bulletin for the season of 1932-'33 is not due until about April 1. But its subscription books have been open, and its clerks have been active in taking subscriptions for next year since Jan. 1. The enrollment of renewals and the influx of new subscriptions are indicative of a healthy public interest in the enterprise."

The league's sixth and last play of the current season, "Experience Unnecessary," will close its engagement at the Harris theater next Saturday night. Seven attractions were promised to the subscribers, and therefore members of the league will be given their usual privileges and preferred seat locations during the first month of the run of "Everybody's Welcome," the musical comedy which will come to the Apollo theater March 26.

Claude Buck's Work Gets Three Awards.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

In view of the many honors which have been heaped upon Claude Buck's "Girl Reading" in the current Chicago Artists' exhibit at the Art institute it seems clear now in what manner all those artists who are doubtful of themselves should paint. That picture, ultra conservative in character, realistic with a realism almost uncanny in so far as the chair is concerned, and the chair quite dwarfs the girl sitting in it, has just received the prize of most popular work of art, according to the vote of the members of the institute, which closed Tuesday night.

Three awards therefore have fallen to this picture's lot. It was given the Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan medal and $750, the popularity prize of $200, and the Chicago Painters and Sculptors' association gold medal. The awards are the more interesting inasmuch as the painting possesses literally everything against which the practice of the museum trustees and officials have been turned this many a long year.

Apparently the members of the Art institute are not in accord with the modernist-minded management and have taken this very pointed way in which to register the kind of art they really like. Whether their action will bear fruit in future exhibits remains to be seen. A happy medium between the "Girl Reading" and Picasso-Cezanne-Matisse-Modigliani - Rousseau sports would be a welcome solution.

The other paintings in line for the popular prize were "The Old North Side," by Marshall D. Smith; "Salt of the Earth," by Rudolph Ingerle, and "Daily Bread," by Lou Matthews. The exhibit has another week to run, closing March 20.

Lowest Prices in Years at Berlin Art Auction

BERLIN, March 16.—(AP)—The lowest prices in years were recorded today at the spring art auction. Soviet items from the Hermitage museum at Leningrad and the Charkow museum were particularly cheap. Van Dyck's "Lamentations for Christ" brought only 125 marks—about $31. Rembrandt's "Two Men in Conversation" brought about $150. Prices ran from 30 to 50 per cent of the catalog quotations.

Girl Wonders Value Men Give to Kisses

They're Asked to Explain Themselves.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Here's something that's puzzling "Doris" and I feel that I need some of you young men to "come clean" and help us wimmin to a clearer understanding. Just what's in a kiss to you men, anyway?

"Doris" and her beau are both college students, 19 and 21 respectively. They spend much time in each other's company—but there will be no engagement or anything like that until they're through school. The boy, it seems, is the victi . of an unconquerable habit. He wants to kiss every new girl he meets. Doesn't mean a thing by it. Just a habit, to hear the boy friend tell it.

Meanwhile, "Doris" is the girl he likes the best. And he never kisses her in public nor is he very strong on kissing her when they're alone. Says it's all right for the other girls—but she is different.

And here's "Doris'" question: "Is it because he has more respect for me? If so, can you find any justification for his acting up with other girls?"

Understand, of course, that Doris is the girl he takes everywhere with him—to the dances, shows, etc. So, by his actions, as well as his word to Doris one may judge her place of supremacy with the kissing bug.

Our first question, Doris' and mine and that of all the other women interested, is: "Is that a good example to be setting the girl friend?"

Second question, gentlemen: "Aren't you afraid the habit might be catching? That some uncontrollable impulse might attack us women folk, too, an i no gentlemen would be safe from our desire to implant a 'smacker' [isn't that what you call it?] Just a habit, you understand. No harm in it, at all. That's our story now.

How would you stand up under it? Could you bear it?

We women wager you'd raise merry Ned and a few other demons, into the bargain. That you couldn't see it in the light in which it was practiced at all—that is, as just a light little parlor gesture.

What do you say, boys? We're listenin'!

Borglum Discusses Plans for Memorial Statue of Bryan

Jacksonville, Ill., March 16.—[Special.]—Gutzon Borglum, famed sculptor, was here today in conference with M. F. Dunlap, member of the William Jennings Bryan memorial committee. He displayed a cast of the Great Commoner, made six weeks before Mr. Bryan resigned as secretary of state, which will be used as the basis upon which he will make the twenty foot bronze statue of Bryan.

The statue will be mounted on a pedestal of Tennessee marble and placed upon a spot yet to be selected in the city of Washington.

Famous English Contest on Tomorrow.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE Grand National at Aintree will be run tomorrow and many Chicagoans will be up and about early to learn the result. Although the race starts at 2:30 p. m. in England, the difference in time will make the event a morning affair for Chicagoans, particularly those who will listen to the radio accounts of the race.

The most interested listeners in Chicago, no doubt, will be the owners of Sea Soldier, one of the entries in the famous race, and I understand quite a few of them will assemble in Austin H. Niblack's office to hear the broadcast. There will be jubilation and celebration if the son of Man o' War wins, of course, and probably thick gloom in the brokerage office if the horse doesn't make a good showing. Mrs. Noble B. Judah, the wife of one of the owners, is the only Chicagoan vitally interested who will attend the race, "in person," and she and Miss Elizabeth Chase will be there, cheering for all those less fortunate ones who are at home.

Mrs. Robert J. Thorne, wife of another owner, is on the ocean en route to England, but she will not land in time for the race, I am told. Wolcott Blair, who had planned to go over for the event, still is in New York with Mrs. Blair, and all the others of the syndicate, Mr. Niblack, Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, Benjamin L. Behr, Donald M. Ryerson, Charles F. Glore, Edward A. Cudahy Jr., and Vaughan Spalding, either are here or vacationing somewhere in this country.

Invitations for Warner Wedding.

Invitations are being received today by the Chicago and Lake Forest relatives and friends of Ezra J. Warner Jr. for his marriage to Miss Rosamond Moore of New York, which is to take place on April 9 at St. James' church on Madison avenue in New York.

The service is to be read at 4:30 o'clock and will be followed by a reception at Pierre's. Miss Susan Moore is to be her sister's maid of honor, and another sister, Mrs. Moore Erwin, will be the matron of honor.

The bridesmaids will be Mrs. Gordon P. Kelley [Hortense Henry] of Chicago [Miss Moore was here for the Henry-Kelley wedding on Jan. 16], Miss Allaire Crozer of Philadelphia, Miss Nancy Allen of Hartford, and the Misses Catherine Marshall, Rosamund Turner, and Mabel Whitman of New York. Thomas C. Dennehy Jr. of Lake Forest will serve Mr. Warner as best man, and ushering will be Gordon P. Kelley and Thomas Tyler of Chicago, Hoyt Smith, John B. Morse, and Edison Dick of Lake Forest; Rhoderic Blackhurst Jr. of Forest Hills, L. I.; Douglas MacArthur II. of Washington, and John Brodie of Watertown, Conn.

Mr. Warner and his bride will be at home after May 1 at 1366 North Dearborn street. Miss Moore is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Moore of 55 East 78th street, New York, and Mr. Warner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Joseph Warner of Lake Forest.

Mrs. Nelson Thomasson Jr. is giving a kitchen shower and tea next Monday afternoon at her residence, 1345 Astor street, for Miss Virginia Doering, who is to become the bride of Robert Martin McCutcheon Stevenson of New York on March 30. The sisters of the bride-to-be, the Misses Edna and Nancy Doering, Miss Betty Brawley, and Miss Nelle Offutt will pour.

Many Parties for Miss Bosworth.

Miss Eleanor Griffin of 1127 Forest avenue, Evanston, is giving a luncheon today for Miss Frances Bosworth of Evanston who is to be married to Dr. Trevor D. Stamp of London on April 5. Among the other parties planned for Miss Bosworth before the marriage are a luncheon tomorrow at which Mrs. Albert R. Hansen will be hostess at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Buck of 1918 Sheridan road, Evanston; a tea that Mrs. George L. Wilkinson will give on Sunday at her residence, 1027 Greenwood boulevard, Evanston; a luncheon at the Casino next Wednesday at which Mrs. W. Calhoun Smith will be hostess, followed by a matinée party; a luncheon on Friday, the 25, given by Mrs. Peter Mayo; a luncheon on Monday, March 28, given by the Misses Jane and Barbara Black; a luncheon at which Mrs. Harry Boyd Hurd and her daughter, Mrs. Howard Keller, will be hostesses on the 29th; a tea given by Miss Margaret Quan at her residence, 38 East Elm street, on Saturday, April 2; a dinner given by Miss Bosworth's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Dawes, on the evening of April 2; a tea that Mr. and Mrs. Irving Rew will give on April 3, followed by a buffet supper given by Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Dawes; and the bridal dinner that the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Bosworth, will give the night before the wedding.

Mrs. Waller Borden, who's been mixing politics with sociability in a campaign to interest women of "the better element" in the coming election, held the third of a series of luncheons for Robert M. Woodward, candidate for state representative, at the Arts club yesterday. Among those present were Mrs. Frederick T. Haskell, Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick, Mrs. Charles H. Conrad, Mrs. Erich Gerstenberg, Miss Emily Larned, Mrs. William B. Greenlee, Mrs. Ernest R. Graham, Miss Anna Fitziu, Mrs. Edward Fifield, Mrs. Carter Semple, Miss Ellen Babcock, and Mrs. Josephine Llewellyn.

The Chicago Latin School for Girls will hold a visiting day for alumnæ tomorrow. Former students have been invited to revisit classes and to have luncheon in the school cafeteria. During the assembly period the school girls will give a program of French songs and plays and there will be a basketball game in the afternoon.

So. Seas Movie Group Hunting Real Cannibals

Fairbanks Hopes to Film Real Chase.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., March 16.—The first batch of Douglas Fairbanks' impressions, pictorial and written, about his film adventure in the South seas causes Mary Pickford and Doug's friends at United Artists studio to believe that excitement has been terrific everywhere the Fairbanks film crew touched.

At present Doug and Maria Alba, their cast, and the crew of the yacht Invader, which has been turned into a seagoing studio, are at Papeete, Tahiti, making preliminary shots and using the laboratories and equipment which the ill-fated Fred Murnau constructed there two years ago when he made "Tabu" before venturing into more remote regions of the South Pacific coral archipelagoes.

Doug springs a new idea on his home staying friends in word from Papeete that he has decided to hunt up a remote primitive isle inhabited by head hunters or such ilk for a newly thought out sequence for his romantic comedy adventure about a modern Crusoe.

The sequence will show Doug as a white island castaway chased from his island by head hunters to seek refuge on a millionaire's yacht which providentially anchors near his habitation.

Doug's idea is to hunt an island where the natives will be in a mood to chase a white man merely for the fun of what they would do to him if they caught him. Doug intends to flee off such an island to the yacht, let the natives board the yacht, and then let things turn out as they will, meanwhile having his camera men grinding away.

"We will try to gain their good will after they come aboard with beads and things like that," Doug naïvely explains. Mary Pickford says she cannot help worrying that maybe the natives might not like beads, but prefer portions of white man's anatomy instead.

The cannibal island part of Doug's film plans developed after he lent an car to First Officer Pat O'Ryan of the yacht. It develops O'Ryan has been taking trading schooners into and out of little frequented South sea islands for 28 years, and he promised Doug he could pilot him to remote places where even O'Ryan had never gone ashore and where the first officer did not believe any other white man had gone either, because the trading possibilities in those islands were outweighed by the chances of losing portions of anatomy without which one could not get along.

Excitement over Doug's expedition began the first day out of San Francisco on the steamer which took the movie troupe to Tahiti to keep rendezvous with the Invader there. A stowaway was yanked from a hiding place on the steamer and turned out to be a youth from the midwest who had dogged Fairbanks from Hollywood, hitchhiking, in hopes to induce the actor to take him to Tahiti, too.

Doug put up enough money to keep the youth out of the steamer's brig, but the stowaway was unceremoniously deposited in a French dungeon at Papeete and deported on the next boat back to California.

Another bit of excitement on the voyage over was when one of the steamer's stewards, perhaps overwrought by the tension surrounding the array of notables aboard, leaped into the briny to do away with himself. Rescued once by a ship's boat, the man again jumped into the sea as he was being carried aboard, and the next time he was reached in the ocean his sailor pals quieted him with a tap on the head by captain's orders. He was declared insane by the ship surgeon and placed in the brig.

The entire population of Papeete, city of 3,800, turned out, the Polynesian belles riding bicycles down from the mountainside residential sections of the town to view the newcomers, with their newly bobbed hair and mail order flapper ensembles flying in the breeze, much to the disappointment of the Hollywood sojourners, who were hoping for unspoiled languorous beauties in grass skirts.

Cultural Side of Enameling Being Revived

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

ENAMEL—a romantic word—but what does it mean to you? The green or ivory tint on the kitchen walls, the blue and white nameplate on the dentist's door, or a lovely Limoge or Byzantine?

Any one of these things, perhaps all, for the ancient art has been commercialized to the extent of millions. Society is talking enamels today, however, from their most cultural standpoint. By way of Austria, Russia, Sweden, and the orient we are experiencing a revival of the boxes, vases, and paintings made by enamel artists in the time of the French Louis.

In many of our better homes recently I hav discovered a cigaret box done in the strikingly modern Austrian enamel or a jewel box decorated with Chinese cloissone. To appreciate the art, however, is to know something of its history. With this thought in mind Mrs. Alfred H. Granger has invited a number of her friends to hear Miss Marianne Willisch describe Austrian enamels this afternoon at her town apartment, 900 North Michigan avenue.

Member of Austrian Guild.

Miss Willisch is particularly well qualified to discuss the subject as a member of the Austrian Werkbund, a guild of craftsmen organized in 1912 to carry forward the modern art movement introduced in that country at the beginning of the century. Membership in the guild is coveted for the work of an artist must meet certain high standards before he is accepted and again, before his crafts are sold, they must be passed by a jury.

The lecture is to be illustrated with jewelry, bowls, vases, pictures, and boxes made by enamel artists who are members of the Werkbund—many of them the same as Miss Willisch showed at the Arts club and at the Art Institute when she first came to this country a few years ago. Except for the religious paintings—in particular the 14 stations of the cross—the Austrian designs are strikingly modern. And the colors! They go to prove that what has been accomplished in the past may with proper attention be repeated.

In a jewel box I saw yesterday was all the softness of the pale rose that perpetuates the memory of Madame du Barry, the favorite of Louis XV, whose beautiful head fell at the guillotine. A bowl was done in the deep blue so worthily named "bleu de roi" while the rich maroon and the more vivid tones of red reappeared in still other pieces.

Use Ancient Process.

Up to date as the patterns are, however, the process followed in making these enamels is quite the same as that used for pieces of the 15th century and now treasured by a museum or private collector. Metal is the base to which the enamel is applied and fired. The champlevé and cloisonne enamels are distinguished by the fine metal wires or lines tracing the designs.

In conclusion, a bit of history! Though the ancient Egyptians and Assyrians practiced the art on their palace walls, we generally trace it to Byzantium between the sixth and ninth centuries. I remember one of the finest examples of this period—the "Pala d'Oro" in St. Mark's, Venice, believed to have been brought from Constantinople about 1105. It is a magnificent altar piece in cloisonne enamel—the design, medallions filled with sacred subjects and foliated scrolls.

The next great application of enamel was at Cologne and from here the secrets of the craft were taken to Limoges during the 12th century. Then the 15th century and the revolutionary developments which made possible the application of enamel to both sides of a metal without the enclosing ribbon [much like the set of a jewel] and the application of one enamel to another.

Enamel paintings began to flourish—Nardon Penicaud was the first among these artists, then Leonard Limosin, famous for his Catherine of Lorraine. With the 18th century boxes for snuff, jewels, and "carnets de bal," all them intended as "souvenirs de l'amour."

A decline and now a revival. This is the art that will be discussed today in Mrs. Granger's drawing room.

Buying Shoes Real Pleasure This Season

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Getting down to foot level for spring fashion knowledge is every bit as interesting and necessary as the footwork it entails. Good ground workers in the new spring shapes in shoes are going to cause a lot of complimentary comments. Shoes this season can't be casually dismissed with the minimum amount of shopping time. Even though you are one of those rare shoppers who knows exactly what and where to go for just the sort of shoes you need, you'll l'nger much longer than you have ever lingered before, for spring shoes simply are irresistible!

The first news you will hear will be that heels have "gone down" in company with a lot of other declining commodities, very high heels are conspicuously missing . . . doctors and health authorities can use their paper and ink for other public evils, since t e new moderately high heels are practical, sensible, and mighty good looking as well. And unless you have an eagle eye for measuring, you won't be able to tell the difference, so cleverly and skillfully the manner in which the designers have curved the arches, shortened insteps and juggled width and length to achieve the flattering results.

Popular colors march in line with fashionable clothes colors . . . blue, brown, and black in the sequence noted . . . and shoe makers have been exceedingly generous, in fact, lavish, in supplying the greatest array of shades and tones. You'll have no difficulty in matching any dress, suit, or coat with new shoes that will harmonize exactly.

This spring your shoes will be trimmed, but trimmed with much distinction . . . charming intricate designs decorate all insteps . . . colored, exquisitely narrow pipings outline delicate motifs on the toes . . . fragile Grecian key designs go about on the smartest shoes in a lighter shade for contrast. Heels are decorated, and in many models heels are of an entirely different color leather than the rest of the shoe.

The three smartest trio of models for early spring and summer wear are strap and sandal styles, oxfords, and pumps in the opera cut. Spring sandals are a matter of lots of airy slits and holes, cut-outs and interlaced straps with the moderately high heel very much in evidence. The last taps of really high heels will be heard late at night in the models for dancing.

The smartest street-going shoes are oxfords and pumps . . . new models that are classic in their simplicity of line, but delightfully feminine with ornamentation. Blue leather pumps are contrasted with unusual motifs of grayish beige python skin . . . the same models have heels entirely of python also . . . another blue pair flaunt pipings of scarlet, edging the appliqued designs on the toe. Likewise brown leather oxfords use beige leather trimmings . . . other brown shoes use contrasting leathers in the same shade of dark gleaming brown.

Fashion forecasts . . . white linen, white mesh, white rough silks, white kidskins and of course lots of white satin pumps ready for the tinting tubes . . . all shops are preparing for a white summer, and the shoe shops are keeping step in perfect time with all manner of new and fascinating shoes for every wardrobe.

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The last word in dresses for wear from five to eight is the dress that apes the suit. Smart women who wear these frocks disregard the eight o'clock dead line and keep them on when they are running about Paris in public places until the milkman comes along.

The two piece dress was the forerunner of the three piece for such occasions, the latter having in addition to a separate blouse and skirt, a vest. You can get the idea perfectly by consulting the accompanying sketch. This is a Maggy Rouff outfit in three pieces, and is one of the smartest informal outfits to be found in Paris. The skirt of this model is made of black satin and is accordian plaited from the high waistline to the ankles, where its hemline ends its career.

Over the blouse goes a fitted vest like those that men wear with tuxedos. This vest, made of black satin and buttoned with four rhinestone buttons, ends at the waistline.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., March 16.—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Hoover had as their guests over night former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Walter E. Hope, who returned to their New York home this morning. Mr. and Mrs. Hope came for the dinner last evening which President and Mrs. Hoover gave for the new United States ambassador to London, Andrew W. Mellon, former secretary of the treasury.

The secretary of state and Mrs. Stimson were guests of honor at dinner this evening of the Hungarian minister and Countess Szechenyi.

Mrs. Burt Massee of Chicago is spending ten days in Washington and came in time to attend the annual dinner of the Women's National Press club Monday evening.

It must be pleasant to do an unwelcome task because you know you ought to do it and to be richly rewarded for your pains. Let us glance at yesterday's play-a-problem and see the wonderful surprise that awaited South.

North dealt and bid two spades. East overcalled with three hearts and South passed. West went to four hearts and North to four spades, which closed the bidding.

East opened the ♥ A, dummy played the 4, West the 9, and declarer trumped with the ♠ J. Declarer then led out the ♠ Q and followed with the ♠ 6, which dummy took with the ♠ 9, thus clearing the suit. Dummy led back the ♣ 8, West played the 4, and North 5, finessing dummy's 8. Dummy then led the ♣ 3, West taking the trick with the ♣ A. West returned the ♥ K, which declarer trumped with the ♠ K, leading back the ♣ K, which picked up West's ♣ Q. To the next trick declarer led the ♣ J and followed with the ♣ 10. To the tenth trick declarer led the ♦ 2, dummy played the K and West took with the A. West returned the ♦ 8, which declarer captured with the ♦ Q. Declarer then took in the last two tricks with the ♠ A and ♠ 2 for eleven odd—the game and one extra trick.

second hand clothing today. The sale opens at 8 o'clock this morning at 32 South Michigan avenue, and if it proves to be as popular as its predecessors of the last few years there probably will be a stampede of customers long before the doors open.

All of the provisional members will be on hand and a number of the older members have promised Barbara Neff that they'll assist with the selling, wrapping, and cashiering. The sale will continue through the day until the entire stock of men's, women's, and children's clothing and accessories has been disposed of.

The Vocational Society for Shut-Ins is to hold a sale today at the residence of Mrs. Langdon Pearce on Golf lane in Winnetka. Mrs. Henry F. Tenney, Mrs. Laird Bell, and Mrs. Walter Strong will be hostesses. Mrs. Tenney and Mrs. Strong will give a luncheon at Mrs. Tenney's house for the 30 or more women who will help to sell the lovely things from the society's shop. A few of the assistants include Mrs. Nathan S. Davis III., Mrs. Victor Elting, Mrs. Norman W. Harris, Mrs. Richard P. Mathiessen, Mrs. James W. Prindiville, Mrs. Frederick Burnham, and Mrs. John K. Coolidge.

Friends of Opera Drive.

Members of the Friends of Opera guarantee fund committee were anything but downhearted at their meeting yesterday afternoon in the drawing room of Mrs. Charles H. Swift's exquisite apartment at 209 Lake Shore drive. Pledges collected by the 30 women present during the last week total $5,250.

With the exception of Mrs. William J. Chalmers, who said she could not ask people for money so soon after the Garden concert by which she raised a huge sum last fall, everybody took away a list of new prospects on whom to try some high powered salesmanship this week, and I have a suspicion that several interesting announcements will be made at the spring meeting of the Friends of Opera this afternoon at the Drake. The combined committees working for the $500,000 guarantee fund have now raised more than $300,000.

Some of the members are selling boxes as well as securing guarantee pledges. Mr. Chalmers, it was announced yesterday to great applause, is renewing his usual guarantee of $1,000, in addition to keeping his box and four seats for the Saturday matinees.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Sturges, and Mrs. Bertha Jaques will receive at a tea to be given by the Print and Drawing club of the Art Institute next Thursday afternoon in the institute print galleries, to open the first international exhibition of etching and engraving in cooperation with the Chicago Society of Etchers.

News Notes of Winter Travel.

Mrs. Edward C. Crossett and Miss Ruth Crossett will return on Saturday from California, and Miss Crossett probably will begin to make plans for her wedding to Edward S. French, which will take place in June at the Crossetts' summer place at Wianno, Mass.

Mrs. Howard L. Willett of 2130 Lincoln Park West has returned from a month's trip through Mexico.

The Joy Mortons will return to their estate, "Thornhill," near Lisle, about the middle of next month from San Antonio, Tex., where they are after a trip through Mexico.

The Sangston Hettlers will join the Lake Geneva colony this summer, having taken the Mark A. Healy residence, "Woods Brook," near Williams Bay, for the season.

Mrs. William H. Bush and Miss Emeline Bush have returned from a trip to Yucatan, where they saw the interesting excavations that are being made by the Carnegie institute, and to Mexico, where they spent some time at Cuernavaca, where Miss Bush did some painting in Mrs. Alfred MacArthur's lovely garden. Miss Carol Bush will return from the Boston "Tech" in June. Mrs. Rheinhart Siedenburg of Greenwich, Conn., arrived yesterday to spend a few days with Mrs. Bush.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Cudahy, who have been in California since mid-January are now at the Hotel Del Coronado at Coronado Beach for a fortnight's stay before returning to Chicago.

Fruit Fritters Food Expert's Subject Today

BY MARY MEADE.

There isn't a whole lot for us to tell you about fritters—they are quite simply made—except to give you recipes with clear directions, a little advice about the frying, and urge you to keep them in mind and use them more often. Fruit fritters are always pretty much all right as an accompaniment to any meat or poultry course at dinner, or luncheon or breakfast-luncheon combinations. Or for very simple luncheons or Sunday evening suppers they may serve in the rôle of dessert. They are simple to make. I mean that. Seldom do you hear of failures.

To make apple fritters [you will probably think of them first and make them first], choose two firm, tart red apples. Peel them, core, and slice in medium slices. Sprinkle ¼ cup of sugar and 4 tablespoons of lemon juice over the apples and let them stand about 30 minutes. In the meantime get the fat ready. Here it might be wise to say that you should use fats with a high burning temperature [solidified vegetable fats and cooking oils]. Then you can heat the fat to a rather high temperature without danger of its burning and smoking. When you are ready to fry your fritters, the deep fat should be 370 degrees F., or so hot that a cube of bread will brown in forty to fifty seconds. To make the fritter batter, sift together twice one cup flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt. Beat one egg yolk and add to it ½ cup milk. Combine the dry ingredients with the wet and blend together quickly but thoroughly. Beat the egg white stiffly and fold carefully into the mixture. Then dip each slice of apple into the batter separately, being sure that it is well covered. Fry them in the deep fat until brown and drain on unglazed paper. Sprinkle with powdered sugar and serve hot.

Perfectly simple.

Now that you have tried this, you will want others. There are all kinds—orange, banana, cherry, pineapple, apricot, and peach. After that branch out along the vegetable line with corn and parsnip fritters. One suggests another.

BANANA FRITTERS.

1 tablespoon lemon juice.
1¼ cups flour.
2 teaspoons baking powder.
1 egg, beaten.

Peel the bananas and remove the outside fibrous portion by scraping with the back of a knife. Cut lengthwise and then crosswise. Sprinkle with lemon juice and roll in powdered sugar. Cover and let stand 20 minutes. Mix and sift the dry ingredients. Beat the egg and add milk. Combine the liquid and dry ingredients and beat until smooth. Dip bananas in the batter and fry in a deep hot fat to a golden brown. Drain.

"DIRTY FACE" destroys Charm

About one woman in 100 has the charm of a radiant skin. The other 99 are handicapped by clogged pores, dirt accumulations. For dirt ages the skin, destroys charm. It slows up the circulation, too, marking stronger the stamp of time, and the lines of the years.

Daggett & Ramsdell have provided a simple, effective method for getting rid of this below-the-surface dirt. Only a properly balanced cream can do it. Only Daggett & Ramsdell's Perfect Cold Cream can give the skin the three essentials it must have to keep it young, and clean, and charming—lubrication, moisture and protection—and give them all in one cream.

DIVORCEE SENT TO PRISON FOR AIDING ROBBERS

CRIMINAL COURT.

Leo Pielik and Carl Grzybcyk, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years each in Pontiac reformatory; Eugene Hunt, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in Pontiac reformatory; Ray Slechta, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in Pontiac reformatory; Wilford Anderson and Alfred Ferdinandson, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years each in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Rudolph Desort.

Harriet Beyer, larceny, sentenced to 2 years in the Dwight reformatory; Joe Rezek and Charles Monroe, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years each in Pontiac reformatory; Morris Barbaria, larceny, sentenced to 2 years in the Bridewell; Joseph Muscarello, larceny, sentenced to 18 months in the Bridewell by Judge Walter Stanton.

The tears of Mrs. Harriet Beyer, 28 years old, a blond divorcée, failed to save her from a two year sentence in the reformatory for women at Dwight yesterday. Mrs. Beyer pleaded guilty to being an accomplice of a gang of youthful housebreakers. She blamed her association with the gang on her infatuation for Joseph Rezek, 21 year old leader of the band.

"As Bad as Gang."

"Your story doesn't appeal to me," said Judge Walter T. Stanton, who imposed the sentence. "You seem to me to be just as bad as these young boys who were in the gang."

The judge also sentenced Rezek and Charles Monroe, 25 years old, to terms of one to ten years each in the Pontiac reformatory; Morris Barbaria, 22 years old, to two years in the House of Correction, and Joseph Muscarello, 19 years old, to 18 months in the House of Correction. All pleaded guilty.

Posed as Saleswoman.

According to the evidence produced by Assistant State's Attorneys John L. Murphy and Joseph Orrico, Mrs. Beyer would pose as a saleswoman and gain entrance to homes. When the door of a house or apartment was opened to her the other members of the gang would rush in and hold up the householders.

Among their victims were Frank Mettle, 1512 Orchard street, who lost $70; Eugene Appel, 905 Concord street, who lost $32, and Philip Klink, same address, who gave up $245.

Martin P. Carmody, 33 years old, 4009 Sheridan road, an ex-convict and minor hoodlum, was found shot to death yesterday on a prairie at Carondolet avenue and 125th street. Three revolver bullets had entered his head.

Several handkerchiefs in the pockets of the slain man were initialed "C. O.," which led police to express a belief that they had belonged to Charles O'Donnell, brother of Edward "Spike" O'Donnell, who was shot and wounded ten days ago in the south side beer feud.

Police said they would call in Charles O'Donnell today for questioning in the belief he might know Carmody. Incidentally, Sergt. James Keeley questioned a woman, whose name he withheld, who apparently heard heard the shots when Carmody was slain. Her story would place the murder at Racine avenue and 95th street.

Carmody spent nearly seven years in the Joliet penitentiary for robbery with a gun. He was paroled in 1928.

LUCY F. MADISON, AUTHORESS, DIES OF APOPLEXY

Hudson Falls, N. Y., March 16.—[Special.]—Lucy Foster Madison, authoress of novels and articles of historic interest, died tonight in her home here after an apoplectic stroke she suffered a few nights ago. She was 67 years old.

Mrs. Madison, wife of Winfield S. Madison, was widely known in the literary world for her works, in which a large proportion of the plots were laid in medieval or colonial times. Some of the works have been translated into French.

Mrs. Madison was born in Kirksville, Mo., on April 8, 1865, the daughter of Judge George W. and Almira [Parker] Foster. Left an orphan in her early teens, Mrs. Madison studied in the public schools of Louisiana, Mo., graduating with highest honors in the class of '81.

In 1884 Mrs. Madison moved to Kansas City, where she was married on June 11, 1890. Mr. Madison then was a resident of New York.

Reveal Secret Divorce Granted Wife of Broker

Mrs. Elsie Storz McFayden, 1120 Lake Shore drive, was granted a divorce from Temple McFayden, head of McFayden & Co., investment bankers, 141 West Jackson boulevard, on March 4, it was learned yesterday. The decree was signed by Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude after a brief hearing in his chambers. Mrs. McFayden charged desertion and asserted that her husband had failed to support her subsequent to Oct. 1, 1930. The action was uncontested and Mrs. McFayden was granted $125 a month.

YOUTH HELD FOR MURDER.

Tony Bruno, 18 years old, 900 Irving avenue, was held to the grand jury yesterday for the murder of Harold Cochran, manager of an Atlantic and Pacific tea store, who was slain during a robbery several weeks ago.

PUBLISHER FREED AT CARBONDALE ON CONTEMPT CHARGES

Carbondale, Ill., March 16.—[Special.]—A case involving freedom of the press came to a close today at Mound City when Judge D. T. Hartwell of Marion ruled that Frank Ledbetter, publisher of the Pulaski Enterprise at Mound City and the Carterville Herald at Carterville, was innocent of contempt of court and discharged him.

Ledbetter published a letter which had been sent through the mail to grocers. This letter was on stationery of the Cairo Grocers' association and called attention to a damage suit filed in the Circuit court of Pulaski county by Grace King against Oscar Atherton, asking for $15,000 damages for the illness resulting from eating an alleged mouse in a can of chili.

Ledbetter published the communication as an open letter to grocers.

ARRAIGN STORE OWNER FOR RUM SALES TO BOYS

Frank Homer, 36 years old, owner of a confectionery at 2015 North Wood street, who is alleged to have sold liquor to two high school pupils, was arraigned yesterday before Judge John A. Sbarbaro in the Shakespeare avenue court. Harry Schultz, 15 years old, 2031 North California avenue, a pupil in the Crane Technical High school, who told the police he had purchased moonshine in Homer's store, fainted when the case was called.

"Apparently the liquor is poison," Judge Sbarbaro said. "I will continue the case until March 26 so that I can have samples of it analyzed."

Inconsistent Spending

With few exceptions men spend more, in proportion, for other things than they do for dress. Many live in elaborate homes, travel luxuriously, and indulge in extravagant pastimes without giving due consideration to personal appearance. Dress that is not in keeping with one's realm in business or mode of living is not economy at any price, but often a source of embarrassment which tends to depreciate even one's own opinion of himself.

On the other hand, the consciousness of being well dressed in appropriate qualities, from underwear out, is an avowed asset. Befitting attire adds greatly to one's appearance, poise and pleasure, and unquestionably warrants an outlay proportionate to other expenditures. Lower prices now prevail in each of our four shops — New York, Chicago, London and Paris.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 16.—[Special.]—Babe Ruth has signed with the Yankees. The stunt, as staged near noon today at the Rolyat hotel, five miles out in this city's suburbs, was in the traditions of Florida publicity at its best.

The contract between the Babe and his boss, Col. Ruppert, owner of the New York American league club, calls for a salary of $75,000 for one year.

It was considered a victory for Ruth, who had been balking since January at the colonel's original offer of $70,000, which would have been a cut of $10,000 from his pay of the last two years. Ruth asked for a two year term at $70,000, or a one year term at $80,000. Yesterday Ruppert raised the ante to $72,500, but Ruth still balked. Then the colonel came around today with a document made out for $75,000 and said that was his last concession, and it was enough to satisfy the Babe.

Camera Men Work Out.

All the various public relations bodies of this municipality combined to make the signing of the historic document an event worthy of the Sunshine City. The sun was out, and so was the publicity man of the chamber of commerce, arranging the bowls of petunias on the tapestry-covered table by the wishing well in the patio of the Rolyat hotel, while camera men practiced their rôles hours before the actual parties to the drama arrived on the scene.

The real signing took place in the lounge of the hotel. The colonel and Ruth had been sitting on a couch near the vast vacant mouth of a fireplace, conferring for about three minutes over the documents that Ruppert fished from his inside pocket. Then Ruppert fumbled around for a fountain pen, and had to borrow one for the occasion.

Charles Himes, son of the proprietor of the hotel, rushed forward to provide the pen, while Col. Fred Wattenberg, Ruppert's personal friend, who had driven the colonel over from Passe a Grille, appealed to the press for the loan of another pen, and with this affixed his signature on the three separate papers as witness.

Curses! Pictures Miss Plane.

The whole show was a cut and dried affair, Ruth and the colonel having virtually agreed to terms informally last night. The only hitch in the proceedings was that Ruppert was nearly a half hour late for the appointment, and this made the camera men miss the 11:30 airplane with their pictures consigned to the north.

This is the first time in a decade that Ruth has signed a one year contract. It is the start of his 13th season as a Yankee and his 19th as a professional player. He began in 1914 with Baltimore and went to the Red Sox the same year, at $250 a month.

NEW YORKERS BUNCH HITS ON ROOT, MALONE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., March 16.—Pat Malone and Charley Root, supposedly a couple of the Cubs' pitching mainstays, ran into difficulties again today. They shared the heavy work in the last game of the spring series with the Giants and each was the victim of one shaky inning. That explains why the New Yorkers won, 5 to 4, thereby taking the series, five games to three.

Malone was handed his bitter pill almost before he realized competition was under way. The first three men to face him reached base and then some others did the same thing. That let the Giants get away with a three run advantage, after which Pat settled and hurled perfectly until the end of the fifth. Meanwhile the Cubs had done enough hitting to tie the score. Then they took a one run advantage in the sixth inning, but it was only for the moment. Root came on and was welcomed by some hits which gave the Giants two runs and the decision.

Giants Score First.

The first Giant inning started as if Mr. Malone never would be able to bring it to a close. But he did after three had scored. Critz opened the inning with a double to right.

Koenecke singled to center, but out of respect for Cuyler's arm Critz stopped at third. A base on balls to Lindstrom filled the bases. English knocked down Terry's hard drive to force out Lindstrom at second, Critz scoring. While Ott was at bat Hartnett was found guilty of a passed ball, on which Koenecke scored and Terry took second. Ott then filed out and Jackson singled to score Terry.

Howard Signor, a harmless looking lad from Bridgeport, Conn., started against the Cubs, and for two innings indicated he might be a pitcher. In the third inning, however, the Chicagoans blasted the notion. Hack led off with a single and went to second on Herman's infield out. Cuyler singled to center to score English and went to second on the throw in. He scored when Richbourg doubled.

Cubs Tie Score.

With the help of Lindstrom, the Cubs tied the score in the fourth. Hartnett singled and Lindstrom let the ball escape, Gabby going to second base. Malone also singled to center and Gabby, in some way, managed to score. That was the end of Signor's workout. Then the Cubs uncorked a couple of hits off Mooney in the sixth and went into a 4 to 3 lead. Stephenson popped a single to right and English did the same. Stevie going to third and scoring on Grimm's out.

As soon as Root became the pitcher in the sixth inning, he invited trouble by walking Terry. Herman made a dizzy stop of Ott's drive back on the grass and tossed to English for a force play. Ott died trying to steal on Zack Taylor. Then Jackson singled over second and Vergez doubled to right, scoring him. Hogan drilled a terrific bounder at Hack and the ball caromed into the grand stand for a double, Vergez scoring.

PLAYER SALARIES.

BABE RUTH'S baseball earnings are so high that the salary he receives for a season's work, or play, does not get much of a rise out of old John Public who is glad to have a job at all, if he has one, in these times. To a lesser degree the same feeling prevails toward Babe Herman, Chic Hafey, and other holdouts in the upper brackets.

Time was when owners, dealing with holdouts, were besieged with fan petitions, publicity, and threats of boycott to compel the signing of recalcitrants. Seldom did fans reach the cases where real injustices were done.

Of course, the present system is all in favor of club owners. The owner offers a certain sum. The player may take it or leave it, unless there is a compromise. But if the player leaves it, he cannot play anywhere else in organized baseball. There is a provision, we believe, that a player who feels he is underevaluated may take his case before Judge Landis for review. Whatever his fairness, the squire owes his position and salary of $65,000 per year to the owners, not the players. Comparatively few salary appeals are made to him.

Despite these conditions, stars usually sign. There is pressure on the star because he knows he cannot play elsewhere. On the other hand, club owners to gain patronage need winners and do not voluntarily weaken their teams if any tenable compromise may be effected. Among the average players, or those just coming up—fellows not essential to team success—there is no such protection. Those are the cases we do not hear about. In general, club owners want loyalty and effort and we must simply trust they pay this class of laborer what he is worth.

Now there are two attempted justifications for the reserve rule. In an open market the stars would get more money because all clubs would be bidding for them. These clubs probably would bid so high the financial stability of baseball would be shaken. In the end the game would not be as prosperous as now either for players or owners. Secondly, clubs in the larger cities, able to pay more, would have all the advantage and probably acquire most of the good players in an open bidding contest.

Should anything be done about this by the players? At various times brotherhoods and unions have been formed. They never survived. It is not possible to standardize baseball skill on a wage basis. Players themselves, especially those essential to success of a union, have objected to any such classification.

So baseball will continue as it has in the past with salary a question between owner and player, public opinion and need for club strength determining the issue for the stars. The lesser lights will do the best they

HAWKS BATTLE FALCONS TO 1-1 TIE IN OVERTIME

Chicago's success against Detroit on the Stadium ice terminated at a critical moment last night when, after three consecutive victories over the Falcons, the Hawks were held to a 1 to 1 overtime tie.

The tie prevented the Hawks from increasing their two point lead over the Falcons in the race for second place in the American division of the National league, but enabled the Detroit team to increase its margin over the four place Boston Bruins to a full game.

Consequently places in the playoffs are as much of an uncertainty as they were six weeks ago. Chicago has two more games to play and Detroit three. Boston likewise has three, with the standings: Chicago, 45 points; Detroit, 43 points, and Boston, 41 points.

A goal apiece in the first period constituted the sum and total of the scoring. The game was played in the presence of 10,000 partisans, Secretary of War Patrick T. Hurley, who was the guest of Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, and two referees, one Hewitson and one Daignault. The latter were conspicuous for their benevolence throughout. Only two penalties were called in the regulation time, the first of which came after 39½ minutes of play. This was a record for the Stadium and is believed to be some sort of a record for the National league. The previous Chicago record for propriety was 33½ minutes.

Falcons Take Defensive.

Detroit spent the greater part of the first period on the defense, partly through choice but mostly because of necessity.

Six minutes and ten seconds after the opening faceoff Ripley wound up one of his ceaseless charges with the first goal of the game. He carried the puck down mid-ice, passed to Couture, and Lola slipped it along to Gottselig. When Young bore down on Gottselig, Johnny made a snap pass backward to Ripley and Vic, without stopping the puck, batted it to the far side of the net past Connell.

A minute later Ripley started another foray, but Emms took the puck from him and passed to Young, the Falcon defense man. Young, in apparent confusion, tried to get rid of the puck as soon as possible and, as he was at the blue line, he fired from there and the puck slipped under Gardiner's leg and into the net in 7:30, tying the score for the evening.

Hawk Attack Is Halted.

Couture drew the first penalty of the game in the last half minute of the second period for batting the puck into the net with his hand.

The Hawks then started the third period shorthanded while Couture served

What, No Gin? Brooklyn Players Have to Be Good, but Fans Don't Have to Watch 'Em

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

New York, March 16.—Well, all I can say about the Parent-Teachers' association ball club which Max Carey is training down there in Florida is that even if they are good the customers won't like them because, look here, what is going on?

This is what is going on. The funniest ball club that ever came together under the funniest old fat man, who ever adorned the sport business, Wilbert Robinsin, has been placed under the management of a clean living, right thinking, speech making manager, who believes in his soul, that even beer is a moral issue and not only likes to spank his own chest under an ice cold shower at half past six a. m. and sing cold water salutes to prohibition, efficiency and Henry Ford, but demands that every man in his employ do likewise.

And What If They Win?

Now that is an affront and challenge to the personal habits, beliefs and ideals of most of the customers all over the National league. I sincerely hope that the Brooklyn Daffiness boys, now known by some such insipid name as Mother Carey's Chickens, do not win a pennant in their league this year, because I do not believe the patients will turn out in profitable numbers to watch them do it. With no personal feeling against Mr. Carey, whom I have met only a couple of times at baseball banquets, where all save he, and, of course, myself, were plastered, I naturally hope that his entire way of doing will be repudiated by the public. That will constitute another of those showdowns on the issue of mirth and personal liberty.

Max Carey stands for discipline, which may be all right in armies, political parties, and eye rolling organizations of the pious sort. It was his theory of life and conduct that traded off Babe Herman to the Cincinnati Reds. Babe Herman is the champion baseball comedian of his time, far better than Nick Altrock and Al Schacht because he is a good ball player on one hand and incredibly dumb and clumsy, both physically and mentally, on the other hand. Altrock and Schacht are professional comedians. They discuss and plan their drolleries as conscientiously as international bankers ponder a bond issue, and when I see them at their work—maybe it is because I have heard them argue their stage business in some hotel room the night before—I seem to hear the gears grind and the gaskets sigh. Babe Herman is spontaneously funny.

With these deep, somber eyes of mine, of which poets sing, as I hope you know, I have seen Babe Herman hit a baseball out to the wall with two on base and pile up at third in a triple play. I have seen a hundred of Babe Ruth's home runs, but he never hit one as memorable as that one of Babe Herman's, although some people might wish to submit the one he hit to order for President Harding one afternoon when they rolled the presidential fleet of limousines right into the ball yard and over the grass to unload him at his box seat in the third inning on the promise that Ruth would bust one in his honor.

Ruth's home run was routine. The ball went out of the park and he went for a little walk as thousands cheered and the cameras took it all down for posterity to yawn at. But Herman's home run was an insider and while the Brooklyn patrons, who are the craziest in the U. S. A., were leaping and screaming over the glory and horror of it all, this Babe passed both of the runners who were on ahead of him and, trying to retrace his steps and validate them again, was touched out at third.

Babe Herman, with a mouth as big as a satchel and a mule-power baseball intellect, has been traded back and forth more times than a counterfeit dollar. Once he was sent away from a class B club with a quarter-mile fence to a class E farm with boundless prairies because his manager, a soft humanitarian, who figured that some one might love him, was afraid that if one more flyball hit him on the head he might get the fighter's dance.

How Do You Explain This?

And yet, under Uncle Wilbert, he developed into a great hitter, a champion outfielder and no mean strategian or strategist. He once put all the names of the Brooklyn athletes into a hat and drew them out, one by one, organizing a batting order which won a dozen ball games in a row where, just previously, orderly ratiocination had failed in ten of a dozen games.

Joseph Gordon, the advertising fellow, was covering the Brooklyn athletes on one of their western trips a few years back and naturally was making merry over Babe Herman's antics. Near the end of the tour in Philadelphia Herman went to him one morning and said, "Listen, Eddie," for he never could remember such uncommon names as Joe, "Listen, Harry," said the Babe, "I realize that you are out to make your living in your racket and of course I am out to make my living in mine, so naturally I do not care what you write about me.

"But listen, Frank," he said, "I am trying to get a new contract with the team at the end of this trip and Phil, old boy, I wish you would lay off of the daffy stuff about me being so comical and all. I am really very thoughtful and smart."

Far Into the Night.

"Why, if that is the case, Mr. Jones," Mr. Gordon replied. "Of course, I will lay off. Hereafter, Mr. Smith, I will treat you very seriously, and indulge in no ridicule or merriment."

"That is very kind of you, Tommy," Mr. Herman said, drawing the stump of a cigar from the pocket of his jacket, "have you got a match, puff, puff."

"I think so," Mr. Gordon said, fumbling in his pockets.

"Never mind," said Mr. Herman, "it's still lit."

"All bets are off," Mr. Gordon yelled. "You are still goofy in my paper, Mr. Cohen," and this is the ball player whom Mr. Carey has sent away in trade for some common, monotonous efficiency on a ball team which plays in Brooklyn of all places.

Breaks Up Only Funny Club.

Myself, I feel some irritation because Max Carey, who is fond of whanging pine tables with the flat of his honest palms and laying down the law of clean living and prohibition to young boys and girls, has disorganized the only funny ball club that I have ever encountered in the solemn business of baseball. He has also disrupted the most hilarious training camp that ever existed. The Brooklyn training camp was the one where several years ago, the manager and proprietor of the hotel could not provide a room and bath for two new guests because Rabbit Maranville of the Brooklyn team was using the only bath tub in the house to raise a mess of ducks and apprentice alligators. And that was the hotel where, along toward 3 a. m., the banging of small arms and the crash of glass signified that the great infield combination was training for the pennant race by throwing square face gin bottles out the window and shooting them on the wing, like clay pigeons, with revolvers. This caused no disturbance in the town. The constable, drowsing on a high stool in the all night sandwich room down the block, merely yawned and said, "them Robins ought to win a pennant this year. They are certainly training night and day."

Denies Blocking Cubs' Attempt to Buy Herman

New York, March 16.—[Special.]—There is "no truth whatever" in a report published here today that the Cincinnati Reds are honor bound not to sell Babe Herman to the Chicago Cubs or any other National league club, Frank J. York, president of the Brooklyn club told THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE tonight.

The report insisted that Sidney Weil, controlling owner of the Reds, had "pledged his word" that he would not sell the player to any competitor of the Brooklyn organization. It is understood here that the Cubs migh be willing to pay as much as $50,000 for Herman.

President York said he knew nothing of these reported negotiations and declared he was not in the least concerned.

CHAMPIONS LOSE IN FIRST GAME OF CATHOLIC MEET

Catholic High school of Washington, Ind., defeated De La Salle of Minneapolis, Minn., the defending champion, 33 to 14, in the opening game of the ninth annual national Catholic high school basketball tournament last night at the Loyola university gymnasium before a crowd of 2,500.

Washington, one of the four teams which represented the Hoosier state in the tournament, took the lead soon after the game started and always held more than a two point advantage.

St. Philip Beats Ashland.

St. Philip, with Capt. Art Foster, the Catholic league's high scorer, leading the attack, triumphed over De Padua of Ashland, Wis., 31 to 29. In the most thrilling game of the first night's schedule. Father Ryan won from St. Mary's of Iowa City, runner-up for the Hawkeye state championship, 43 to 18.

22 Teams Play Today.

Twenty-two teams will go into action today, the first game starting at 9 o'clock this morning, between Catholic High school of Little Rock, Ark., and St. Thomas of Scranton, Pa. Seven state champions will be among the teams playing today.

Spalding Institute of Peoria, winner of the Illinois state championship, will meet Canisius of Buffalo, N. Y. Three members of the Chicago Catholic High School league—St. Mel, St. Patrick, and De La Salle of Joliet, winner of the national title for two years in a row—also are scheduled to play.

St. Patrick will meet Loyola of Mankato, Minn.; St. Mel will face another northern team, Cretin of St. Paul, Minn., and De La Salle of Joliet is paired with St. Francis of Athol Springs, N. Y., winner of the Western New York District league championship.

Dosch Leads Washington.

Joe Dosch, a 6 foot four inch center, was the leader of Washington's victory over De La Salle of Minneapolis. Dosch scored five baskets and three free throws. Washington led, 21 to 11, at the end of the first half.

Minneapolis, which appeared with only two veterans of the squad which took the national championship last year, was held to two baskets in the first half.

Capt. Foster, the tall St. Philip center, several times brought the crowds to its feet by scoring long shots to put the Chicago quintet in the lead over Ashland, Wis. Capt. Foster sank seven baskets and two free throws.

The lead changed more than ten

BY FRENCH LANE.

The little group of Chicagoans who own the steeplechaser Sea Soldier and who have sent the son of Man o' War to England to race in the Grand National Handicap tomorrow, are confident their colorbearer will give a good account of himself in the most gruelling race run anywhere in the world.

The latest reports they have received indicate that Sea Soldier has come up to the famous race in fine condition and that he has greatly improved his jumping skill since landing in England.

Sea Soldier's conditioning races for the Grand National have not been so impressive. But his Chicago owners are not concerned about that. For they sent him to England with only the Grand National in mind and what he did in his earlier races was of no concern to his owners here. All they asked was that he be in condition for the heart breaking test of more than four miles over the most treacherous jumping course in the world.

Carries Mill Creek Colors.

Whether he wins or loses the Chicagoans who have sent Sea Soldier after the Grand National prize take pride in the fact that he is the first son of the superhorse, Man O' War, and the first American bred, American owned, and American ridden horse that has ever taken part in the historic English steeplechase.

Hear Reports by Radio.

The owners of Sea Soldier will gather in the office of Austin H. Niblick in the Board of Trade building at 8:45 o'clock tomorrow morning to hear the radio report of the race. The start is scheduled to take place at 9 o'clock Chicago time.

Thorne Donnelly has obtained an especially powerful receiving radio set, by means of which the broadcast of the race will be heard.

his penalty, but it did not prevent the Chicagoans from taking the offensive. They expanded their attack to a five man affair when Couture returned and Young was penalized for tripping Gottselig. The effort was useless, however, as Connell and four Falcons packed around the net, thwarting each attempt.

The overtime was a case of the Hawks against Detroit. The Falcons remained on the defense throughout, playing for the tie.

Report from East Spurs Gloves Team

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Chicago's Golden Gloves boxers are rarin' for action. And since they can't fight the New Yorkers until a week from Monday, they've been taking it out on each other.

Yesterday afternoon at the Illinois Athletic club, Chicago's 24 boys put in a second full time session with the gloves. Nearly all had at least three rounds. And this workout followed twice as many three minute rounds on the punching bags, mats and with the skipping ropes.

Take Jaunt Through Park.

In the morning the coaches had the gang out in Grant park for wind sprints, a long walk and some jogging runs up and down the slopes of the lake side grounds. Johnny Behr and Jabber Young were in charge of the lads since Coach Benny Yanger has been a victim of a mild attack of influenza.

From Capt. Leo Rodak down the line, all asked about their New York opponents.

It looks like a tough set of 16 bouts with Chicago on the short end right now, considering the trip to New York, which will interrupt training. And it's going to be hard in several weights to name Chicago's runner up. The alternates are putting up strenuous opposition in the ring. The flyweights, featherweights, lightweights, middleweights, light heavies and heavies each have three boys who are nearly equal.

They Can't Scare Adam.

Adam Smith, Chicago's big baker boy, a veteran of three Golden Gloves campaigns, was most philosophical about his opponent, John Rutherford, Princeton student. The tall boys don't worry Adam and the manner of his attack yesterday afternoon against Gene Klopack and Walter Karpinski should send Mr. Rutherford back to his oars down in Jersey.

Vernon Miller, light heavyweight champion from Davenport, Ia., was bumped on the eye by Max Marek in his bout yesterday but an ice application reduced the swelling and he'll be back on the firing line today. Billy Celebron, Rockford welterweight, also is favoring a cut received in the Chicago finals.

times. Ashland went to the front in the first quarter, but a basket by Foster gave St. Philip a 12 to 11 lead at the end of the first half. St. Philip again was trailing in the third period, but it went into the lead toward the close of the quarter by 22 to 19.

The last quarter furnished the most exciting minutes of the contest. Twice the Chicagoans held a one point advantage only to have the Ashland squad tie the score.

Free Throws Decide Game.

With three minutes remaining Blahnik scored a basket and a free throw to put Ashland in the lead. However, Smay, Panaltoni, and Foster scored for St. Philip and just as the gun sounded, Smay put in two free throws to give St. Philip the victory.

Father Ryan scored three successive goals in the first period, and at the end of the quarter held a 9 to 2 lead. Pete Curley and James Kleiser were the leaders of the Nashville attack. Curley scored six field goals while Kleiser collected five.

NORTH CENTRAL ACTS ONCE MORE ON PROSELYTING

Suspends Five Colleges; N. U. Accredited.

Personal solicitation of prospective students by athletic coaches was proscribed by a regulation adopted yesterday by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, in convention at the Hotel Stevens. Such a rule, already enforced by the Big Ten and other athletic conferences, is regarded as futile by President Irving Maurer of Beloit college, who will address the higher education section of the meeting today.

The association amended standard No. 4, which prohibited the offering of any inducement to prospective students with athletic talent. The amendment provides that a coach may not hold out any inducement to a prospective student, such as a scholarship, board and room, etc., and further declares that he may not personally solicit the student in any manner.

President H. M. Gage of Coe college, chairman of the higher education commission, was asked from the floor how a professor of history or an alumni secretary could be prevented from personal solicitation. He did not answer the question.

Give Games to Students.

Dr. Maurer believes amateur athletics have no place in the college curriculum, and that so long as it remains there colleges will continue to solicit brawn before brain.

"A college cannot run athletics as education and call it amateur sports," said Dr. Maurer in an interview. "If it is amateur, the students themselves should run athletic contests. I suggest that athletics be turned over entirely to students, they be freed from alumni and faculty control and not be counted part of the educational program.

"If the objection is raised that the students would not be interested in that, then why have amateur athletics? As a matter of fact, how many students have been consulted when huge stadia have been built?

"Can't Stop Recruiting."

"You can talk all you want to about stopping the recruiting of athletes, but it won't do any good. Coaches want good athletes, and when you weaken the recruiting business, you begin to lose games. When that happens it becomes a matter of legislative inquiry, for the college president's annual report, and for the alumni to shout about.

"Amateur athletics isn't educational, and along with many other things should not be made a part of the educational program."

Dr. Maurer would make physical training compulsory and not exempt students who play football and other college sports. He would give no academic credits for work done in sports. He would return control of sports to the students, and if an athlete wished to play football he would not be barred just because he had played a time or two for money.

Prolong N. U. Inquiry.

Northwestern university was continued on the accredited list of schools for one year, subject to inspection. A year ago an inspection of the university was begun by the association, but Northwestern objected. The matter was referred to the association's board of review and Northwestern consented to the inspection. The board recommended that the school be continued on the accredited list for one year, and this was renewed for another year yesterday.

The Buckeye, the Iowa, the Illinois, and the Nebraska intercollegiate athletic conferences were approved by the association and the Indiana and Missouri conferences were referred to the board of review.

Five colleges were dropped from the accredited list of the North Central association by the commission on higher institutions in the afternoon.

The five colleges named are West Virginia Wesleyan college, Buckhanon, W. Va., because of "faculty standards and athletics"; Ouachita college, Arkadelphia, Ark., "financial standards and undesirable athletic conditions"; Penn college, Oskaloosa, Ia. "financial standards"; College of Emporia, Emporia, Kas., same, and New Mexico Normal university, Las Vegas, N. M., "undesirable athletic conditions."

Eleven high schools also were dropped, but the names were not revealed. Two colleges resigned from membership were the Eastern State Normal school, Madison, S. D., and St. Mary's college, St. Mary's, Kas., which closed June, 1931

TEXAS COLLEGE BOYS TACKLE OUR WHITE SOX TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Antonio, Tex., March 16.—The Chicago White Sox tomorrow will enter another phase of their "conservation of strength" spring training program. By way of getting tuned up for their strictly minor league exhibition schedule, the Chicago American league warriors will do battle against the strong University of Texas nine at Austin.

Spirits are running high in camp today, and all of the 19 athletes assigned to journey to Austin are confident that a fine victory will be returned. Some regret is felt that President Louis Comiskey will not be here to join in the celebration of the expected victory. Mr. Comiskey, before leaving for Chicago, exhorted his boys to play like everything against the college boys and all the minor leaguers who are to follow on the exhibition schedule.

"I have great confidence that you will have an honorable record in this trying series of exhibition games," Mr. Comiskey said, with gestures. "Sometimes persons in major league cities are inclined to underestimate the zestful brand of baseball played in the minor leagues.

"Don't ever let me hear any man refer to our exhibition schedule as a bush league calendar. Remember that in the minor league are many lads with hearts of gold. Let us develop no superiority complexes just because we won the championship of Chicago last October."

The lineup with which Manager Fonseca will launch the 1932 exhibition schedule is: Anderson, cf; Poser, rf; Cissell, ss; Campbell, lf; Blue, 1b; Appling, 3b; Hayes, 2b; Jolley, c; Thomas, Hadley, and Bartulis, p.

High Court Orders New Trial in Coliseum vs. Dempsey Suit

Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion of the world, was held responsible for expenses incurred by the Chicago Coliseum club in 1926, when he repudiated a contract to fight Harry Willis, Negro heavyweight contender, by the Appellate court in a ruling handed down yesterday. Attorney Ralph Rosen who represented the Coliseum club, estimated the expenses at $100,000.

The opinion, delivered by Judge Francis Wilson, reversed a judgement in the Circuit court, and remanded the case for a new trial. Suit for $500,000 was brought against Dempsey by the club, which alleged he had caused it a great loss through his repudiation of the contract. Judge H. Sterling Pomoroy in the Circuit court last year directed a verdict finding Dempsey not guilty.

Alleged Terms of Agreement.

The club alleged that Dempsey, on March 13, 1926, signed a contract to fight Wills at Soldiers' field later in the year, and received $10,000 at the time of the signing, and was to receive $300,000 on Aug. 4, $500,000 ten days before the fight, and 50 per cent on all gate receipts, over $2,000,000, and motion picture rights.

When the club, on July 10, 1926, sent insurance examiners to Dempsey's camp at Colorado Springs, Colo., Dempsey sent the club a telegram, which was introduced in evidence, and read, in part: "Too busy training for Tunney to waste time on your insurance representatives. As you have no contract, would suggest that you stop kidding yourself and me also."

The club brought suit on four counts, alleging loss of profits from the scheduled fight; seeking and recover expenses prior to the signing of the contract; expenses in prosecuting a successful injunction suit in Indiana which restrained the champion form fighting Tunney, which order he violated, and expenses between the time of the signing of the contract and the receipt of the telegram.

Hold Dempsey Responsible.

The appellate court sustained the Circuit court judgement on the three counts, but held that Dempsey was responsible for the expenses incurred between the time of the signing and the telegram. Attorney Rosen said that a promoter had been paid $50,000, and that with other expenses, including printing of tickets and work on the Stadium, the club's loss in this respect was approximately $100,000.

Profits of $1,800,000 which the club had expected on the fight were held non-recoverable in the appellate court decision, which agreed with the lower court that these profits were speculative. Expenses in the injunction suit and expenses prior to Dempsey's signing the contract were also held non-recoverable.

Woods and Waters by BOB BECKER

The waterfowl situation will step into the spotlight again the first week in April, when the United States senate special committee on conservation of wild life resources holds a meeting in Washington to hear views on the alleged national waterfowl shortage.

During the last few months sportsmen and conservationists have been active in trying to promote a national program to increase waterfowl. The April meeting in Washington ought to open oratory of those interested in the waterfowl crisis.

While sportsmen have been worried about the duck shortage—a shortage usually conceded by most authorities—the situation hasn't been helped by duck bootleggers. Men who trap the birds to sell them in ready markets such as Chicago and eastern cities provide have killed off hundreds of mallards. Several game law violators have been apprehended, however. On the east coast and in the central states shooting of waterfowl during the closed season continues.

According to reports from the east, the meeting on April 4, 5, and 6 in Washington with the senate committee as host apparently will attempt to get the answers to the following questions:

To what extent there is a shortage in migratory waterfowl, particularly ducks and geese.

The underlying causes for this shortage, if it exists.

Those invited to appear before the committee include representatives from each of the conservation organizations throughout the nation, the fish and game commissions of states, as well as scientists who have made special studies of the waterfowl situation and individuals who have taken a particular interest in the problem.

As the ranks of duck hunters are still divided on the question of how many ducks we have and what is the best plan to increase their numbers, this hearing should be lively.

EVELYN KENNEDY RETAINS A. A. U. DIVING CROWN

BY BETTY ECKERSALL.

Evelyn Kennedy of the Illinois Women's Athletic club successfully defended her title in the senior low board diving for women last night in the Central A. A. U. men's and women's swimming and diving championships at the Medinah Athletic club.

Miss Kennedy was almost eliminated from competition when she hit the board a terrific blow with her face while executing a back somersault. On the next dive, however, a half gainer, she scored nine points out of a possible ten.

Laufer Wins Men's 220.

Another feature of the meet was the comeback of Walter Laufer, Lake Shore Athletic club star, who won the 220 yard swim for senior men by three lengths.

Murphy of Northwestern swam to an easy victory in the 220 yard event for junior men. He stroked 100 yards with Debenham, also of Northwestern university, then gained yardage on the remaining turns and won by two lengths.

Nelson Plunges to Victory.

The 300 yard individual medley swim, won by Sy Nelson of the Lake Shore Athletic club, was the most uninteresting race of the meet. All took off to a perfect start, and stroked evenly until the last lap, when Nelson plunged forward to a half a tank length victory.

Don Glornset of the University of Chicago barely won the 220 yard breast stroke for junior men from Frank Lennox of Northwestern university. The boys stroked arm and arm the entire race, until the final two yards, where Glornset swung to the finish a winner by two inches. Summaries:

220 YARD SWIM FOR JUNIOR MEN—Won by H. Murphy, Northwestern university; R. Debenham, Northwestern university, second; Cedric Barlow, unattached, third. Time, 2:26.7.

220 YARD BREAST STROKE FOR JUNIOR MEN—Won by Don Glornset, University of Chicago; Frank Lennox, Northwestern university, second; John Domarad, Lake Shore Athletic club, third. Time, 3:02.4.

220 YARD SWIM FOR SENIOR MEN—Won by Walter Laufer, Lake Shore Athletic club; Merton Wilcox, Northwestern university, second; B. Wilson, Northwestern university, third. Time, 2:20.6

The trees croon softly bending low,
Then sleep, beloved flowers and ferns;
And while I shovel coal and snow,
Keep safe my dreams till spring returns.

Youthful Suggestion.

Dear Mr. Woodruff: To avoid football injuries, I suggest that all players be required to wear tennis shoes instead of the regulation football shoes with their murderous cleats. Many a face has been stepped on or kicked, many an ankle has been broken, many a rib caved in by the deadly weapons. It might slow up the plunging full back's pushing power, but it would also slow up the adversary's holding power. Dad says this would cause a roar from shoe manufacturers, but who cares if we save some of these fellows' feet, hands, ankles, ribs, or heads?

DEMPSEY ROLLS UP KNOCKOUT TOTAL TO 94

Clarksburg, W. Va., March 16.—[Special.]—Jack Dempsey added Nos. 93 and 94 to his list of knockouts tonight when he stopped Fred Taylor and Big Boy Williams in the first rounds of a pair of two round exhibition matches before 4,000. Dempsey is suffering from a heavy cold.

MAIER, NICHOLS FINISH DRILLS IN PERFECT SHAPE

Dave Maier, Milwaukee southpaw, and George Nichols, Buffalo lefthander, finished boxing preparations yesterday for their light heavyweight championship bout at the Chicago Stadium tomorrow night. Both finished work without injury and each was reported in perfect physical condition for their 10 round match.

Maier also boxed four rounds at the Arcade gymnasium yesterday to wind up strenuous training. He drummed vicious rights and left hooks on his two partners' anatomies and they were glad to call it a day. Dave did no other work and, after the workout, scaled 173 pounds. He expects to weigh the same tomorrow and will have an advantage of eight pounds over Nichols. He will do only light loosening up exercises today.

The 10 round semi-final bout between Ben Jeby, New York middleweight, and Frankie Battaglia of Winnipeg, Can., is creating interest. Jeby knocked out My Sullivan in his first start in Chicago and is a leading challenger for the class title. Whether his chances of maintaining that position following his meeting with Battaglia is questioned by fight fans who saw the Winnipeg boxer land a right cross on Patsy Wallace's chin for a clean knockout during a boxing session. The winner of this bout has been promised a title match with Gorilla Jones.

Ebbets Meets Manning.

Harry Ebbets, Brooklyn 165 pounder, hopes to knock out Roscoe Manning, Newark Negro, in the opening 10 round bout. He seeks a bout with Baxter Calmes and to get it must win easily from Manning.

Manning lost to Calmes in the tournament. However, Calmes wants to meet heavier me and if he whips James J. Braddock, New York heavyweight, in the second 10 round contest on the Stadium card he will seek matches with Tuffy Griffith and Ernie Schaaf.

CALZA BRAVES LONDOS' MIGHT IN FINISH BOUT

Match Heads Tonight's Coliseum Card.

Ten heavyweight wrestlers, headed by Jim Londos, who hasn't lost a fall in two years, will appear tonight on a five match card at the Coliseum. Londos, the sport's leading attraction, will meet George Calza, 220 pound Italian, in a finish match.

Because of Londos' long string of victories, fans have begun to believe him invincible, but in the giant Calza he will meet a man who has given him as much opposition as any grappler in the business.

Four other matches of more than ordinary interest complete the program. Chief of these is a semi-windup rematch between George Zaharias, who will try to duplicate a previous decision victory over Hans Kampfer, German youngster.

Another local favorite, Gino Garibaldi, will trade holds with Frank Bronowicz. These boys are evenly matched in height and weight. Nino Dornelli makes his first start here against Hans Bauer. Floyd Marshall meets George Tragos in a rematch in the other number. Tonight's card:

George Zaharias vs. Hans Kampfer.
Gino Garibaldi vs. Frank Bronowicz.
Floyd Marshall vs. George Tragos.
Hans Bauer vs. Nino Dornelli.

Shamrocks Bid for Lead in Game Tonight

The climax of a season long battle for the American Hockey league leadership is scheduled for tonight, when the Shamrocks clash with the Kansas City Pla-Mors at the Stadium. The Green and White hope to celebrate St. Patrick's night with a victory, which woud give them a neat margin over their rivals.

Tonight's meeting will be the tenth of the season between the two clubs. Out of nine games the Shamrocks have won five, three of them on Kansas City ice. The Pla-Mors have won two out of three games on the Shamrocks' rink. Victory for the Shamrocks will make the title almost certain, as they will then need to win only two of their remaining four games, while the Pla-Mors take all three of their final matches.

The Shamrocks were four games behind the Pla-Mors when they began a climb to their present position.

Witness Shouts "Dirty Dog" at N. Y. Official.

New York, March 16.—[Special.]—The members of the Hofstadter committee, listening with spellbound attention, today heard the most dramatic story told before the city investigation committee since hearings began. There was tragedy in it and shocking charges of political oppression.

They heard William J. Flynn, suave and self-contained public works commissioner of the Bronx, accused of persecuting a business rival over a long period of years, of using his political power to drive the other to complete ruin and bankruptcy.

Louis H. Willard, a slight, sandy man who seemed dazed by misfortune and momentarily near collapse, told the story. Willard said he had lost his entire fortune and even his home. His wife, driven to desperation by their financial collapse, committed suicide, he declared, and Willard, himself, attempted to take his own life—and failed again.

Calls Flynn "Dirty Dog."

For more than an hour Willard gave testimony which painted Flynn, one of the big men of Bronx politics, as a malevolent and ruthless manipulator and then emotion rising in a great crescendo as he neared the close of his recital he half stood on the witness stand and pointed a long finger at the commissioner.

"I lost everything—my investment and everything I held dear in life" he said, his voice breaking and tears near. "Mrs. Willard, my wife, on this account took it so much to heart that she said 'Here you can't beat that dirty dog.' And she committed suicide and the one who brought about that state of affairs is that yellow dog sitting over there."

Finally Mr. Seabury asked: "Now, Mr. Willard, what was your loss as the result of these adventures with government in the city of New York in relation to your property?"

This, in brief, was his testimony. In 1923 he purchased a plot of ground at River avenue and McClellan street, the Bronx, at a cost of $126,000. For seven years he vainly attempted to develop the property and for seven years, he declared, Flynn through his official position, blocked every effort to obtain a tenant or to realize on the land.

Loses His $126,000.

Certain city permits were necessary and Willard could not get them. A certain concession was needed from the board of standards and appeals; Willard could not get it. Always, he said, when he asked routine concessions from the city, Flynn was there to see that they were denied.

One by one Willard's assets disappeared; he had sunk everything into the River avenue property. First his $126,000 investment vanished and then the family home in Riverdale was foreclosed.

"After my wife died I don't know why the good Lord didn't take me off," he said. "I took hydrocyanic acid—that ought to take off any one. It didn't, and here I am telling my tale."

Willard's plans, it developed, involved the erection of a big garage on the property. It was later brought out that Flynn had acquired the property directly across the street and proceeded to erect ninety-one private garages on it.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Trixie Finds His Weakness

END ROAD TAXES, STATE IS URGED BY MOTOR CLUB

Would Abolish Local Levies.

Springfield, Ill., March 16.—[Special.]—The Chicago Motor club this afternoon appealed to the Illinois highway commission to save realty owners between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 a year in local road taxes and special assessments.

These savings could be brought about, according to George Barton, engineer for the club, without curtailing the expansion of traffic facilities and without any change in the motor fuel excise and the registration fees paid by automobile owners. Township road commissions, which levy $11,000,000 a year tax, could be abolished, he believes, and their duties consolidated under county highway departments.

Revolt by Property Owners.

"As for special assessments," the engineer continued, "the state will find, when its starts its program of city construction, that the owners of abutting property will no longer agree to share the expense of rebuilding a street to accommodate through traffic. The state, with its gasoline tax fund, will have to pay the bulk of the expense of improving highway connections and extensions into and through municipalities.

"The consolidation of the township road commissions will save rural property owners millions. With the state taking over the reconstruction and maintenance of municipal traffic arteries, city property owners should be saved millions.

"The public is demanding such economies in all governmental activities. This commission, in drafting the future highway policies of Illinois, can effect further economies by improving the efficiency of the state's road system, reducing the waste in motor transportation.

Weakness Apparent.

"The state highway department and the United States bureau of public roads are conducting an exhaustive study of the Illinois highway system. The Chicago Motor club anticipates that this survey will expose three outstanding weaknesses: First, an inadequacy of through traffic facilities in cities large and small; second, the extravagance of indirect routing on rural arteries, and third, a paucity of all weather secondary roads.

"This commission does not have to anticipate the results of this survey. The studies will be completed before your report is made to the 1933 legislature. You can base your findings on sound economics. And this recognition of scientific data is the sole recommendation to the road commission from the Chicago Motor club."

In addition to hearing the motor club representative, the commission, headed by Representative David Hunter Jr. of Rockford, today also received more delegations from farmers and local politicians petitioning the state for hard roads to serve their communities. Such delegations, in the last two weeks, have asked the commission for more than $150,000,000 worth of construction.

CANON NELSON, FAMED AS SOLDIER AND CLERIC, DIES OF LONG ILLNESS

New York, March 16.—[Special.]—Canon George Francis Nelson of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine died today at St. Luke's hospital after a lingering illness. He was 89 years old.

Canon Nelson was born on Dec. 11, 1842, at Granville, O. He entered Yale when he was 16 years old with the class of 1863, but left at the end of his sophomore year in 1861 to accept an appointment as second lieutenant and recruiting officer of Gen. Garfield's regiment. Subsequently he received a commission in the quartermaster's department and rendered important services until the end of the war.

While at Gen. Sherman's headquarters in Chicago he was graduated from the law school of the University of Chicago, but never practiced. He was asked to take charge of the services at St. Mark's church in Geneva, thirty-five miles from Chicago, and as a lay reader he began to study for the ministry. Ordained in June, 1877, he became an assistant pastor of Trinity church, Oxford, Philadelphia. Two years later he came to Grace church, New York. In 1883 he was appointed secretary of the house of bishops, serving also as secretary to Bishop Potter.

After twenty-four years as Bishop Potter's secretary he was superintendent of the Protestant Episcopal Missionary society for eight years, at the end of which period he became an archdeacon at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, March 16.—Francois de Saint Phalle, a New York broker, died here today after a brief illness. News of his death created extreme nervousness in financial circles, already aroused by the Kreuger and Eastman suicides. Saint Phalle, a native of Paris, lived most of his 46 years in the United States, where he rose from a mechanic to vice president of the Baldwin Locomotive works in charge of foreign sales, and later headed his own stock exchange firm.

ILLINOIS IS GIVEN SHORT END OF U. S. HIGHWAY AID BILL

Washington, D. C., March 16.—[Special.]—Illinois, under the emergency road construction bill which the Democrats recently rushed through the house, would receive $5.05 relief per capita unemployed, while Nevada would receive $631.21 per capita of its unemployed.

Believing that this 124 to 1 ratio is all wrong, Senator Bingham [Rep., Conn.], who presented these figures to the senate today, plans to base his opposition to the bill on the argument that the sparsely populated states, with small taxes and very little unemployment, will contribute but little to the general 123 million dollar pool, and will receive much of the money levied on the large industrial states, which pay high taxes and have high unemployment rates.

Cites Other Examples.

Getting his unemployment figures from the governors of the several states and his tax figures from income tax records, Senator Bingham offered other examples of inequality.

Arizona, containing but .3 per cent of the total unemployed in the United States, would under the apportionment in the proposed bill receive 1.4 per cent of the total funds, or four and one-half times as much as she should under a fair distribution. While Michigan, with 6.2 per cent of the total unemployed, would receive only 3 per cent of the fund, or less than half what she is entitled to.

Reckoning the inequalities in terms of per capita unemployed relief Senator Bingham pointed out that Ohio, receiving $9 per capita would be ⅛ as well off as Idaho, receiving $75.42 per capita.

Points Out Tax Records.

Referring to income tax records Senator Bingham told the senate that the following ten states pay about 80 per cent of the taxes in the following proportion:

New York, 33 per cent; Pennsylvania, 9; Illinois, 9; Michigan, Ohio, and California, 5; Massachusetts, 4; New Jersey, nearly 4; Missouri, 2; and Connecticut, nearly 2 per cent.

"These ten states," he said, "will have to raise about 80 per cent of the money distributed by this bill and their apportionment is only 30 per cent. What makes the bill really unfair and un-American, however, is that these states have 65 per cent of the unemployed and yet get only 30 per cent of the relief fund."

For instance, out of every $2.50 raised in Illinois, the Illinois unemployed would receive less than $1.

Emmerson Gives Figures.

"While there is much destitution in Illinois none of our people are starving due to unemployment relief funds provided both privately and by the state. We estimate that approximately 1,000,000 in Illinois are unable to secure employment although able and willing to work."

FIRE DRIVES OUT EMPLOYES.

U. S. QUESTIONS GANG SEIZED IN FIGHT AT STILL

A band of five gunmen who tried to retake a 1,500 gallon still on a farm four miles west of Elwood Tuesday night after government agents had raided it will be arraigned today before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker. The men were brought to Chicago yesterday and questioned by Assistant Deputy Prohibition Administrator Albert Aman.

The prisoners, who refused to divulge their addresses, are: Walter Huston, an ex-convict; Herman Herbst Jr., who has served a sentence in Leavenworth for violation of the Dyer act; Isadore Solomon, William Ward, and Ralph Hughes.

The raid was made by a squad of agents from Chicago led by R. H. Kenlock. In the barn where the still was housed the agents arrested John Gennetti. They took Gennetti to the farmhouse and there started to question him and Mrs. Florence Guretars, leaving the still in possession of wreckers.

Shortly afterward shots were heard in the barn. The agents ran out and captured the gunmen, who were trying to drive off the wrecking crew. Gennetti and Mrs. Guretars will also be arraigned before Commissioner Walker today.

LIFT OUT YOUR CORNS

It is certainly a wonder the way Ice-Mint draws out inflammation from swollen, burning, aching feet. It takes the soreness right out; hard corns, soft corns or corns between the toes, shrivel up and lift off so easy. It is wonderful. Not one bit of pain while applying Ice-Mint or afterwards. It doesn't even irritate the skin.

It imparts such a delightful, soothing coolness to the feet that you will sigh with relief.

Ice-Mint prevents foot odors and keeps them sweet and comfortable. It is greatly appreciated by women who wear high heel shoes and by men who have to stand all day.

Ask in any Drug store for Ice-Mint and give your poor, suffering, tired, swollen feet a real treat. There is nothing better.

AUTO INDUSTRY STEPS WARILY, REVIEW FINDS

Gears Production to Actual Demand.

BY O. A. MATHER.

There is no denying the fact that the automobile industry is proceeding with utmost conservatism. There is a general disposition to gear production closely to actual demand and to avoid overlonding dealers. Moreover, the delay of the Ford Motor company in attaining quantity production for its new models also is a deterrent for both production and sales. These factors are set forth in the mid-week steel trade review of the Iron Age, which finds that steel production for the country now is down to 25 per cent of mill capacity, compared with 27 per cent a week ago.

"Not only has the Ford Motor company failed to fulfill its recent promises of large steel orders, but the delays in its production schedule have slowed up other automobile manufacturers to such an extent that steel mill schedules have been adversely affected," the review continues. "The recent mild expansion in the requirements of miscellaneous consumers has not been sufficient to offset the lack of important buying by the major steel consuming groups.

Output of Ford.

"Ford orders were placed this week for steel for 20,000 to 30,000 cars, but this represents only a small part of its contemplated production schedule for the near future. Assemblies this week are reported to be 100 cars a day, which will be increased to 200 a day next week and to a considerably larger number beginning March 28. A slight expansion is occuring in the calls for steel from the railroads and for building construction, but the aggregate of such tonnage is having no appreciable effect on mill order books or steel output."

Relative to the delay of the Ford Motor company in reaching quantity production, there was gossip in La Salle street yesterday that the recent announcement of the new models by Henry Ford was made rather reluctantly, if not prematurely, because of insistence by the Hoover administration that it would help along the prosperity campaign. It was said that Mr. Ford wanted a little more time for embarking on a major manufacturing program. Thus, while political considerations may have influenced his early announcement, he evidently still is following his own idea of sound manufacturing policies.

Steel Prices Firmer.

Despite abnormally lo- steel output, the Iron Age says that price stabilization is making progress and the movement to increase prices on some products is gaining adherents. Some mills have stated that quotations made on specific projects which are not acted on by March 21 will be withdrawn. Contract customers will have the privilege of specifying against first quarter commitments until the end of this month, but shipments must be accepted in April.

More cheerful than the steel trade report was that of the National Electric Light association on electric power output last week. Production was moderately above the preceding week and while it fell 8.2 per cent under a year ago, this decline was smaller than that of the preceding week, which was off 8.7 per cent from the corresponding week in 1931. Electricity output for the Chicago district was only 4½ per cent under a year ago, according to the Commonwealth Edison company, although this was chiefly the result of cold weather.

CAR LOADINGS OF NORTH WESTERN SHOW INCREASE

Loadings of the Chicago and North Western railway showed an increase of 744 cars in the second week of March over the preceding seven day period, the road reported yesterday. Last Monday was the best day so far this month with 3,843 cars being loaded. Total loadings for the first two weeks of the month were 57,181 cars, a decline of 14,803 from the comparable period of 1931. Coal was the only commodity to show a gain over 1931. The increase was 401 cars. Coal also increased 1,084 cars in the second week of March. Live stock was up 161 cars over the first week of March and meat products showed a gain for the same period of 46 cars.

Illinois Central reported an increase of 1,603 in loadings for the week ended March 12 over the preceding week. Total loadings were 27,615, compared with 25,012 in the previous week and 32,908 in the corresponding period of 1931.

New York, March 16.—(AP)—The preliminary report for 1931 of the United Light and Power company shows consolidated net income of $7,819,382, equal to $1.21 a share on the combined class "A" and "B" stocks. This compares with $10,462,450 or $2.01 a share in 1930.

Wages Affect Illinois Coal Market Loss

BY SCRUTATOR.

Information emanating from the joint wage conferences which are being held by Illinois mine workers and operators at the Majestic hotel shows pretty conclusively that something more than general recovery from business depression is going to be necessary to put the Illinois coal mining industry back on its feet.

The depression is perhaps the least of the three major ailments afflicting Illinois coal. A second is the increasing competition of competitive fuels, coupled with increased efficiency in the burning of coal.

Illinois coal's greatest trouble, however, is that competitive producers in eastern fields operate so cheaply that they can vault the hurdle of freight charges and penetrate the markets that geography says should belong to Illinois mines.

Wages Are Large Item.

In the total cost of producing coal the percentage accounted for by labor is high compared with other industries. Operators say wages take from two-thirds to three-fourths of the coal dollar.

The operators' arguments all center in their contention that Illinois coal cannot get back its lost markets, mines cannot operate profitably and mine employment cannot be improved, unless workers will coöperate to reduce production costs by accepting lower wages.

According to figures presented at the conference the basic union pay rate of $6.10 for Illinois and Indiana compares with rates of from $2.88 to $3.60 in West Virginia and Kentucky nonunion fields.

Statistics are therein presented to show that employment in Illinois mines has steadily declined from 100,000 eight years ago to half that number last year; that Illinois coal production last year fell below the 1907 level; and that eastern coals are steadily displacing Illinois coal, especially in the big Chicago market.

Want to Sell Coal.

The operators say they "are willing to pay the highest scale of wages the miners' officials can prove that the operators are able to pay and still sell their coal at a reasonable profit."

The representatives of both sides have shown unprecedented willingness to coöperate. A better feeling exists than in any previous mine wage conference. Like the recent railway and building trades wage conferences this meeting appears to be a discussion rather than a dispute.

Tradition was broken on Tuesday when the union representatives announced that although their initial demands had been refused they would continue the conferences and would make the best arrangement possible under the circumstances. They said that they had been granted certain discretionary powers at the recent state meeting.

Today another new departure will be made. The meeting will adjourn and the conferees will spend the day visiting retail coal yards and talking to local coal men in order to get a first hand picture of the situation.

Those in Negotiations.

The operators serving on the joint subcommittee are: W. J. Jenkins, St. Louis; D. W. Buchanan, Chicago; M. F. Peltier, Chicago; Paul Weir, Centralia; F. S. Pfahler, Gillespie; C. H. Hamilton, Chicago; F. H. Woods, Chicago; W. F. Davis, St. Louis; C. J. Sandee, St. Louis. J. D. Zook, president of the operators' association is serving as an ex-officio member of the operators' committee.

Gold Mining Firm Profits Gain During Depression

Profits of the Alaska Juneau Gold Mining company increased in 1931. The annual report shows net income of $1,070,391 after interest, depreciation, and taxes, but before depletion charges, equivalent to 74 cents a share on 1,440,000 common shares. This is comparable with $831,085, or 58 cents a share, on 1,443,000 shares in 1930.

Trade Commission Sifts Finances.

Washington, D. C., March 16.—(AP)—Testimony to show the indirect ownership of the New England Public Service company by the Insull interests was given today before the federal trade commission by Frank Buckingham, a commission examiner, at the opening of hearings on the New England company's financial structure.

Buckingham testified that he had made an examination of the company's affairs from its organization in 1925 to Dec. 31, 1930. He said the company was organized under Maine laws in 1925 "by the Insull interests," and that "it controls, through stock ownership, utilities in the New England states."

Asked about the New England company's connection with the National Electric Power company, a subsidiary of the Middle West Utilities company, an Insull holding company, the witness testified that in December, 1930, "the National Electric Power company held 91.5 per cent of the voting stock of the New England company."

Spends $200,000 on Vote.

Buckingham testified that the New England company in 1929 had spent $200,000 to secure a favorable vote in a referendum on a measure to permit export of surplus hydro-electric power from the state. The bill was passed by the Maine legislature in 1929 and in September was submitted to a referendum, in which it was defeated by a narrow margin.

In reporting to its stockholders, the company explained that since it believed the measure would be of great benefit to the company it had been decided a state-wide campaign should be made for the bill.

Source of Funds.

"It described the expense of the campaign as divided between advertising, public speaking, canvassing, and other activities to secure as large a representation of voters as possible at the polls," he said. Questioned regarding the souce of funds for the 1929 campaign, Buckingham testified these funds were derived from the public service company's profits on the sale of 3,000 shares of common stock of the Central and South West Utilities company. These shares were bought in 1926 by the New England company for $35 a share and were sold for $138.88 a share.

Touching on a purchase of $11,000,000 of Middle West Utilities stock by the New England company, Buckingham said the Middle West company had taken a profit of $1,227,994. He showed the profit by comparing the value of the stock on the books of the Middle West and its value immediately afterward on the books of the New England company.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 16.—Improvement in the comparative electric power production figures for the central industrial section of the country more than offset last week's less favorable showing of the Pacific coast area. Taken as a whole, domestic power output for the week made a slightly more favorable showing than that of the week ended on March 5. Total output for the week ended March 12 amounted to 1,538,452,000 kilowatt hours, the National Electric Light association reports, a decrease of 8.2 per cent in comparison with the production of the corresponding period of 1931.

Gulf Oil Corp. Reports 1931 Loss of $23,670,052

New York, March 16.—(AP)—A net loss of $23,670,052 for 1931 was reported today by the Gulf Oil corporation. This compares with net income of $10,625,252 in 1930. W. L. Mellon, chairman of the corporation, said profits realized in each month of the last quarter of 1931 were in the aggregate "more than sufficient to offset the loss in the third quarter, with the result that the entire net loss for the year was sustained during the first six months."

North Carolina Tobacco Brings $41,348,656 for '31

Raleigh, N. C., March 16.—(AP)—North Carolina farmers received $41,348,656 for 466,689,122 pounds of tobacco during the 1931-'32 season, according to the state crop reporting service. The average price per hundred was $8.86, as compared with $12.84 the previous season. During 1930-'31 growers received $72,331,187 for 563,327,005 pounds.

Bright Spots in Business

Shipments of the Leonard Refrigerator corporation for the month of February were 56 per cent greater than for January of this year and 129 per cent ahead of February, 1931, it was announced by R. I. Petrie, general sales manager of the subsidiary. There were 144 salesmen of the Leonard organization at the regional meeting at the Stevens hotel. The note of the meeting was one of vigor and confidence.

The New York Hide exchange reports shoe production registered a marked increase during February, according to preliminary figures received from the Tanners' council. The estimate places the output for last month at 25,200,000 pairs, against 23,971,000 pairs during February, 1931, and 20,960,000 pairs in January.

"Shipments of Federal trucks in February, 1932, showed a 225 per cent increase over January," says Henry Krohn, vice president in charge of sales of the Federal Motor Truck company.

BENDIX WEAK IN ACTIVE TRADE ON EXCHANGE HERE

Heavy selling in Bendix featured trading on the Chicago exchange yesterday. The issue broke 2 points to 10⅝ on the most active trading it has experienced in recent weeks. The source of the selling was not known, but general disappointment over the caution with which the automobile industry is moving was offered as an explanation.

Other motor accessory shares were also weak, but their net losses were not out of line with the general market. Utility shares receded, led by Commonwealth Edison, which gave up 2½ points on comparatively active trading. During the day the issue sold below 90, but rallied to that figure near the close of the period.

Middle West Utilities common was less active and steady at its previous price of 1⅞. Support at that price was in evidence throughout the session. National Electric Power A was only fractionally lower on the news of the omission of the common dividend by its subsidiary, New England Public Service.

CITY RAILWAY INCOME LOWER; INTEREST PAID

The Chicago City Railway company had net income of $530,883 for the fiscal year ended Jan. 31, 1932, after interest on its bonds. This income was equivalent to $3.23 a share on its $18,000,000 capital stock. Net income for the preceding fiscal year was $1,408,099, or $7.81 a share.

"No dividends were declared due to the fact that the first mortgage bonds, maturing Feb. 1, 1927, still are past due and unpaid," President Harvey B. Fleming says in his annual report. "Interest on these bonds was paid and earnings are ample to warrant the expectation that interest payments will continue pending reorganization."

The company's surplus was increased to $11,572,775. The purchase price at which the city of Chicago may take over the properties was $57,500,098 on Jan. 31 last.

Any Fool Can Prosper in Good Times—Schwab

New York, March 16.—(AP)—The present period of economic distress is a measure of a man's backbone, Charles M. Schwab said tonight at a meeting of the National Association of Waste Material Dealers.

"Any damn fool can run a mill in times of prosperity," said the veteran steel man, "but it takes a real man to run a mill and show a profit in times like these."

Mr. Schwab began by announcing he would "speak the language of our distinguished guest," whereupon he bowed in the direction of Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, United States Marines, retired. He interspersed the speech accordingly.

FEBRUARY TRADE BALANCE MOVES IN FAVOR OF U. S.

Exports $24,000,000 Over Imports.

Washington, D. C., March 16.—(AP)—The United States had a favorable foreign trade balance of $24,000,000 during February. The commerce department announced today that preliminary figures showed exports were $155,000,000 and imports, $131,000,000.

Exports showed a gain of $5,000,000 over the January total. This marked the first time since 1916 that a gain had been registered in February over January. It was stated that increased exports of cotton and petroleum to the far east probably accounted for most of the gain. Exports in February, 1931, were $224,346,000, and imports, $174,946,000.

Gold exports during February totaled $128,211,000, compared with $14,000 in February, 1931. Imports were $37,585,000, against $16,156,000. Exports of silver were $942,000 in February, compared with $1,638,000 in February, 1931. Imports were $2,009,000, against $1,877,000.

Cotton Exports Increase.

Cotton exports jumped almost 25 per cent during the first seven months of the cotton season as compared with the previous season. The textile division of the commerce department announced today that 5,925,000 bales had been exported from August, 1931, when the cotton season opened to February. This was an increase of 1,013,000 bales over the exports for the first seven months of the previous season.

The far east, the division said, continues the principal factor in the larger cotton shipments. Japan took 1,695,000 bales during the period, compared with 732,000 the previous year, and China's takings were about three times as large as previously. No figures were given for China. Italy increased its takings by 97,000, but the United Kingdom took 863,000, the same as last year. Exports to Germany and France were smaller, shipments to the latter country totaling 247,000 bales, against 787,000 the previous year.

Exports for January and February were 1,890,000 bales, compared with 966,000 for January and February, 1931. The value of cotton exported during the first two calendar months of 1932 aggregated about $73,000,000, as compared with $56,000,000 for cotton exported during the first two months of 1931.

Trade with Argentina Declines.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, March 16.—(AP)—Argentina's January exports to the United States totaled $1,803,000, compared with $2,356,000 in January, 1931. Imports from the United States were $2,024,000, compared with $5,467,000.

AIR RATE CUTS BOOST TRAFFIC OF UNITED LINES

Reduction of its fares to rail plus Pullman Jan. 1 has resulted in an increase of 34 per cent in revenue passengers carried the first two months of this year on United Air Lines' coast to coast and other routes, President P. G. Johnson announced today.

While express figures for the entire network are not available, officials state there has been a substantial increase in air express. February figures show that last month United carried 3,546 revenue passengers and 284,745 pounds of mail.

United Air Lines, which is now flying more than 1,000,000 miles a month, will increase its mileage starting April 1, with additional schedules on the Pacific coast and in the east.

ADDRESS O B 197, TRIBUNE

B. & O. R. R. Also Omits Pf'd Dividend

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 16.—Directors of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, the nation's oldest trunk line, today omitted the dividend on the preferred stock, on which payments have been made without interruption since the reorganization of the road in 1900.

The action had been anticipated in Wall street, but the decision of the directors recalled that fact only in five of its 101 years of operation has the road failed to pay a dividend. Last December the road omitted its common stock dividend, opening the way for yesterday's action on the preferred.

Long Paid 4 Per Cent.

The road has been paying dividends on the preferred at the rate of 4 per cent annually since the turn of the century, when the company was reorganized without foreclosure. Prior to its reorganization the road had paid dividends on the common stock almost continuously since 1831, when the initial dividend of 37½ cents was distributed to stockholders.

The road was incorporated in 1827, but didn't begin operation until three years later. Its growth since that time has paralleled the rise of industrialism in the United States. The dividends paid in 1831 of $15,000 increased steadily for a century until they reached the record high total of $17,400,867 in 1930.

One historical minded broker pointed out today in 1831, Charles Carroll of Carrollton, the only surviving signer of the Declaration of Independence, had been present at the ceremonials which attended the beginning of operations of the railroad.

In dropping the preferred dividends the Baltimore and Ohio follows the example of the Illinois Central, another of the country's oldest roads, and the St. Louis and San Francisco both of which suspended preferred dividends early this year.

International Match Action.

Directors of the International Match corporation, controlled by the Swedish Match company, voted to omit the quarterly dividends on the common and preferred stocks. This action is the first adverse development within an organization affiliated with Kreuger & Toll since the suicide of Ivar Kreuger last Saturday. Kreuger & Toll is the largest stockholder in the Swedish Match company.

International Match had been paying common and preferred dividends at the quarterly rate of $1. The preferred stock, listed on the New York Stock exchange, participates equally with the common after payment of $2.60 annually on the former issue. It is entitled to cumulate dividends of that amount.

R. H. Macy & Co. directors, in accordance with what they believed to be "wise conservatism," ordered today a reduction in the quarterly dividend from seventy-five cents to fifty cents, placing the stock on a $2 annual basis against $3 previously.

Sheaffer Pen Cuts.

The W. A. Sheaffer Pen company voted a dividend of 50 cents on the common. Previously the company had been paying $1 semi-annually with extras of 50 cents, the last payments having been made on September 15, 1931. Net profit for 1931 amounted to $236,065 against $701,792 for the previous year.

Directors of the Granby Consolidated Mining, Smelting & Power company, Ltd., voted to defer action on the dividend, believing it to be in the best interest of stockholders to conserve cash resources owing to conditions of the metal market. Three months ago a dividend of 12½ cents was declared and six months ago 25 cents.

A quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share was declared on the common stock of the Otis Elevator company, compared with 62½ cents a share previously. The regular preferred dividend was declared.

Another Reduced Dividend.

Directors of the Merlin-Rockwell corporation voted a dividend of 25 cents a share on the common against 50 cents quarterly heretofore. The dividend is being paid out of the surplus, according to the company.

The Ford Company of Sweden has omitted the common dividend for 1931. A dividend of 10 per cent and a bonus were paid for 1930.

WILLYS LIKELY TO REGAIN FULL MOTOR CONTROL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 16.—Stock control of the Willys-Overland company probably will revert to John N. Willys and associates on July 1 as a result of voting provisions vesting priority rights in the preferred stock after the omission of four quarterly dividends on common.

Mr. Willys is chairman, and he and his associates are the owners of a majority of the preferred issues. However, this group, in July, 1929, sold about 700,000 shares of their common stock holdings to a syndicate. That group included Field, Glore & Co., George M. Jones of Toledo, and C. O. Miniger, president of the Electric Auto-Lite company. The common stock at that time had a market value of about $25 a share. It closed today on the New York Stock exchange at $1.62½. No dividends have been paid on that stock since July of last year. There is little likelihood that payments will be resumed in time to preserve voting control for the holders of that stock.

To all intents and purposes Mr. Willys and associates still are the dominant interests, as they have been all along, even since the sale of a large part of their common stock interest to the Field, Glore-Jones-Miniger group. However, it is considered of special interest at this time that the stock voting powers are likely to be returned to the Willys interests. Mr. Willys has been associated with the company since 1908. He was originally a bicycle manufacturer.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 16.—Various things happened in different directions further to upset the stock market's equilibrium today.

Several big corporations, figuring more or less prominently in the picture, announced the omission or reduction of their dividends. The Stockholm exchange rocked the boat with an order suspending trading in Kreuger & Toll shares which have been such a drag on the market here since the suicide of Ivar Kreuger, founder of the company, in Paris last Saturday. Railroad traffic figures were discouraging. And finally there were rumors afloat regarding the position of one important carrier system which has some large obligations to meet around the first of next month.

Whole List Declines.

Among them, they managed to induce enough liquidation and short selling to drag the general list from 1 to 4 points lower. Some of the more volatile issues broke as much as 6 or 7 points, but cases of such extreme weakness were happily rare. Trading continued light, the turnover approximated only about 1,500,000 shares.

Some comparatively heavy liquidation was evident in the steel and motor groups. United States Steel common in particular stood out as one of the weak features of the day, dropping nearly two points on lively selling. The old bellwether closed at 42⅝, which compares with its 1932 low of 35½.

Steel Orders Slow Up.

One explanation for the sudden disfavor of these two groups was that of current guesses that the backwardness of Ford in getting his new models in production "has slowed up other automobile manufacturers to such an extent that steel mill schedules have been adversely affected." Bethlehem Steel, which was prominently on the "off" side of yesterday's market, dropped another point or so and other steels followed suit. General Motors came in for further heavy selling and gave another point, breaking through 19 to within a fraction of its low for the year. The closing sale of the automobile group leader was at 20. Chrysler and Nash also gave ground.

Kreuger & Toll bumped a new bottom of 1½—as compared with its year's high of 9⅛—on further urgent liquidation. International Match omitted its dividend, causing the preferred stock to break 4 points.

Incidentally, Kreuger & Toll provided the market with its first split opening in a long time when it began with one sale of 15,000 at 2 and another of 3,500 at 2½. One sale of 25,000 shares came out in the course of the next hour.

Much of the day's selling in this issue as well as in the International Match represented liquidation from abroad.

Macy Stock Declines.

R. H. Macy, the big New York department store issue, broke about 8 points to a new record low on reduction of dividend. The stock closed at 43½, off 7½ on the day. Another some time trading favorite to register a new low was Bendix Aviation, which was forced down 2 points. American Smelting 7 per cent preferred gave up 3 points to touch a new bottom.

Railroad shares continued under pressure, with Union Pacific, Atchison, Delaware and Hudson, and others standing out as selling targets. Baltimore and Ohio preferred sagged into new low territory on fears of adverse dividend action. Chesapeake and Ohio lost another point.

PLAN EXTENSION OF GOODFRIEND BUILDING BONDS

Announce Cleveland (O.) Reorganization.

BY AL CHASE.

Owners of bonds in the Goodfriend building, at the southeast corner of Lawrence and Lawndale avenues, have been notified by T. E. Williams, secretary of the bondholders' protective committee, that a plan of reorganization has been adopted which calls for the extension to Feb. 15, 1937, of $54,000 principal amount outstanding which matured on Feb. 15, 1932, with the interest continuing at the same rate of 6 per cent.

The owner agrees to reduce the indebtedness at the rate of $750 semi-annually by depositing this sum in cash with the trustee to pay and cancel bonds to be called by lot or by depositing the equivalent in bonds for cancellation. All owners, it is stated, who deposit bonds on or before June 15 will at once receive the full amount of the interest coupon which matured Feb. 15.

The original bond issue was for $75,000 at 6 per cent, underwritten by the Equitable Bond and Mortgage company. The building contains six stores and seven flats. H. D. Pettibone is chairman of the bondholders' protective committee. The other members are: Frederick J. Stebbins, H. E. Devereaux, W. J. McGuire, Harold M. O'Brien, N. H. Dosker, G. L. Hughes, and C. A. Mueller. Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martins are attorneys.

Cleveland Reorganization.

Adoption of a plan of reorganization of the Auditorium hotel, Cleveland, O., was announced last night by the bondholders' committee organized by S. W. Straus & Co. All depositing bondholders will receive new first mortgage leasehold bonds which, it is claimed, will have the same security as the present bonds. In addition they'll receive voting trust certificates representing practically the entire ownership of the property. The hotel is a ten story structure, containing 297 rooms and ten stores, at the northeast corner of Sinclair avenue and East 6th street.

The bond issue of $825,000 at 6½ per cent has been reduced to $785,000. About 90 per cent of the bonds have been deposited. Interest and principal defaulted in 1931 and foreclosure proceedings were started and it is expected the committee will bid in the property at the master's sale. A new corporation will be formed and the property when purchased will be turned over to it. A new issue of $785,000 5 per cent bonds will be given the depositing bondholders to the amount of 100 per cent of their present holdings. The corporation also will issue common stock and depositing bondholder will receive a voting trust certificate for one share of common for each $100 of new bonds.

"333" Bondholder Balks.

More legal difficulties have bobbed up in front of the reorganization of the 333 North Michigan avenue building. An intervening petition asking that Mrs. Lottie G. Brenner of 5839 Sheridan road, owner of $100,000 bonds in "333," be made a party to foreclose proceedings against the property the Central Republic Bank and Trust company, trustee, was filed in the Superior court by her attorneys.

CHILE GETS PLAN TO CUT DEBT BY TWO-THIRDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VALPARAISO, Chile, March 16.—Chileans learned tonight with relief—though foreign bondholders' feelings may be different—that the external debt may be cut down to a third of its total. This offer has been made by American and British bankers who have virtually obtained the government's acceptance of a conversion scheme on that basis for $500,000,000 owed abroad, all of which is at present in default. About $300,000 in bonds are held in the United States.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 5,000; hogs, 17,000; sheep, 16,000.

There was a sudden display of strength in the cattle market yesterday. The lightest Wednesday receipts of the year were offered. Only 6,000 head were up for sale. Advances of 25c were general in steers. That contrasted with previous sessions this week. All buyers were eager to improve the quality of their earlier purchases.

Competition centered on top classes and brought the peak up 50c to $8.75, within 15c of the highest paid for cattle in more than a month's time. All of the loss recorded on recent sessions has been recovered. Large local packers were among the aggressive bidders in top cattle and both Armour and Swift went up to $8.75 for 920@1,138 lb steers. Four carloads of 1,396 lb heavy cattle reached $8.70. The bulk of beef steers sold at $5.50@7.50, with only a small quota of low grades below $5.00.

One of the largest single transactions of the day was the sale of a string of 207 western fed cattle that averaged 1,049 lbs and brought $6.10. Their mates sold Tuesday at $5.90 and Monday at $6.00. Not much action was noted in butcher stock, however, and prices held about steady. Calves were plentiful and dropped 50c more in value. Tuesday's calf receipts at 6,007 were the largest since last July. Cattle offerings continue to decrease. Chicago receipts for March to date are running almost 15 per cent behind the same period in 1931, notwithstanding the fact that March receipts last year were low for that month.

Average Hog Price Drops.

Hogs found the going rough during the third part of the session, but later buying by local interests influenced a stronger close. The general average for the day was off only 5c at $4.35. The extreme top came down 15c to $4.65, which was easier to get at the close than at the opening of the day. Both country owners and local traders continue to hold hogs off the market and 9,000 were estimated left at the close.

All offers and bids in the hog futures trade were exactly the same as they were on Tuesday's session. July and September hogs were offered at $6.00 and bid $5.50, while May offers were made at $5.25 and bids at $5.00.

Lambs Tumble 50c.

Yesterday's sheep receipts at 20,000 were second largest for Wednesday since early last December. The increase proved too much for the trade, and prices came down unevenly, 25@75c, with a big share of the supply going at 50c lower prices. Late Tuesday shippers paid up to $8.35 for prime Nebraska stock. Yesterday's top dropped to $7.85, paid by shippers and city butchers, while packers bought at $7.25@7.50. The uneven distribution of supplies has caused some sharp fluctuations in the lamb market this week, while the wholesale price for dressed lamb has remained firm since Monday's upturn.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, March 16.—(AP)—Bleachable cottonseed oil today closed weak at new lows for the season and unchanged to 18 points net lower on the largest turnover in any single session in weeks. Sales were 82 contracts, equivalent to 12,300 barrels. Liquidation by Wall street interests, with a barely steady lard market, and further weakness in hogs, depressed the list. A large part of the day's business consisted of exchanging, this amounting to 38 contacts. Crude oil was 3½c nominal in the southeast, 3@3¼c in the valley and nominal in Texas. Bleachable spot closed 3.75c; March, 4.00c; May, 4.03c; July, 4.23.; September, 4.34c. There were no sales in the prime summer yellow contract, with closing prices as follows: Spot, 3.75c; March, 3.75c; May, 3.85c; July, 4.05c; September, 4.20c; October, 4.20c.

WHEAT HIGHER; REFLECTS NEWS AT LIVERPOOL

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat gave what the traders regarded as a remarkable demonstration of strength yesterday. A sharp break in stocks had relatively little effect. The close for wheat was within a fraction of the top with net gains of ½@⅝c. March finished at 55⅝c; May, 58⅛@58¼c; old July, 59⅞@60c, and old September, 62c, while new July was 59½c, and September, 61⅝c.

Foreign wheat markets have been gaining steadily on Chicago for a number of days. Liverpool ignored the decline which occurred in North America late Tuesday and finished ⅝@⅞c higher. May there closed at 59¼c, or 1¼c over Chicago, while the October was 2⅛c premium over the September here. The spread was the widest in several months. Recently Liverpool May was 4⅜c under Chicago, and as late as last Friday was at a discount of 1c.

East Sells Wheat Futures.

Wheat futures held within a range of around 1c for the day with houses with eastern and northwestern connections on the selling side until near the close when pit shorts started to cover and found little for sale and caused the closing rally. Winnipeg finished ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher with May at 65c. Buying here against sales at Winnipeg by spreaders was largely responsible for the narrowing of the difference between the two markets. Buenos Aires was stronger in the early trading.

A belief that there would be a further improvement in the foreign demand for North American wheat had some effect on sentiment during the day, although the export demand was by no means as aggressive as on Tuesday. Total sales were estimated at 500,000 bu in all positions, including around 150,000 bu domestic hard winter. No pressure from Argentine and Australia was reported abroad and there were intimations of another advance in the Italian quota on foreign wheat would be made shortly.

Unfavorable crop comments are showing a tendency to increase from the dry sections of the southwest and fears of damage due to persistent dry weather are entertained in some quarters.

Cash Corn Firmer.

Country offerings of cash corn continue relatively light and were mainly held above buyers views yesterday, although the basis in the sample market was ¼@½c higher as compared with the May. Purchases of 80,000 bu were made to arrive, the bulk of the business being done toward the last when futures rallied. The latter were somewhat easier early, but firmed with wheat and closed ¼@½c higher. May was 39c, July 41⅜@41½c, and September, 42⅜c at the finish.

Oats held within narrow limits, and closed unchanged to ⅛c higher in sympathy with corn. May was 24⅜c; July, 24⅞c, and September, 25½c at the last. The basis in the sample market was steady to ⅛c lower with offerings larger.

Lack of fresh export demand failed to have much effect on rye. Winnipeg was strong and induced some buying here with the result the close was ¾@⅞c higher. May finished at 47¾c, and July, 49¼c.

BUTTER AND EGGS FIRM

All markets were firmer on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange yesterday, butter moving up ½@¾c, eggs ½@¾c, and Maine potatoes selling 20c over the previous closing level. The gain in butter was brought about largely by short covering indicated by more favorable storage statistics. The four markets reported 100,000 lbs more butter out than on the same date last year and production showed a decrease. Egg storage reports again recorded a very low inward movement, 59,000 cases less than last year although receipts were slightly heavier in Chicago. Covering appeared in November The freeze which has seriously affected the new potato crop resulted in the advance in Maine futures. Sales: Butter, 58 cars: eggs, 34 cars; potatoes, 5 cars. Deliveries: Eggs, 2 cars. Prices follow:

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, March 16.—(AP)—Raw sugar was steadier today, but after advancing 2 points to the basis and 2.78c, offerings increased and at the close sugars were available at 2.77c. The sales reported were 20,000 bags of Cuban, 28,700 bags of Porto Rican for prompt shipment at 2.78c, and 5,000 bags of Porto Rican at 2.79c to local refiners and operators. Early upturns in futures attracted increased liquidation and hedge selling and were followed by reactions, with the market closing net unchanged to 2 points lower. Houses with producing connections sold on the upturn and after selling at .81c May contracts sold off at .77c, while December reacted from .99c to .95c with final prices at the lowest of the session. Approximate sales, 25,600 tons. Prices follow:
